MARITIME UNIONS BEFORE BOARD

City Council Scuttles Economy Program, Opens Purse

RESOLUTION TO PROTECT FUNDS LOST

City Dads Virtually Say "Come and Get It" to Those Seeking Handout

MOTION NOT SECONDED

Mayor Warner Declines at Request of LeGaye to Leave His Chair to Act

THE CITY COUNCIL served notice on the taxpayers last night that it did not intend to conduct an economical administration of city affairs, reserving tax funds only for necessary governmental expense.

It also served notice on its friends that the bars were down and that applications for city tax funds to be spent by private organizations would be welcomed and sympathetically considered.

Such was the intent of its action in refusing to adopt a resolution of policy submitted by Councilman A. F. LeGaye setting up a policy of economy and accountability in the determination of the budget for 1934-35.

Moves Adoption

After City Clerk Ed Vegely had read the resolution, LeGaye moved its adoption and asked for a second to his motion. William Penn inquired if this was the same resolution that had died for want of a second at the last council meeting, and was told by LeGaye that it was the same proposition.

Mayor E. G. Warner held his gavel suspended for a brief moment, then declared that the motion was lost for want of a second and called for new business.

LeGaye refused to be diverted and asked Warner if he would step from the chair and second the motion, but the mayor hurriedly whacked his gavel again and declared loudly that the motion was lost for want of a second.

Overflow Crowd

The meeting was attended by the largest crowd for many months and overflowed from the room out on the sidewalk, street and curbing. Every available seat

TWO KILLED MONDAY IN AIRPLANE CRASH

SAN BERNARDINO, July 10.—(UP)—Two men were dead today and two others, passengers of a cabin plane which crashed at an airport near here late yesterday, lay injured critically in a hospital. All were from Los Angeles.

The dead were George Hague, prominent air speed flier and pilot of the plane, and Attorney Sam R. Edwards.

R. H. Sampson, another attorney, and Assistant Fire Chief Harry Claybourne were injured seriously. Doctors said they may die.

Hague was killed instantly in the crash. Edwards died several hours later in a hospital.

Sampson had hired the plane for an air trip here where he was attending a court trial. The plane apparently failed to gain altitude in taking off and struck a row of trees, witnesses said.

WOMEN PICKET AS HUSBANDS JAILED

Grimly, they patrolled entrances to the black boglands while a score of striking weeders arrested in clashes with deputies yesterday, awaited hearings.

"They can't arrest a woman without a warrant, and while they are getting warrants we can raise plenty of hell," declared Mrs. Cynthis Lenhart, wife of one of the jailed men. She organized 21 women pickets to guard entrances to the rich muck, where barefooted strikebreakers are attempting to save the million-dollar crop from rampant weeds.

FRENCH-BRITISH CONFERENCE IS ADJOURNED

Paul V. Maris, director of extension service of Oregon State college, has been appointed regional director of federal relief for the eleven western states, excepting Oregon.

PARAGUAY AND BOLIVIA FIGHT BLOODY BATTLE

Forty Thousand Troops Attack Fort Ballivian in Gran Chaco War

BUENOS AIRES, July 10.—(UP)—Bolivian and Paraguayan forces were locked today in a major battle, which gave indication of determining the victor in the bloody Gran Chaco war.

Forty thousand Paraguayan troops were attacking Fort Ballivian, stronghold of the Bolivian forces near the Pilcomayo and key position to the whole Chaco region.

The Bolivian defenders were the picked men of the army and had orders to defend their position to the last man.

Fighting was fierce and bloody.

The Paraguayans advanced one kilometer—five-eighths of a mile—through the thick line of advance trenches before the fort. This made it possible for artillery to advance within range of the fort, according to Paraguayan official reports.

Two Attacks

General Jose Estgarribia, French trained graduate of the famous St. Cyr Academy, pursued his favorite tactics by attacking from more than one front. While his main force beleaguered Ballivian others were detailed to make secondary attacks on the El Carmen and Canada strongest positions.

Paraguayan official reports of this, the fifth major attack on Ballivian and the first to show progress, described the one kilo-

WATER IS HAULED TO VALLEY TOWNS

EL CENTRO, Cal., July 10.—(UP)—The Imperial Valley, parched by drought and gravely menaced by a water shortage, received its first "outside" water today when six tank cars were delivered over the Southern Pacific for domestic consumption.

The cars contained about 70,000 gallons of water and were shipped from Mecca to be "spotted" at six points in the Rurap area. Shipments will continue daily until 200,000 gallons are delivered, provided that much is necessary to bridge the emergency.

Although city dwellers are not endangered at present from a shortage, the situation is expected to become more serious daily unless heavy and quick rains set in in the upper basin of the Colorado river. Water through the irrigation district canals, which are fed by the Colorado, is still sufficient to care for livestock and crops but is gradually getting lower. The precious supply is being prorated among ranchers.

The fresh water supply shipped into the valley was purchased with funds of the federal drought relief administration.

Nazi Reich Ordered To Meet Friday

Chancellor Hitler to Address Legislature and Review Rebellion

BERLIN, July 10.—(UP)—The all-Nazi Reichstag was summoned today to meet at 8 p. m. Friday to give its formal blessing to the acts of Adolf Hitler's government in suppressing the Roehm revolt.

Ten minutes after announcement of the summons, German newspapers were ordered to make no mention of it. It was explained that the meeting had been summoned as announced, but that the time might be altered before Friday.

The chancellor himself is expected to address the gathering of the Nazi legislature, and review the suppression of the storm troop rebellion.

It was certain that whatever the chancellor had to say would be approved unanimously, by cheers and, if desired, by vote. There is no opposition representation.

Indications were the cabinet spokesman would confine himself to general terms.

Reorganization of the storm troop organization into a compact, blindly-loyal force of picked men, were still in the discussion stage today, and seemed likely to remain there until Hitler and his aides had made a thorough study.

There was discussion whether the session would be made the occasion for the long promised statement of killings in reprisal for the alleged plot of Ernst Roehm and his fellow troop leaders to overthrow the government.

The decree calling the meeting made it plain that the Reichstag was expected to do no legislating; that it was convened with but one idea—reading of the government's statement.

This is the first time the Reichstag has met since January 30, anniversary of Hitler's accession to power. The January meeting also was called only to hear and approve a government statement.

The meeting, it was believed, would be held again in the Kroll opera house. The Reichstag building, badly damaged by the incendiary fire of February, 1933, has not been fully repaired.

It was expected the government's statement, besides giving full background of the revolt, might review the recent Flensburg congress of Nazi party leaders and go into foreign politics.

MERRIAM TO SEEK GOVERNMENT FUNDS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 10.—(UP)—Gov. Frank F. Merriam has under consideration a plan to file a supplemental application with the federal government for a sum sufficient at least to start work on the proposed $170,000,000 central valley water project, it was revealed today.

Governor Merriam said he had asked state engineer Edward Hyatt concerning the advisability of filing such an application after President Franklin D. Roosevelt had informed him that allocation of the full amount asked for the project was "impossible at this time," and suggested application for a smaller amount from the PWA.

UPTON SINCLAIR IS HECKLED IN SPEECH

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(UP)—To a heckling audience that persisted in interrupting him as he spoke, Upton Sinclair, noted author and gubernatorial aspirant, denied that he was a communist from the platform of the Dreamland auditorium here last night.

"Why aren't you a communist?" a heckler shouted.

An usher attempted to throw the heckler out of the auditorium. Sinclair waved a hand of disapproval.

"Don't throw anyone out," he said, "I answer all questions."

WHAT THE COUNCIL REJECTED

"Resolved, that it shall be the policy of the city council in making up the annual budget for the year 1934-35, that no money shall be budgeted or set aside from the treasury of the city, which is to be directly or indirectly contributed to any private group or organization, nor shall any money be so appropriated, except for the absolutely necessary functions of government and then only in amounts absolutely necessary and to be expended by those duly and regularly elected officials, so that the responsibility for such expenditure can be placed by the voter upon such officials."

LEGION BOSSES HUNT FOR NEW DEAL OPPONENT

Political Chiefs in Veterans Organization to Fight Roosevelt

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 10.—(UP)—The "king makers" of the American Legion today were reported laying the ground work for election of a national commander opposed to President Roosevelt and the new deal.

The "king makers" are a small group of Legion politicians who have controlled the election of national commanders almost from the beginning of the World War Veterans organization.

Republican and strongly anti-Roosevelt, the faction is credited with electing Edward A. Hayes, the present national commander, who has criticized the new deal vigorously.

Leaders in the movement, Republicans all, are:

Mark McKee, Detroit lobbyist, who is keeping in the background because his name reached the front pages recently in connection with an investigation of army contracts.

Constitutionally the legion is a non-political organization dedicated to support those candidates best suited for office and who reputedly have the best interests of the veterans at heart.

The "king makers" plan of operation is to win the election of delegates to the national convention who are opposed to the new deal.

Their activities are said to be extending into the state Legion conventions which will name delegates to the national meeting in Miami, Fla., next October.

A so-called reform element is reported ready to fight to rid the organization of the inner council's domination.

The two men mentioned in Legion circles here as the most promising candidates for national commander are Frank Belgrano, California banker, and Ray Murphy, of Iowa.

Belgrano is a Republican but is in sympathy with the new deal program.

WILL HAYS CONFERS WITH MOVIE HEADS

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.—(UP)—Will H. Hays, "czar of the films" by virtue of his position as president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors association, today was closeted with executives of the industry in an obvious "clinic" over nation-wide demand for cleaner films.

The film czar slipped into town with as little attention as possible and began immediately to confer with the executives after refusing to confer with newspapermen.

Hays was accompanied on the studio tour by Joseph I. Breen, his assistant and the one-man jury delegated by the producers to censor all future productions.

ARMY BALLOON AWAITING ONLY FAIR WEATHER

Huge Stratosphere Craft Christened "Explorer" Monday Afternoon

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 10.—(UP)—Tourists and sightseers swarmed the streets of Rapid City today, eagerly awaiting the take-off of the giant balloon "Explorer" on its stratosphere flight.

Major William E. Kepner, pilot, and Capt. Albert W. Stevens, scientific observer, and members of the ground crew marked time as adverse weather reports delayed setting the hour for the ascension.

A steady stream of cars rolled up the 11-mile grade to the sheltered bowl in the Black hills where the 3,000,000 cubic feet bag was ready for inflation, bearing tourists from far scattered sections of the country.

Within half an hour license plates of 22 states were noted on the streets of Rapid City. The influx of visitors was described as unparalleled in the history of this resort town.

V. E. Jakl, government meteorologist from Kansas City who was sent here to aid in gathering information on weather conditions for the balloonists, checked reports from points many hundreds of miles from Rapid City.

Three low pressure areas in the immeriate vicinity made it inadvisable for the balloon to take off today as originally planned.

A high pressure area must prevail for many hundreds of miles to the east and south for the huge craft to take off with a maximum of safety and to insure the best results in photography and observation.

It was estimated it would take 12 hours to inflate the balloon which will tower as high as a 27-story building when filled with gas.

Major Kepner and Captain Stevens estimated the flight would take 12 hours, four for the ascent with a maximum altitude of 15 miles as the goal, four for observation at the "ceiling" and four for the descent

Officials planned to permit only members of the flight and ground crews and newspaper men to enter the bowl while the balloon is being inflated.

Hydrogen gas is to be used, and every precaution is being taken to guard against the possibility of fire.

Other spectators will witness the ascension from the rim of the canyon, outside guard lines that have been thrown about it.

From the rim thousands of tourists and most of the population of Rapid City witnessed the christening of the craft shortly before dusk yesterday.

DILLINGER'S GANG BATTLES SHERIFF

FOND DU LAC, Wis., July 10.—(UP)—The story of an undersheriff and two policemen that they engaged in a running gun battle with gangsters fleeing with the body of a dead or wounded companion today spurred a new hunt for John Dillinger.

The officers, forced to give up the chase when machine guns spat at them from the bandit car, said one of the men in the front seat looked like the Hoosier outlaw.

A few minutes before the exciting chase a wrecked car, splotched with blood and bearing the marks of bullet fire, was found in a ditch five miles east of here.

No Progress Reported On Naval Limit

France Proposed Security Treaty to Supplement Lacarno Pact

LONDON, July 10.—(UP)—British-French diplomatic conversations, principally centering around an Eastern European security treaty, were adjourned today.

A formal communique said that besides the French plan for the security treaty and the naval conversations, preparatory to the 1935 conference, the future of the disarmament conference was among topics discussed.

The communique said:

"The friendly conversations between the British and French ministers which were concluded at the foreign office this morning made it possible for the two governments to appreciate clearly their respective points of view on the questions under discussion.

"These questions included the French proposals for additional mutual security in eastern Europe, the future of the disarmament conference, and preparations for the naval conference in 1935. In connection with this last point, M. Pietri will remain in London a few days longer."

Both Great Britain and France expect Germany to demand representation at the 1935 conference. Britain is believed to be not adverse to German representation. If Germany is represented, France wants Russia and perhaps other countries there.

It was learned authoritatively that the United States delegation prefers to limit the conference to the five nations now bound by naval treaties—the United States, Britain, Japan, France and Italy.

No progress seemed to have been made, or to be likely, in the French effort to persuade Italy not to build two 35,000 ton battleships.

Barthou's plan for a new treaty of security would include Germany, Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Esthonia, Latvia and Lithaunia. It would supplement the Locarno treaty.

There were signs that Britain, once cold to the treaty, might give it approval.

OIL PROBE RESUMED AT BARTLESVILLE

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., July 10.—(UP)—The special house oil investigating committee came here today to ask officials of producing companies why oil prices failed to drop when congress passed no control legislation, as it had predicted they would.

Informal sessions were scheduled with executives of the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company, large operator in the Oklahoma City field, and the Phillips Petroleum company.

The committee, headed by Rep William P. Cole jr., (D.), Maryland, came from Tulsa where conferences were held yesterday with oil executives. The group was named to study the oil problem from federal angles after the Disney control bill failed to reach passage at the regular session of congress.

ANOTHER REPRIEVE IS GRANTED WOMAN

ALBANY, N .Y., July 10.—(UP)—Governor Lehman today granted a new reprieve to Mrs. Anna Antonio, Albany, mother of three children who was scheduled to be executed in the electric chair Thursday night for the insurance slaying of her husband.

The reprieve was until the week beginning August 5th, and included the men, Vincent Saetta and Sam Faracci.

Lehman at the same time, announced that Chief Judge Cuthbert W. Pound, had agreed to convene the court of appeals in session as soon as possible to pass upon an appeal for a new trial.

BOURBON BOSS IS SHOT DOWN BY GANGSTERS

Kansas City Political Head Ambushed in Front of Downtown Hotel

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 10.—(UP)—John Lazia, a north side political chieftain and power in the underworld, was shot down by gangsters early today as he stepped from an automobile in front of the Park Central hotel.

Seriously wounded by eight machine gun and shotgun slugs, Lazia was taken to St. Joseph hospital. A blood transfusion was made in a desperate effort to save his life.

Lazia, under federal conviction for failing to file income tax returns, and his wife and two friends, Charles Carolla and wife, had just stopped their car in front of the Armour boulevard hotel when two gangsters arose from behind an ambush of shrubbery, lawn chairs and a retaining wall.

As the Democratic leader, reputed lieutenant of Tom Pendergast, Missouri political boss, stepped to the driveway a blast of gunfire roared. Two score shots followed, the rat-tat-tat of the machine gun being punctuated by the deep boom of the shotgun.

Lazia sank to the pavement.

Carolla, who was driving the machine, pushed Mrs. Lazia who was in the rear seat, and Mrs. Carolla, who was in the front seat, to the floor. Then he shot the car out of the driveway and cut back eastward on Armour boulevard. He returned a few minutes later.

Meanwhile, Lazia, whose name often had been mentioned in gangland shootings, was lying prostrate on the pavement, calling for help.

ST. LOUIS, July 10.—(UP)—Dominic Gambrone, 57, was found shot to death on an outlying road last night, an apparent gangland ride victim.

Arms neatly folded on the chest, the body was discovered by Richard Gruetzmacher, who narrowly missed running over it in his automobile.

A bullet hole from a large calibre revolver was found behind the victim's right ear. No other marks of violence were evident.

Police here said Gambrone had been arrested about ten times prior to 1922, but they had no record of him since.

EDITOR NAMED TO STATE FAIR BOARD

SACRAMENTO, July 10.—(UP)—Appointment of Horace E Thomas, editor and co-publisher of the Marysville Appeal-Democrat, as a member of the state fair board was announced by the governor's office today.

Thomas was named for the term ending February 1, 1937. He will fill the position made vacant by the death of Ellis Franklin of Colfax, and probably will have charge of the educational exhibits.

32,000 MEN PLAN POLL ON STRIKE

Union Men of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley to Vote on General Strike

SHOTS ARE EXCHANGED

Hauling of Freight in Harbor is Increased Under Militia Protection

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(UP)—Maritime unions today laid before the president's mediation board, their version of the controversy which has precipitated the Pacific coast marine strike, now in its third month.

The board met at 10 a. m. for hearings described as being "designed to bring the true background of the strike before the public."

As the board met the state militia, which took over patrol of the San Francisco water front after last Thursday's bloody riots, extended its sentry lines to include Islais Creek at the southern end of the waterfront. State-owned grain warehouses are located there. Company G, 184th infantry, from Chico, Calif., was given the area to patrol.

Before the mediation board went into session J. C. Rohlfs, spokesman for the steamship companies, issued a statement denying the employers had refused to meet striking seamen and discuss their demands.

Willing To Confer

"Shipowners will be glad," he said, "to meet with the representatives of their employes whenever they can be certain they are dealing with the actual spokesmen of the employes."

Meantime the strike committee of the maritime unions went ahead with its promotion of a general strike. Realizing that the danger is real, merchants were filling their shelves with available stock and reported housewives were doing likewise.

The important development of the day in this phase of the situation was the announcement that the Alameda County Central Labor Council, in which 32,000 members of 79 unions are represented, had voted to poll its unions on the question of a general strike. This organization covers Alameda

BASTROP, La., July 10.—(UP)—The body of a lynched negro was cut down from an oak tree in the public square today. Sheriff J. F. Carpenter said he recognized no member of the mob which stormed Parish prison last night.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(UP)—Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson revealed late today that he had recommended to President Roosevelt the placing of the national recovery administration under a non-partisan commission.

SEQUOIA NATIONAL PARK, Calif., July 10.—(UP)—Two hundred fire fighters battled desperately today to hold a raging forest blaze which threatened one of California's most valuable pine stands. The fire, which already has destroyed 1000 acres of brush and small timber, jumped control lines twice and entered the famous Salt Creek pinery, but was held again behind new lines.

county including Berkeley, Oakland and Alameda.

Three More Vote

Three more unions voted to support a general strike in the last 24 hours, they being the hoisting and portable engineers, auto mechanics and barbers.

Militiamen patrolling the waterfront during the night fired on two automobiles which failed to stop at barricades. One car, it developed, was driven by Harlan Dykes, Santa Clara university basketball coach. Five shots were fired at him, one taking effect in the fender of the car. He explained that he had not understood the regulations and was released.

Hauling of freight and general activities in the harbor were increased under the militia's protection. Trucks operated by the industrial association were taking freight from four piers—Nos. 32, 34, 38 and 40—to the Industrial association warehouses.

HICKMAN CALM AS TRIAL IS OPENED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(UP)—Millard Hickman, dapper marine engineer, sat calmly in ocurt today while his attorneys announced they would rely upon testimony of Blanche McKay, buxome, blonde "alibi girl," to prove the 45-year-old "family man" was not responsible for the revoluting murder of Louise Jeppesen, 23.

While Miss Jeppesen—pretty Ogden, Utah, Sunday school teacher who became a San Francisco "party girl"—was being beaten and attacked in Golden Gate park last May 13, Hickman was in his apartment with Miss McKay, defense attorneys told the court.

Miss McKay displayed no emotion during the attorney's recitation. Hickman ,father of two girls, appeared calm and on the verge of boredom.

Selection of a jury was to be completed today, with first testimony expected tomorrow.

BUILDERS TO MEET AT ORANGE TONIGHT

Latest developments in the SERA as relating to public and private construction work in the county will be one of the chief topics of discussion tonight at the monthly meeting of the Orange County Builders Exchange at the Orange American Legion clubhouse, starting at 6:30 o'clock.

Charles Fallert, manager of the National Reemployment Service, will give a short talk and answer questions concerning the service and its relation to construction jobs. Congressman Sam L. Collins will speak briefly.

The meeting is in charge of the metal workers and hardware dealer members, with John Knox acting as chairman. Thermon Means is supervising the general arrangements under President C. M. Gilbert.

Boy Apprehended For Gas Thefts

Following repeated thefts of gasoline, oil and tools from his ranch, D. D. Field, living on East Seventeenth street north of Tustin, secured the aid of sheriff's officers yesterday and apprehended a youth who admitted the thefts.

The boy revealed that he had stolen 25 gallons of gasoline and one gallon of oil during recent weeks. He paid for the fuel and was not held by Deputy Sheriff Harvey Gulick, who handled the case.

SANTA MONICA, July 10. (To the Editor of The Register:) Every day we get new surprises from Europe. Sunday some fellow from Germany named Hess, who said he was speaking for Hitler, told France there wasn't any use of them fighting and that they would like to make up. It all sounded so friendly that you started peeping under the bottom to see what was hid.

Mr. Roosevelt visited our Virgin Islands, he seems to have got away pretty good. Two or three years ago I flew into those islands just a couple of weeks after Mr. Hoover had been there, and those Virginis were sure sore. But Mr. Roosevelt promised 'em a distillery.

metre advance as having overwhelmed the third line of the enemy trenches, and forcing a retreat by its defenders toward the Pilcomayo river which forms the frontier between the Chaco and Argentina.

Capture of some munitions was claimed.

Defend Position

Bolivians, the communiques said, showed determination to defend the Ballivian key position at all costs. Bolivian prisoners were quoted as saying that their high command was concentrating all available men at the fort.

Paraguayan planes were co-operating with the ground force, and four of them bombed Fort Ballivian. However, according to Bolivian official dispatches, the bombs fell 1 1-2 kilometers from the fort proper and did no damage. It was asserted that two Bolivian aviators fought the four planes and sent one down in flames, 1,500 meters behind the Bolivian lines.

Bolivian dispatches, admitting the retreat of one kilometer, indicated that what was expected to be a great battle was just beginning.

It was said that the Paraguayan casualties were heavy, and that the advance was brought to a sharp halt after the initial progress.

Bolivian as well as Paraguayan dispatches emphasized the importance of the combat and the fierceness of the fight. Bolivian dispatches indicated optimism as to the outcome.

Council Approves Opening of Club

The opening of the Valencia Business Men's club at 309 1-2 East Broadway was approved by the city council last night, on the recommendation of Police Chief Floyd Howard and City Attorney Clyde Downing.

Downing said that he and Howard had made a thorough investigation of J. Leonard Cole and F. E. Finster, the promoters of the club, and felt no hesitancy in recommending that the application be granted. He pointed out, however, that the club would have to be conducted in a lawful manner, be conducted solely as a business men's club to offer recreation, be in the form of one big room on the second floor, and conform to other promises made in the request.

The motion to grant the application was made by Councilman Fred Rowland and seconded by Plummer Bruns.

ALCOHOL EVILS CITED BY TWO DRY LECTURERS

FULLERTON, July 10.—The solution of the question of drinking alcoholic beverages lies in education of youth as to the true nature of alcohol, both Dr. William L. Stidger of Boston and Col. Frank B. Ebbert of Washington, D. C., agreed in talks last night to a good crowd at the Fullerton Methodist church.

Dr. Stidger, lecturer, author and poet, speaking under the Methodist board of temperance and public morals, Col. Ebbert, one of the authors of the Volstead act, traveling in the interest of temperance, each delivered a powerful lecture on the evils of alcohol.

In his talk, Dr. Stidger called attention to the scientific fact, which has not been taugh to youth of the past generation, that alcohol is listed, scientifically with cocaine, morphine, heroin, and all other deadly drugs. He said training of youth along that line will solve the problem, and that although at the present time the cause of prohibition is the most unpopular cause in America, for that reason and that the use of alcohol is the most deadening to morals of any drug, the "ministers and Christians should sound a trumpet of no uncertain sound; for if the trumpet sound an uncertain sound, who shall prepare for battle?"

He advised that first Christians must realize that to create a new forward movement, it must be realized that the temperance question is God's movement, and after that realization, "get started; ask no quarter, and train youth as to the devastating use of alcohol; it is the business of the church to do this; it isn't necessary for the church to revisualize the saloon of the old days; conditions now are worse than they ever were in saloon days, and there is no personal liberty with drunks driving cars.

"It is worse now because women are in the business, and little children are being taught to not have a prejudice against drinking places; statistics show that one-third of the people who attend the drinking places between 10 p. m. and 2 a. m. are women and girls.

"It is ridiculous to suggest paying government debts with revenue of liquor; the government appropriated $10,000,000 recently to stop rum running on the Canadian border. If we had had that kind of co-operation during prohibition days we could have enforced prohibition," he said.

"Where else can the church stand but on what it has started; it must be finished; if we are worthy of the traditions of the Christians, we must finish it; we would be false to every tradition of Christianity if we quit, and in the words of Joan d'Arc, as written by Bernard Shaw, 'thou must listen to it, though thy heart break with the terror of it,'" he warned.

"It is amazing but true that high school and college youth is not instructed in harmful effects of alcoholic use; youth needs the truth," Col. Ebbert said. He said boys and girls are not hard to instruct along lines of truth, and that they must be instructed, for "not a boy or girl is living today but that if this liquor situation is not changed, will not be required to make a decision, squarely, under hard circumstances, as to whether he or she will drink or not; let them know alcohol is a poison drug," he warned.

He warned that within a short time $500,000 bartenders and barmaids will be paying 50 cents a month into a fund to "educate boys and girls in use of intoxicating liquors," and that something must be done in schools to counteract this. "It is amazing," he said, "that any of us have come out of this situation with truth, considering the everlasting propaganda that was distributed to make us believe prohibition has failed. We must get over our confused thinking, and come out for strong prohibition."

The Methodist board of morals and temperance, he said, is arranging a broadcast and an education program on temperance.

Sentence Bond Deal Convict To Serve Term Here

The booking of John Austin of Los Angeles was being awaited at the county jail this afternoon, following his commitment to the Orange county jail for one year by Federal Judge George Cosgrave this afternoon for his alleged part in a "million-dollar hot bond" ring which sent several others to federal prison.

Austin was sentenced after he was convicted of a charge of forging signatures to several stolen Liberty bonds. Austin admitted signing the name of "Ed Wideman" to several of the bonds which were stolen in mid-western bank raids.

Seek Barefoot Boy For School Theft

A barefoot boy, believed to be from 10 to 14 years of age, is thought to be responsible for the theft of a home-made telegraph sounder from the shop building at the Willard junior high school over the week end, according to police.

A window in the building was broken and the sounder stolen from a table under the window. Barefoot tracks near the window were found by officers.

The Second Street Circus, a one-ring affair, went through its act with plenty of snap last night. The snap was supplied from the whip of Ringmaster Bill Jerome.

It really is a circus, though some of the citizens looking on last night mistook it for a Quaker meeting, just after Councilman LeGaye presented his economy resolution. The silence was very loud, as LeGaye looked about hopefully for a second.

The horse act, in this circus, is pretty good. Combined with the three musketeers act, it gets over fine. Last night, it got over the economy hurdle before the crowd realized what was going on—or over.

The three musketeers—Bill, Ted and George—are mounted, you know. They sit up there in the saddles and apply the spurs and whip. The horses are—you guessed it—Warner, Penn, Bruns and Rowland.

The boys are good. If they get a few horse laughs now and then, or if somebody mutters something about horses' necks, in their hearing, they shouldn't mind. They suit their riders, anyway.

What matters if the crowd last night muttered and growled about recall, and appeared to have a strange belief that the appointed members should resign, LeGaye having expressed his readiness to resign if the other appointees would follow suit. Why resign just when the spending is getting good?

It may be possible the four horses can equal the records of the good old grab-bag days, when the Chamber of Commerce tossed off $8000 of the taxpayers' money each year, and thought nothing of it.

Or maybe they can bring back memories of those happy days and the $32,000 our taxpayers handed over for the glass factory—ouch!

* * *

The four horses were so anxious last night to prove that they aren't a Burke council that they let it slip out whose council they are. Whose, did you ask?

Well, who called Warner and Bruns out of the council meeting the other night and told them what was what about appointing a successor to Witmer?

And who was in the chamber group that had two attorneys appear before the council to say that it wouldn't be legal to call an election on councilmen? Which might upset the chamber's plan to get its hand into the treasury.

Who? Is it necessary to answer? We refer you to the ringmaster of the Second Street Circus.

One horselaugh at the circus last night was the buck-passing act. When Attorneys Jacobs and Swanner first appeared a week ago before the council, with the election statement, saying they represented a group from the chamber of commerce, the chamber officials passed the buck back to them and intimated that the legal gentlemen were claiming a little too much, in claiming to represent the chamber.

It hadn't looked so well for the chamber, to try to get city money and at the same time try to ward off an election, so they would be sure to get the city money.

But last night, the attorneys tossed the buck right back at them. "It's your baby, gents," says the attorneys.

Well, we may have to add another ring to the circus for this act, if it keeps going.

CITY COUNCIL TELLS PEOPLE "COME GET IT"

and bit of standing room space in the councilroom was occupied by a murmuring mass of taxpayers who were astonished at the precision of the machine in grinding out business so quickly, no one in the audience had a chance to say anything.

On several occasions there would have been opportunity for discussion from those present but affairs were rushed along by Mayor Warner, who tried to adjourn the meeting twice before LeGaye had finished his discussion and wielded his gavel loudly to end each item of business and hurry to the next.

Soon after LeGaye had urged that the advertising and music ordinance be put up to the voters for approval or rejection, Warner and Penn asked City Clerk Ed Vegely concerning the expense of an election. Vegely replied that it would probably cost about $700 or $800, since the election could be combined with the primaries.

Taxpayers Indignant

When the meeting was ended at 8:25 o'clock, the crowd charged out on the sidewalk and continued the discussion for more than half an hour. The murmur of discontent heard inside the meeting was magnified into heated protest among the sidewalk groups. Although the four majority councilmen had planned to hold a secret budget meeting following the meeting, the continued presence of the crowd outside the council chamber discouraged that thought and the budget confab was held over until this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Edna Franzen, Mrs. Marian Bickford and Mrs. Celia Bryant were elected to represent the local auxiliary at the San Francisco convention, to be held August 13, 14 and 15. Mrs. Elizabeth Appel, Mrs. Louise Osmund and Mrs. Charlotte Adams were elected as alternates.

GRANTS AUTHORITY TO ABANDON ROAD

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(UP)—The Interstate Commerce commission today granted authority to the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad company to abandon approximately two miles of its old San Pedro branch in Long Beach, Los Angeles county, Cal.

Abandonment of the section will eliminate a dangerous crossing of the main track.

The railroad said in its application that the use made of the tracks was not sufficient to justify their continued maintenance and operation.

WORKS "CON" GAME TO GET CLOTHING

Wearing a complete stolen outfit of clothes, a man giving the name of Jack Cupitt is being sought by police, following a report of the alleged theft by C. R. Irby, 414½ West Fourth street.

Cupitt called at Irby's employment agency and told a story of having rented a building and two trucks to start a beer agency, according to Irby. The suspect conferred at length with Irby and several others, finally asking Irby to loan him some good clothes for a few hours. Cupitt left his Santa Ana friends in Los Angeles for a few minutes and never came back.

The clothing lost by Irby included a new suit, white shoes, blue tie and shirt and tie pin and clasp, all valued at $75. The suspect is said to be 5 feet 10 inches tall, 22 years old and having black curly hair.

COTTON INDUSTRY AGREEMENT FAILS

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(UP)—Attempts to bring the cotton ginning industry under a marketing agreement were abandoned by the AAA today. Officials said ginners refused to accept any agreement without a provision authorizing rate fixing.

"The agreement was proposed by the ginners in an earnest effort to correct some of the ills of the industry," Cully A. Cobb, chief of the AAA cotton section, said. "The administration finds itself unable to sanction and enforce fixed rates for ginning services, and as the industry felt this was a primary requirement for the successful operation of the agreement, we have but one alternative—that is, to discontinue our present efforts to effect an agreement."

The opposition stand of ginners developed at a series of hearings held throughout the cotton belt the last at Oklahoma City July 2

KNIGHTS VOTE FOR CLEANER PICTURES

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(UP)—Knights Templar of America, celebrating its 39th triennial convention here, today added its voice to the widespread campaign for cleaner movies.

Speaking on behalf of the order, Dr. Mark A. Matthew, past grand prelate of the Templar Grand encampment, called upon motion picture producers to raise the moral standards of their productions.

Dr. Matthew condemned the producers for catering to "a depraved public sex obsession," and declared that unless they lift the public sentiment to correct this condition, new producers will be secured to furnish motion picture entertainment to the American people.

More than 12,000 delegates from all over the United States and insular possessions are attending the conclave.

THEFT CHARGE AGAINST CASH IS DISMISSED

Petty theft charges concerning a $150 dog were dismissed in justice court yesterday against Dr. N. D. Cash, proprietor of a dog and cat hospital on South Main street.

Dr. Cash had been charged with the theft of a dog by R. R. Burns, following involved litigation and argument over hospital expenses and care of the dog. Since the dog is now dead, and can not be returned to Burns, he moved for dismissal of the charges and had Deputy District Attorney Harold McCabe make the motion in court.

Judge Kenneth Morrison ordered that the hospital expenses put up by Burns for the delivery of the dog, should be refunded.

The trouble started more than a year ago when Burns took his dog to the dog hospital. He filed the petty theft charge in June after Dr. Cash had won a small claims judgment against Burns for the payment of expenses. Burns alleged that the dog had been taken away from the hospital. The dog was later killed on the highway, according to Dr. Cash.

SEEK RETURN OF SUSPECTS IN THEFT CASE

Still hopeful of returning six alleged orange thieves to Orange county for prosecution, deputy sheriffs are in close touch with Los Angeles officers concerning the outcome of the spectacular capture of the men Friday night near Bandini.

It was first believed that all the men were to be brought here yesterday but it was then learned that several or all of the prisoners might have been involved in a ring of fruit thieves surprised near Covina several months ago when one of their numbers was killed by officers. For this reason, further investigation is being made by the Los Angeles deputy sheriffs.

Complaints have been issued for the men on charges of petty theft and will be served as soon as they can be returned here. The prisoners are Matt Arthur Poulson, 35 Solomon J. Sells, 50; Jimmy Fortiner, 25; Fred Simpson, 27; Robert E. Lang, 32, and Jack W. Osborne, 31, all of Los Angeles. A seventh man, Louis Licalso, 50, is held for purchasing stolen fruit but can not be tried here, since his alleged offense occurred in Los Angeles.

The men, riding in two cars, were stopped by gunfire from officers and 16 sacks of fruit were recovered in each car. A total of 85 boxes of fruit believed to have been taken from Orange county groves, was later recovered from a Los Angeles warehouse and 32 additional boxes are expected to be found today.

ONLY 9 DAYS LEFT FOR REGISTRATION

Voters of the county today were urged to attend to any registration details that may be necessary to qualify themselves for participating in the August primary election, registration for which will close July 19, it was pointed out by County Clerk J. M. Backs.

Only nine days remain, Backs reminded the voters, in which to register or to transfer registration if the voter has moved to a new precinct since the last election; also to register changes of address within the same precinct; and to make changes in party affiliation, if desired.

Great Increase In Citrus Fruit Growth In June

Valencia oranges made an unusually large growth on the tree during June, outside fruits making the greatest increase in size that has been measured for June, while inside fruit growth was the greatest of any June that has been measured, excepting 1926.

This was shown today in a table of growth and measured sizes, just issued by D. D. Waynick, of the Association laboratory, and based upon averages of measurements in 10 Valencia groves, mostly in Orange county.

The growth rate for outside fruits for June was .034 and for inside fruits .049. The average of measured sizes in the 10 groves for outside fruit was 2.557 during June 1 to 9, and 2.591 during July 1 to 9. The measurement of inside fruit was 2.422 during June 1 to 9 and 2.471 during July 1 to 9.

"The actual growth rate for the last 30 days is more significant than measured sizes," Dr. Waynick commented, "because of the smaller number of groves remaining in which fruit has not been picked. Growth through June amounted to more than one-third of a packing size. The increased growth for the last 60 days undoubtedly accounts for the large percentage of splits in many groves."

STROUP WILL SPEAK TONIGHT FOR SINCLAIR

Russell C. Stroup, candidate for Congress, will address a rally of the Sinclair forces in Riverside county this evening at the Freemont school in Riverside. Stroup has been touring the neighboring county in the interests of the candidacy of Upton Sinclair and has been received enthusiastically by E. P. I. C. supporters, according to reports from the meetings.

On Friday evening, July 13, the Democrats of Orange county will have the opportunity of hearing Stroup speaking in support of Sinclair at the E. P. I. C. rally in Fullerton.

In a statement today Stroup said of Sinclair, "I am giving my support to Upton Sinclair because I believe him to be the candidate for governor who promises to support most intelligently and practically the program of President Roosevelt. All candidates claim to be "supporting" the President but many of them are simply "leaning" on him. If Sinclair is elected governor, with an opportunity to put his E. P. I. C. program into action, California will be the one state which can say to the President that it will care for its own unemployment problem without coming to the already burdened Federal Government with a tin cup asking for alms."

Adella Proctor Called by Death

Mrs. Adella Proctor, 78, passed away today at the home of her son, Winifield Scott Proctor. She had been a resident of Santa Ana for the past 10 years.

Mrs. Proctor is survived by two children, Mrs. Bertha Reynolds of Huntington Beach and her son Winfield Scott Proctor. Her husband died in Huntington Beach in 1923. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Harrell and Brown.

SUPERVISORS HOLD HUDDLE SESSION TODAY

After spending most of the morning session in a "huddle" the county supervisors today transacted several small items of business.

One was the adoption of a motion by Supervisor George Jeffrey to deed an abandoned strip of the old Coast highway right-of-way in the Aliso section to the bankrupt estate of Joseph Thurston, of Laguna Beach.

This action instead of an abandonment proceeding, was necessary in view of the state's policy of requiring deeds, instead of easements, for rights of way. When the Coast highway was realigned in that section, Thurston donated the right-of-way, under agreement that the abandoned right-of-way would be restored to him.

RACHEL A. MURRELL DIES AT HER HOME

Mrs. Rachel Ann Murrell passed away yesterday at Midway City after a lingering illness. Mrs. Murrell was 80 years of age, and had lived in Midway City for the last 11 years.

Mrs. Murrell is survived by three daughters, Mrs. W. D. Stambaugh and Miss Orta Murrell of Midway City, and Mrs. W. C. Wilcoxen of Ford, Kans.

Services will be held from the Winbigler Funeral Home, 609 North Main street, at 10 a. m. tomorrow with the Rev. Wooten, of the Nazarene church of Midway City officiating. Interment will be in Westminster Memorial Park.

HARBOR FUNDS INCREASED BY FEDERAL MONEY

The $886,235.56 received from the federal government by Orange county officials yesterday, for the Newport harbor project, will be temporarily deposited to the Newport harbor fund in the county treasury, subject to call from the federal government, it was stated today by County Auditor W. T. Lambert.

While the government loaned and granted the amount to the harbor district, the government also allocated $917,000 to the harbor, through the war department as a federal project, and the war department engineers will direct the work, controlling expenditures of both allocations.

The harbor fund in the county treasury already held $43,000, recently appropriated by the county supervisors from county funds, to cover engineering expenses, which were not provided for in the PWA allocation. The county expects to recover this money through receipts from sale of materials dredged from the harbor.

NEGRO BADLY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

W. A. Jones, Santa Ana Negro, received a fractured skull and Gene Morris, Anaheim, was slightly dazed last night when the automobile in which they were riding struck a telephone pole on Lincoln avenue in Anaheim.

Jones and Morris were brought into Anaheim by a passing truck driver and taken to a physician for treatment. Morris was sent to his home and Jones taken to the Orange County hospital.

The accident was reported to Anaheim police by a passing motorist. Few details were available.

URGES USE OF SPLINTS FOR POLIOMYELITIS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Deformities caused by poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis can and should be prevented, if proper splintage is used immediately after the disease has attacked the patient.

Authority for this statement is Dr. Leroy C. Abbott, clinical professor of orthopedic surgery in the University of California Medical school. Treatment, he says, should be started immediately after the onset of paralysis and should consist of absolute bed rest, support of weakened muscles, and the use of splints to prevent deformity.

"Immediately after the disease has attacked the patient," Dr. Abbott emphasizes, "splints made of wire, metal or plaster of Paris, must be applied to the extremities and the trunk held in position to overcome the tendency to deformity.

"Deformity is perhaps one of the main reasons why infantile paralysis is generally regarded as such a hopeless condition by the lay public. These deformities occur because of the unopposed action of gravity, overuse of unparalyzed muscles, which destroys muscle balance, and the habitual assumption of faulty attitudes by the patient. Later, these deformities become fixed by shortening of the muscles and ligaments, and finally by changes in the size, shape and contour of the bones themselves."

The most valuable method of treatment, according to Dr. Abbott, is muscle training. This consists of the carefully guided use of muscles to increase their power of contraction. Exercise to a greatly weakened muscle, however, must be given with caution. Over-exercise and careless handling of the affected extremities are often more harmful than if nothing were done. Such exercising should be done by physical therapists, trained in anatomy, physiology, and the methods of prevention of deformity.

No Lack Of Phosphate In County Soil

Long continued fertilizer experiments with citrus trees, conducted by the University of California Citrus Experiment Station, furnish substantial support for the belief that Southern California soils are well supplied with available phosphate.

Authority for this statement is H. D. Chapman, assistant chemist in the experiment station. His research indicates, however, that it is necessary to apply nitrogenous fertilizers to most California soils to maintain citrus fruit yields and tree vigor.

Substantial gains in phosphate in the citrus orchard soils of the state are attributed to fertilization practices. In the principal citrus areas of Southern California the soils are well supplied with this plant food.

Ten years of differential fertilizer experiments in Orange county, conducted by the Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with local orchards, brought the same conclusion, according to Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg, who supervised the tests. Despite this fact, many citrus growers annually apply large quantities of phosphate or phosphorous-containing materials to their groves.

Results of Chapman's field experiments and laboratory studies are given in agricultural experiment station bulletin 571, "The Phosphate of Southern California Soils in Relation to Citrus Fertilization." Copies may be obtained without cost from the office of the farm advisor at Santa Ana.

ROTARY CLUB IN PLANS FOR FISCAL YEAR

ORANGE, July 10.—Plans for the ensuing year were outlined Monday evening at a special dinner meeting of the Orange Rotary club held in the McFarland cafe. Various committee assignments were made, after which Herbert Harris, past district governor, spoke to the group, giving suggestions for the year's activities.

C. H. Robinson, newly elected president, was in charge of the meeting. He announced that a special program has been arranged for the regular weekly dinner meeting to be held Thursday noon in the American Legion hall, at which time Allen Stelle of San Pedro will speak on the strike conditions on the Pacific coast. The program will be in charge of Donald Smiley.

Mason Fishback, general program chairman, announced that Congressman Sam L. Collins will speak at the July 19 meeting.

STATE TO GET FEDERAL FUNDS FOR ROAD WORK

SACRAMENTO, July 10. — (UP) —Passage by congress of the Hyden-Cartwright bill assured for California the continuation of widespread highway building and improvement work which has done much to relieve unemployment during the past 10 months, according to Earl Lee Kelly, director of public works.

The bill provided for an appropriation of $200,000,000 for emergency construction of highways during the fiscal year 1934-35. Of that amount, California will receive $7,932,206. In addition, the state will receive $4,000,000 for 1935-36, and $4,000,000 for 1936-37.

When the state began its intensive highway construction program last August, it had approximately $34,000,000 to spend. During the past 10 months, the department had spent or contracted to spend about $26,000,000, leaving $8,000,000 to add to the new federal advance of $7,932,206.

This total of $16,000,000 will permit the department to continue its projects through the year. Construction crews will remain about the same in number, and the department itself will not need to discharge anyone for lack of work or funds, Kelly said.

Kelly is strongly in favor of the state taking over all roads. Of the 75,000 miles of highway in California, approximately 14,000 are in the state system. The rest are county roads.

If the legislature should turn all roads over to the public works department, county road taxes could be eliminated, and all highways could be maintained out of the gas tax fund, with 2½ cents going to the state and ½ cent to the cities, Kelly argues. At present cities are apportioned only 1/4 cent of each 3-cent tax, and counties receive one cent, leaving 1 3/4 cents for the state. Some counties, it is claimed, do not use their share for road building, but rely upon additional taxation to meet the highway needs.

Experimentation With Zinc Spray In 2 New Plots

The Aliso Rancho and Bennie Osterman of El Toro have provided two new plots of Valencia trees for further trials of zinc sulphate sprays for mottle leaf control, according to Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg.

"Recent examination of the effects of the zinc sprays applied in December and January show much improvement in the plots located at Yorba Linda, Anaheim and El Toro," he said. "The Garden Grove plots, however, show little or no advantage over the check plots so far. The work is still in an experimental stage. Growers who are interested in this phase of mottle leaf control should by all means make only small trials with sufficient check trees."

Editor, The Register—

Have been a builder all my life, so have learned to make estimates. Have got in the habit so that I estimate every thing from an economical standpoint.

After living in Santa Ana for six years, thought I would find how much waste energy and money there was in business here.

This is what I find from an estimate that several people who have seen my figures say should be doubled.

But I find the people of Santa Ana waste $14,490.00 per month. Now if the chamber of commerce will segregate their business they can save that amount, which would amount to $173,880.00 per year; and put 1639 men and women on a four hour shift.

This is how I get these figures: I take 82 different lines of business. Subtract two-thirds of them and leave the other one-third to handle the trade.

For an illustration, there are 21 drug stores. I cut out 14 of them. Compute the rent at $50; $700 saved. Service stations, 78. Cut out 52. Average rent per month, $25; saved, $1300. Grocery stores, 100. Cut out 75. Average rent $10 per month; save $750. Fifteen big markets. Cut out 10. Average rent per month, $100; save $1000. And so on down the line.

Now I am asked what I am going to do with the idle men. Well that is easy. We will put the two-thirds in one-third of the stores. Tell them to work four-hour shifts, and keep the stores open 12 hours. People will buy the same amount of goods they are buying now. Also whoever gets the saving must buy the vacated property.

If the chamber of commerce really wants to advertise Santa Ana, adopt this system and they will be advertised all over the world; and it will not cost the tax payers a red cent.

Here is what could be saved in Los Angeles, Chicago, New York City, state of California, and in cities of over 30,000 population in the United States, using Santa Ana as a basis, with a population as taken by census in 1930:

Number of men put to work 4 hours per day—Santa Ana, 1639; Los Angeles, 67,199; Chicago, 182,568; New York City, 378,709; state of California in cities of 30,000 or over, 141,617; cities of United States of 30,000 or over, 2,358,500.

Amount of rent saved per month—Santa Ana, $14,490; Los Angeles, $439,090; Chicago, $1,622,880; New York City, $3,347,190; state of California in cities of 30,000 or over, $652,430; cities of United States of 30,000 or over, $15,750,000.

Saving in United States per year, $199,000,000.

SUGGEST BOND VOTE TO MEET DELINQUENCIES

Recommending that the city council take action next Monday in calling an election on bonds to meet the delinquencies on the 1915 improvement bond act, City Attorney Clyde Downing gave a report last night on the latest developments in his investigation of the indebtedness of the city.

Downing said that one of the foremost bond authorities in Los Angeles had ruled that an election for bonds to refund the delinquencies on the 1915 bonds would not be legal. It would be permissible, however, to call an election under an act of 1909 to vote bonds to make an "investment," which would be the paying for the bond delinquencies, Downing said he had been informed.

Before this election could be called, it would be necessary to have a friendly suit in court to test the legality of such an election, Downing said. He pointed out that by acting quickly, the council could have the suit, call the election and have it held in the near future.

Councilman A. F. LeGaye also reported that the proposed conference of bankers would be held probably today or tomorrow, depending on when the banking committee could meet. The city councilmen, city attorney, heads of the four Santa Ana banks and several bonding authorities will meet to discuss the best method of meeting the obligations under the 1915 act.

LeGaye raised the question of legality, in asking why the city council did not have legal right to act now, as it did when the bond improvement districts were passed, instead of being forced to call for a vote.

Downing answered by declaring that under the 1915 act, the city does not guarantee the bonds but must buy up delinquent property and sell it to meet the bond delinquencies.

When asked by LeGaye what wuold happen if the proceeds from the property were less than the delinquencies, Downing replied that the recent Lakeport decision took care of that contingency. This provides that the city is liable for the delinquencies and must levy a tax up to 10 cents per district to repay the delinquencies.

Since the city of Santa Ana is already more than $207,090 delinquent on the bond districts, the councilmen have been warned that some action must be taken. Since the hearing of the Lakeport case has been held over until the end of this year, it is improbable that a possible tax raise would have to be put in effect this year, it is reported.

TAXI COMMISSION MEMBERS NAMED

Councilmen Fred Rowland and Plummer Bruns were named to the taxi commission by Mayor E. G. Warner last night, since the resignation of A. C. Hasenjaeger and elevation of Warner to mayor had left vacancies on the group.

Rowland was named to the post as police commissioner and Bruns as street commissioner. City Attorney Clyde Downing is the third member of the committee, while Police Chief Floyd Howard acts in an advisory capacity.

On the recommendation of Downing, the application of W. R. Crosby, 21, 1023 Custer street for a taxi drivers' permit, was granted by the council. Crosby will drive for the Broadway Cab company.

Grant Permit To Take Donations For Pension Plan

Permission to collect donations for the expressed purpose of spreading of the Townsend old age revolving pension plan from the Santa Ana headquarters at 218 West Fifth street, was asked by and granted to J. T. Nichols by the city council last night.

The application came as the result of the recent passage by the council of a regulation that any organization or group desiring to solicit donations must bring an application before the council.

The motion to grant the application was made by Councilman William Penn.

ATTORNEYS AGAIN INFORM COUNCIL THEY ACTED AT REQUEST OF C .C. GROUP

A group of Chamber of Commerce executives, headed by Supervisor Wm. C. Jerome and including Secretary George Raymer, Ex-Supervisor Chas. H. Chapman, and Postmaster T. E. Stephenson had asked Attorneys O. A. Jacobs and Chas. D. Swanner to oppose the proposed city election for a vote upon filling positions of the four appointed councilmen, it was disclosed last night.

The disclosure, which followed denials by Secretary Raymer that such a request had been made by the Chamber, came in a written opinion on the election question submitted to the council last night by Jacobs and Swanner.

The request came originally from Jerome, and later was concurred in by Raymer, Chapman, Stephenson and others, and the oral opinion of the attorneys was given to the council last Thursday night at a budget meeting. It was "given upon the request of the group of gentlemen at said meeting who were representing the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants Division of Santa Ana" the letter submitted last night declared.

Jacobs' and Swanner's opinion, accepted with thanks by members of the council last night, is as follows:

"In accordance with your request for a written opinion on the election law regarding vacancies and appointments to the city council, after the oral opinion given by Charles D. Swanner and O. A. Jacobs to the city council at its informal meeting Thursday, July 5, 1934, which was given upon the request of the group of gentlemen at said meeting who were representing the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants Division of Santa Ana, am pleased to render such opinion in accordance with my views previously expressed.

"Section 754 of Act 5233, of the General Laws, provides as follows: 'Any vacancy occurring in any of the offices provided for in this act shall be filled by appointment by the board of trustees; but if such office be elective, such appointee shall hold office only until the next regular election, at which time a person shall be elected to serve for the remainder of such unexpired term. In case a member of the board of trustees is absent from the city for a period of 90 days, unless by permission of the board of trustees, his office shall by the board be declared vacant, and the same filled as in case of other vacancies.'

"The question then presented under this act is what the legislature meant by 'the next regular election.' In accordance with the law, it appears that there are only two kinds of elections, 'general election' and 'special election,' and does not make provisions or give a definition of 'regular election.' Political Code, Section 1041, defines a 'general election' as follows: 'There must be held throughout the state, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November, in the year eighteen hundred and eighty, and in every second year thereafter, an election, to be known as the general election.'

"And gives the definition of 'special election' as follows: 'Special elections are such as are held to supply vacancies in any office, and are held at such times as may be designated by the proper board or officer.'

"However, our Supreme Court has had occasion in the case of People vs. Lynch, 114 California Reports, at Page 168, to cite several authorities from out of state cases, defining the term 'regular election.' A Kansas case is cited and quoted as follows: 'The words 'regular election' do not necessarily mean general election or township election. They simply mean the regular election prescribed by law for the election of the particular officer to be elected.'

"In citing a Florida case, the following quotation is given: 'When it is declared that the city council shall fill vacancies until the next regular election, it means until the next regular election provided by the charter for electing the officer whose term has been vacant.'

"The nearest case we have in California which might decide this question as to the meaning of the term 'regular election' is found in the case of People vs. Babcock, in 123 California Reports, at page 307, in which our supreme court construed the term 'regular election' under an act of the city and county of San Francisco referring to the appointment of the superintendent of schools by the board of education to fill a vacancy. In filling this vacancy, the board of education specified, 'to fill the vacancy until the regular election then next following.'

"In this particular case the next regular election was a general state election and also a general municipal election, and the proclamation for the municipal election included the office for superintendent of schools. In affirming this election for superintendent of schools and in their opinion, the supreme court states: 'In the case of any particular statute the construction can be determined only by considering the context in which the word is found, the purpose of the statute and the object which it was designed to accomplish. The next regular election may mean the election at which officers are to be regularly elected, or 'regular' may be used merely to exclude special elections, or it may be used synonymously or inter-changeably with the word 'general.'

"They further make a quotation of the particular section under discussion and state as follows: 'If regular election is here to be construed as the election at which this class of officers is regularly chosen, then in cases of some officers contemplated by the charter, the regular election could only be at the end of the term and the provision that a person shall be elected to serve for the remainder of the unexpired terms would be meaningless. These instances are given not as having any determinative force upon the question here presented, but in illustration of the fact that the phrase 'regular election' has no fixed and inflexible meaning.'

"This decision was rendered in 1899, at which time general municipal elections for members of the board of trustees were held every two years. In other words, the terms were staggered. Section 754 of the act at this time could not be mis-interpreted and the intention of the legislature was clear by reason of the fact that a general municipal election was held every two years. In 1903, Section 752 of the act was amended so that after 1907 the staggered system was abolished and we now have the board of trustees all elected every four years. Therefore, the force and effect of Section 754 was taken away and an appointee would hold office until the next general municipal election. This in view of the fact that Section 752 then specified and now specifies that the board of trustees shall be elected at a general municipal election.

"The only construction, therefore, that can now be placed upon Section 754 as to the term 'regular election' is that it means the next general municipal election as it meant previous to the amendment.

"The supreme court in conclusion of their opinion in the case of People vs. Babcock, state as follows: " 'Regular election' as thus employed, then, is synonymous with 'general election.' Whether it be a general state election or a general municipal election, it is unnecessary here to determine, since the election at which the relator was elected was both a general state election and a general municipal election.'

"From the foregoing decisions, the writers have come to the conclusion that 'regular election' as used in Section 754 of Act 5233 can only be given the meaning intended by the legislature at the time the act was passed, and means the next general municipal election occurring in April, 1935."

GRANT USE OF BIRCH PARK TO CANDIDATES

Use of Birch park for political speeches following band conecrts was granted to James Davis, acndidate for congress on the Democratic ticket, and to George Creel, Democratic candidate for governor, by the city council last night.

The Davis application was made by H. R. Harwood ann called for the speaking privilege on August 23. The Creel-for-Governor club asked for the August 16 date at the park.

Previously, the council had issued a standing invitation to political candidates, especiall those for governor, to use the park as guests of the city.

Gospel Mission Changes Location

Removal of the Gospel Mission from 314 East Fourth street to a temporary tent location at Edinger and South Main street, was approved by the city council last night following application of Charles L. Coleman, director of the mission.

Termination of a lease in the present location was cited by Coleman for moving his mission. Permission of adjoining property owners in the new location was presented and no objection was voiced to the erection of the large tent for the summer months.

Coleman has announced that nightly services will be held at 7:30 p. m., starting tomorrow night.

GARDEN GROVE

A picnic dinner was enjoyed Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hall on Seventeenth street by their family, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hall and son, Donald, of Anaheim.

SECRET BUDGET MEET SOUGHT BY 4 HORSEMEN

The Four Horsemen on the city council do not want to discuss budget items and the proposed $4250 donation to the Chamber of Commerce at an open public meeting when taxpayers are present to air their views on the question.

This was shown last night, at the council meeting, when no opportunity was given spectators to give their views of the Chamber of Commerce budget request and the matter was dodged entirely.

Instead of bringing up the question which held the interest of the taxpayer delegation, Mayor E. G. Warner attempted to close the meeting a couple of times to head off Councilman A. F. LeGaye's discussion of election and advertising questions, and declared the meeting adjourned at 8:25 o'clock the meeting lasting less than an hour.

After the meeting had been summarily adjourned, the word was passed to councilmen that a budget huddle would be held after the crowd had adjourned, and that all but LeGaye waited around a half hour for such a meeting.

But the crowd of taxpayers, apparently riled at the treatment accorded them and anxious to discuss the meeting and the questions which had been ignored, stood about on the sidewalk.

Finally, seeing no secret meeting could be held to discuss the budget at that time, the Four Horsemen postponed the budget huddle until this afternoon at 2 o'clock, to be held in the office of City Auditor Lloyd Banks.

CHAPTER ONE

THE lilacs were budding as Monnie walked down High street. She took off her hat and swung it from her fingers, letting the May breeze ruffle the little bronze curls around her forehead. Spring again! It was glorious after the long winter. Spring—and Dan Cardigan's irregular, tormenting wooing would begin once more. Monnie's wayward heart thumped uncomfortably. Dan had been in Cleveland all winter. Now he would be back—was in fact, on his way at the moment. Monnie tried not to dance at the thought. Dan with his handsome, sullen face, those long-lashed blue eyes whose glance had the power to make her smile or weep, would be staring down at her in a few hours.

"Where you goin,' Miss O'Dare" The mocking voice of Laura Grayling challenged her. Laura was 50, prim, an acid spinster. Monnie flushed. She felt that Miss Laura could see straight through her, knew all her thoughts. She said demurely, "Just hurrying home to supper. Lovely evening, isn't it?"

"I thought," said Miss Laura, "that you must be goin' to a fire. You nearly knocked me down."

"I'm so sorry," murmured Monnie. "I—I was thinking of something else, I guess."

She hurried along, her cheeks like peonies.

Two more blocks—then home. She hoped Mom's headache would be better. And that Kay would be in a better temper. And that Mark would have passed his exams. And that Bill would be home. Poor Bill! He worked so hard. He was two years older than Monnie, who was 20. He had gone to work at 16 when Mr. O'Dare died, very suddenly, in the night. Bill had wanted to go to college. He had been eagerly ambitious but his ambitions had carried him only as far as the big new garage at Broad street and Vine, the one with the little brick house and the flaring red pumps. Bill was an "expert mechanic" now and proud of it. He tended the ailments of sick cars as a good physician does his patients. He had developed into a silent, rather brusque young man with a perpetual black rim under his fingernails.

Only Monnie and her mother suspected what went on under that fair thatch. Belvedere, like so many small towns all over these United States, had its fair share of snobbery. Bill belonged to no particular group. He could not "go with" the crowd on the hill—the Waynes and the Millisons and the Blagdens—because he worked in a garage. Hank Wayne and Lucy Millison and Ernest and John Blagden went away to college, as did most of the other young people from the Hill. When they came home from school at Christmas time or during the summer holidays they had a series of parties which were duly recorded in the Belvedere Argus. Miss Anstice Cory, who had been society editor of the Argus for 20 years, delighted in their doings. Monnie always read about the parties. The young people who lived on the Hill seemed to her a golden group, enviable beyond belief.

MARK O'DARE, who was 13 and in his freshman year at High School, was a little too young to feel the pinch of poverty as the others did. It was Kay, 16, golden-haired, a junior in the tall stone High School, who minded most of all. Kay hated being left out of things . . . hated living on the wrong side of town in the shabby little shingled cottage which had been the only thing left to the O'Dares when "darling Papa" had gone.

Monica O'Dare sighed. The day had been warm and business in Mr. Vernon's drug store, where she worked, had been unusually brisk. She was tired. She did hope things would be smooth at home. She wanted to look fresh and unworried the first time Dan saw her after an absence of months. She shivered, thinking of all the girls Dan must have met during the winter in Cleveland. Dan was "learning the business" in his uncle's mills. He was 21, the Cardigans' only son. They were proud of him, and Dan, it must be admitted, was rather proud of himself. He had left an eastern college the year before to go into "The Works" and it was felt, in the family, that the boy had done a fine thing.

Monica wondered, for the hundredth time, how she had had the great luck to attract Dan. Hadn't she been in love with him for years—since second year high school, really? And hadn't it seemed the most fantastic dream come true, two years ago, when Dan had first begun to notice her?

She went over the scene in her mind again. She cherished it. It had been during the first week she had clerked at the drug store. It was July. High school commencement was just behind her. She had been, she remembered, wearing a thin white dress—dotted swiss. It was her class day dress. Her mother hadn't wanted her to wear it to work, had said that it was highly unsuitable. But Monica, with a gentle persistence that surprised even herself, had worn it. Something had told her to look her best that day. Maybe it was the knowledge that Dan Cardigan was back in town.

SHE had been arranging the perfume bottles in the case, her back turned to the door, when she heard his voice. That slow, deep drawl had set her pulses pounding. She went on, fingering the squat crystal containers, afraid to turn around and betray what she was feeling. Then she heard Mr. Vernon's good-natured, "Guess there's somebody you know here, Dan. Meet my new helper. Guess you two know each other."

She had turned, hoping the nervous pulse in her throat, now beating madly, didn't reveal itself. She had been rewarded for her calm demureness by a flash of interest in Dan Cardigan's smoldering eyes. Her own, velvet lashed, with their amber depths, were lifted innocently to his.

"God, make him like me, make him like me!" she had prayed, with simple fervor.

Well, he had. And he did—she hoped! Perhaps this summer, this week, things would be settled between them. Perhaps—it might be as simple as this—Dan would come to see her tonight and say: "Let's cut down to High Springs Saturday and be married."

He hadn't asked her yet, in so many words. But everyone in town knew she was "Dan Cardigan's girl." Everyone expected him to ask her. Only Monnie, herself, sometimes felt a sick pang of apprehension. When they were together it was all right. Dancing or riding down the yellow roads in Dan's old roadster. It was when she was alone, when her mother looked at her anxiously, worriedly, not speaking her thoughts, that Monnie knew terror—terror at the thought of losing Dan.

She turned in, at length, between the ragged lines of privet that bordered the red brick walk, and went, with brisk step, toward the little white house. For the thousandth time she thought the same thoughts; that the house ought to be painted; that they ought to have new canvas on the old porch swing; that the hedge needed trimming; that mother's petunias were hardier than any others on Denny street.

It was a nice little house, a trifle shabby it is true, but home, for all that. If Monnie longed for the fleshpots of "the Hill" she gave no outward sign of it. Not for the world would she have hurt her mother's feelings. The O'Dares had been used to better things. Before Papa's death they had had a trimmed brick house farther out, with sloping lawns, and a colored man to keep the borders tidy. Papa had had a little car, too, and they had been a prosperous little family. Now everything was changed. Monnie, in spite of her few years, had a burden to carry. Bill helped but it was Monnie to whom the mother looked for everything.

"Hello, there!" She hung her hat on the outmoded "hall tree" (how she hated that thing) and passed through to the kitchen. Mrs. O'Dare was at the stove, stirring something. There was a mingled smell of cooking food. Beets bubbled in a big pot and from the oven floated the odor of meat loaf.

"Hot!" Monnie said simply, pushing back the ringlets of bronze hair and sighing. She was wishing, this night, for cool food on silver salvers, for a great high moon with silvery green curtains swishing at the windows and a man's face (it wore Dan's features) smiling down at her. She saw herself wearing organdie of palest silk, flowing to her toes. There were blue slippers on her feet.

"Mo-ther!" The shrill, girlish voice of Kay brought Monnie abruptly back to earth. Kay stood in the doorway, her youthful bosom heaving with some real or fancied grievance, her eyes, gentian-blue where Monnie's were amber-dark, smoldering.

"Mo-ther! You said you'd press my linen and you didn't!"

MONNIE compressed her lips. "Why didn't you do it yourself? You know Mother's worn out as it is!"

Mrs. O'Dare intervened.

"I'm sorry, honey. I didn't seem to get around to it. I was on the go all day." Her fine, delicately lined face was flushed and tired. Monica felt a surge of affection for her and with it the familiar flare of impatience Kay's unreasonableness so often evoked.

"I'll do it after supper," Mrs. O'Dare said gently.

Monnie swung. "You won't do any such thing! You'll go and lie down while Kay and I do the dishes. You had that bad headache yesterday and you're a wreck now." Her eyes blazed into Kay's. It was all very well to sympathize with the younger girl (Monnie did—more passionately, than she dared admit) but this bullying of their mother was more than she could bear.

She followed the sulking youngster into the hall, shutting the door behind her. In a low voice she said, "How can you, Kay? You know she's tired out. Dr. Allen said—"

Kay shrugged her shoulders. Petulantly she muttered, "All you care about it getting your own way. If you were going out with Dan Cardigan it'd be a different story."

Monnie flushed a deep scarlet. What did Kay know about Dan's arrival back in town? The unfairness of her sister's attitude cut her deeply.

DAN CARDIGAN

"Dan's back in town," Kay said spitefully. "And I bet he never even telephoned you."

Monnie's heart began to beat thickly, painfully. She felt almost suffocated. But she managed to say, with dignity,

"I knew he was coming. I heard from him the other day."

Kay smiled wisely. "Bet you didn't see him driving down Main street with Sandra about half-past two? Oh no, he wouldn't bother to come around — not till he's good and ready. And when he comes he'll find you waiting right where he left you."

Sandra—Dan—that very afternoon! Monnie couldn't believe it. Sandra had been in the store at noon, hadn't said anything at all about expecting Dan. There was only one train he might have come on and that was the early morning one. Then why hadn't he called her?

She felt quite sick. A little warning pulse in her temple began to throb.

Kay plunged on: "Bet he'd sing a different tune if he came here, just once, and found you'd gone out with someone else. But no, you're always ready and waiting, whenever he happens to take a notion to drop around! I should think you'd have more—"

"Kay!" A quiet voice interrupted this tirade. Mrs. O'Dare, pale but with a certain grimness about her gentle mouth, stood in the doorway, staring at her younger daughter. Kay wilted. "I'm sorry, Mom," she said. "I didn't mean it—"

"You run along and finish setting the table," Mrs. O'Dare said in a cool voice. Kay went. Monnie, whose knees had begun to feel oddly like straw, sat down on the little old Windsor chair beside the door.

"Maybe if you'd have time for a bath before supper," Mrs. O'Dare began doubtfully, "you'd feel better. You're tired out. I've got the heater lighted."

SHE went upstairs with a step determinedly swift. Not for worlds would she let any of them know what it cost her to hide the hurt in her heart. Dan back—and he hadn't called her! When she was fairly aching for the sight of him, for the clasp of his hand! Maybe Kay had been mistaken, maybe she had been merely spiteful! But no, even Kay in a tantrum was not likely to invent the spectacle of Dan and Sandra Lawrence together.

At the thought Monnie's pulses began to hammer and that feeling of sinking—sinking—smote her once more. Sandra, who was so cool and sure of herself, who after a year at finishing school in the east had gone to Paris to return clanking with bracelets, redolent of strange, alluring scents, wearing the most extreme and bizarre costumes Belvedere had seen these many moons.

Monnie quieted the raging tumult within her. 'Dan and Sandra—why, there was nothing to it. They belonged to the same crowd, knew the same people. It was only the merest accident, probably, that they had met that day. Sandra knew how Dan felt about Monnie. Didn't she stop in at the store often to whisper charmingly, "I suppose you've heard from someone in the city? I knew that was why you looked so pretty today."

Monnie was proud of Sandra's friendship. Sandra, who could know anyone and was invited everywhere, who was so clever and might have been a writer or an artist if she put her mind to it (she said so herself). Only Sandra had been born to money. Te Lawrences owned the paper mills out on the River road and Sandra, last of the line, lived with her father in the handsome stone pile on the Hill. Near the Cardigans. That was how she happened to know Dan so well. Dan—Dan—Dan!

Monnie ran water in the tub and sifted in a handful of pine-needle salts. Maybe he would call, any minute now. People always did telephone the instant you got into the tub. She shut off the faucet, struck by the dreadful thought that she might miss him. But mother would know how important it was. Mother would call her!

Trembling with excitement, Monnie dashed through her bath, slipping into clean underthings and donned the coolest of her few frocks, a last year linen that had been lilac tinted when new and was now the color of late evening sky.

"Monnie!" That was Kay's voice, on the landing.

"Coming!" Monnie sang, almost gayly.

Kay linked her arm in that of her elder sister. "I'm sorry I was so nasty," she said, very low. "I didn't mean it. Only—only—everything's so rotten—"

Monnie stifled the alarm she felt. "How do you mean?"

Kay sniffed. "Oh, this miserable town and the people and the way you get high-hatted if you're poor. I'm going to get out of it—"

THEY were almost at the foot of the stairs now. Monnie warned: "Don't let Mother hear you!" She thought, "Poor kid! I must do something for her—must help her to have a good time."

They all sat down. Monnie looked around, her eyes questing.

"Bill?"

She thought her mother's smile seemed forced.

"He phoned he had to work and would get something to eat near the shop."

Mark, freckled, red-haired, put in, mischievously, "Bet he's got a girl over at Snowden. Bet he has."

Kay frowned at him.

"Well, if he has," said Mrs. O'Dare tranquilly, "I hope she's a nice girl and I hope she likes him."

"He hasn't been seeing much of Gertrude lately, has he?" Monnie asked, attacking her plate with the zest of healthy youth. She felt rested now, she felt she might put her worries and fears behind her in this blest atmosphere of home.

Mrs. O'Dare answered the question. "I don't think so," she said. "Gertrude passed me at church Sunday in a great hurry—didn't even stop to speak. I thonght—I guessed—she was hurt about something. She's a sweet girl—and very fond of Bill."

Mrs. O'Dare always tried to speak well of everyone. Her children knew that. That was why they held their tongues about Gertrude. Privately all three were just a little pleased to know that the affair of Bill and Gertrude was waning. Gertrude was plump and prim and talkative—although the traits did not seem to go together. Monnie, especially, felt Bill deserved something better than Gertrude. Why, there wasn't the tiniest scrap of glamour in an affair like this. Suppose Bill should marry and settle down — marry Gertrude, that is—and begin to raise a family right there in Belvedere! He'd be doomed. He wouldn't have a chance. Bill wanted to learn, to do something big, to visit far-off places and make a name for himself. Marriage with Gertrude Hampstead would finish him, once and for all.

INTO Monnie's reverie clanged the shrilling telephone bell. Kay made a half movement to answer it, but fell back as she saw her sister's eager expression. Monica tried to move slowly, not to seem too excited, but her hand trembled as she lifted the receiver.

"Hello?" She made her voice sound cool and impersonal. Dan must not know she had been waiting for him so patiently.

"Oh, yes?" There was flatness in her tone now. Kay recognized it. So did their mother, listening in spite of herself. "Yes. Yes. I'll tell him. Thanks."

She hung up, hating to go back to the table. She managed a smile of fictitious brightness. "That was Hank Robinson. He wants Bill to call him."

Mrs. O'Dare said she would tell him. She did not look at Monnie.

"No dessert for me, thanks," Kay chattered, helping to remove plates. She was, Monnie could see, making conversation, trying to bridge over the awkward moment. Kay could be kind when she wasn't thinking entirely of herself.

"—and they say he's frightfully rich. Awfully good-looking. He's something like Gary Cooper—" Who was Kay talking about? Monnie sat up, began to listen.

"He's taken the old Waterman place out on the River road." Kay chattered. "Doesn't seem to do anything much. Stretches out in a deck chair in the morning and goes riding in the afternoon."

"What's his name?" Mrs. O'Dare inquired. Her life was so restricted now that she welcomed news of the outside.

Kay wrinkled her brows. "I'll swear I knew it this morning," she offered, "but I can't think of it at the moment. We were standing on the school steps when he rode by. Allie Niles said he smiled at her—"

FAR EAST

Japan has made a proposition to the United States that is chock full of international significance.

Tokyo wants Uncle Sam to enter into what amounts to an non-aggression pact. If there is any squeamishness about titling it "non-aggression," the Nipponese are perfectly willing to sign an arbitration treaty.

The point is that the Japs want assurances we won't mess into any trouble in their part of the world. International pulse feelers will tell you they are finally getting ready to square off with Soviet Russia.

Just before he left for Tokyo to report to the home office Ambassador Hiroshi Saito put the proposition up the State Department. The ambassador made a customary goodbye call on President Roosevelt. He mentioned the subject further at the White House.

Saito wasn't content with laying this groundwork. He paid a visit to Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. The senate would have to ratify such a treaty and Saito wanted a tip on the probable reaction of that august body. This isn't exactly according to diplomatic Hoyle. An envoy representing a smaller nation would be snapped up by the state department for trying to deal directly with the senate.

Our officials didn't jump avidly at the idea of a non-aggression treaty. In the past—notably when the French made a similar proposition—senatorial reaction has been anything but kindly. An inherent suspicion of international love pacts has pervaded our upper house for years.

The United States had an arbitration agreement with Japan up to 1929. Both parties agreed to undertake all possible mediation steps in any dispute before resorting to arms. This government wanted to renew the treaty. A hitch developed when our state department suggested a clause recognizing the Monroe Doctrine.

Tokyo promptly countered with a proposal that a Japanese Monroe Doctrine, giving them similar authority over her section of the Far East, be included. The Japs knew this would never get past the American senate and finally suggested it would be best to forget the whole business rather than stir up adverse national sentiment in both countries. They pointed out the Kellogg multi-lateral agreement would substitute anyway.

CUTS

Naval authorities are not fooled by Tokyo extolling the "moderate" and "conservative" qualities of Admiral Okada, new Japanese premier. They found him a tough customer at Geneva in 1932, when naval angles of disarmament were discussed. He plainly foreshadowed Japan's demand for naval parity and stated that Japan wanted plenty of submarines.

The fact that a naval expert is put at the head of Japan's government is regarded here as evidence that a steel-hard policy will be pursued.

Both Japan and Great Britain would like to cut down the size of battleships, to which Uncle Sam objects. If this common aim should swing Britain behind Japan in demanding parity, which is still more objectionable to Uncle Sam, somebody will have to be very skillful in devising compromises if next year's conference does not result in calling off all naval limitation agreements.

QUARTERS

Former President Hoover was the butt of many a jibe over the multitudinous commissions he appointed. So far as President Roosevelt is concerned one of two things has happened. The boys have either lost their sense of humor in this connection or have decided the joke has worn thin.

The ever-growing alphabetical setup of the Roosevelt administration has created a housing problem here in Washington. Further, it is costing the government hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in rental of miscellaneous office buildings.

During the past week the newest arrivals—the Stock Market Commission, the Communications Commission, the Aviation Commission, etc.—have been chasing around with their carpet bags pleading for quarters. Secretary Ickes, in charge of locating emergency organizations, finally said in mock desperation he would have to pitch tents if any more arrived.

Hampered by building trades strikes Uncle Sam is trying to erect a complete set of new government buildings along Pennsylvania Avenue, but even they may not be able to carry the load.

NRA is keeping six whole Department of Commerce divisions out of their own building. The C. C. C. moved into the new Post Office building almost before Jim Farley had a chance to try out his green shower bath.

All of this is creating lots of new jobs despite the Democratic campaign pledge to consolidate and retrench. But you might as well walk—cerfainly don't run—if you'd like to get on the payroll. There are lots of boys and girls here already ahead of you.

CALLS

One of the closest guarded secrets of the Treasury Department is the date on which the Comptroller of Currency calls for the condition of national banks. The reason is obvious. It is to prevent any advance window dressing in anticipation of the examiners' arrival.

Imagine everyone's surprise the other day when the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation sent out a circular calling for a report from state bank members, issuing it so far in advance they had to mark it "hold for release."

Some of the banks got a little panicky. To reassure them, Chairman Crowley announced the call was not a preliminary to additional assessments on insured banks at this time. He failed to mention there probably will be an extra levy on October first.

NURSE

The Federal Information Service of the National Emergency Council tries to answer all questions of the citizenry concerning their government. Some of the inquiries received, considering the bulk of business, naturally are a little screwy. Here was a poser arriving the other day:

"Please tell me," wrote an ambitious woman, "how I can get a job as a nurse aboard a battleship."

NOTES

The government will greatly increase its allotment of relief funds for unemployed teachers....Ahmet Muhtar Bey, late Turkish ambassador to Washington, now dead at Angora, once saved the life of Mustapha Kemal Pasha when Muhtar was governor of Istanbul ....Interest on the public debt now amounts to $1,223,000,000 a year....Senator Borah's radio speech made the G.O.P. unhappy too....New dealers are delighted by two court decisions refusing to invalidate the act eliminating the gold clause from contracts....But the judges put the question up to the supreme court.

SHOCK

New York conservatives are privately much upset about the new industrial emergency committee and Donald Richberg's elevation in the Washington scheme.

They feel like a child who expected candy and got its ears boxed instead. Their plans for remodelling NRA to their own pattern of self-rule for business and gently easing the government out of the industrial picture are suddenly up against a steep and rocky climb instead of the anticipated easy coasting.

They had been so sure things were coming their way. Secretary Roper and conservative Democrats in congress had privately indicated sympathy with their aims. The Hot Springs conference of business leaders last month was marked by confident talk about how the president had seen the light and would alter his course gradually—so as not to disturb public sentiment—to fit their ideas. So the appointment of a committee composed entirely of planned economy advocates to map the future relations of government and business was a painful shock.

CRUMB

There will be a lot of references to Richberg as acting president but the wise take no stock in them. What matters to Wall Street is his role as chief guide for the permanent New Deal trail. It isn't likely that he'll do anything very important in the next few months. But his influences on government policy next year and thereafter will probably leave an enduring mark on the American business structure.

When Richberg first appeared in the Washington setup New York was highly suspicious. He was classed as a labor sympathizer—therefore a radical—and his early remarks about the government running business if business proved incapable of running itself sharpened conservative fears. Since then business leaders have found him more reasonable and realistic and the original hostility to him has abated. But he remains definitely a liberal—and that's almost as bad from the New York slant as being an out-and-out socialist.

The same criticism applies to emergency committee members Perkins, Ickes and Hopkins from the viewpoint of those who want to free industry from regulation. Insiders doubt that General Johnson—for all his color—will cut much ice in committee deliberations.

Hopeful conservatives manage to find one crumb of comfort in the committee's makeup. "At least it won't be Tugwell or Frankfurter's bright young men who have the fate of business in their hands."

EARS

Plenty of secret confabulating among leaders of the projected conservative comeback is due in the next few weeks to decide how to deal with the Richberg menace. It isn't clear yet what form the counter-attack will take but you can bet your last collar-button there'll be one. Chances favor tactics of boring from within rather than open opposition to the emergency committee.

In that case Mr. Richberg and his associates will be in for a prolonged siege of the most ingenious and convincing arguments business can think up to prove that a permanent planned economy is bound to be a terrible flop. A banker cracks that the committee would do well to hire professional listeners if it doesn't want to lose its ears through overwork.

GERMANY

Financial experts say that Germany's economic plight is desperate and look for drastic moves to try to save the situation.

One such move might be a government declaration that foreign trade is henceforth a government monopoly—accompanied by removal of the mark from foreign exchange just as was done with the rouble in Russia. This might east the situation temporarily but insiders doubt that any remedy will effect a lasting cure as long as political complications impede the functioning of normal trade channels.

WHITEWASH

The long-heralded New York state utility investigation is working out as insiders expected. The equal division of the investigating committee between Democrats and Republicans blocked the choice of either Ferdinand Pecora or Samuel Seabury as counsel—exactly what it was supposed to do. Informed cynics comment that either Pecora or Seabury might have been too enterprising for the committee's comfort.

This is no personal reflection on John E. Mack—Roosevelt Democrat who got the job. But Mr. Mack is not so ambitious to make a killing for the sake of his record and presumably won't try so hard to get around the obstacles which will be skilfully strewn in his path.

It's a 10 to 1 shot the committee will go through a lot of exciting motions and wind up by giving all concerned a reduction of nervous strain. Also that facts dug up now will be more useful in '36.

STRATEGY

There's a lot of whispering in local Republican circles about running Samuel Seabury for governor against Herbert Lehman. Take it with a carload of salt.

Kingsland Macy—who is fostering the Seabury candidacy—knows perfectly well the upstate Republicans will never swallow a Democratic flag-bearer in such a crucial year. The strategy is to scare them good and plenty with the Seabury menace so they'll be glad to take an authentic Republican liberal instead. It's about the only way a liberal can be put over peacefully.

Sometimes a fine seems positively painless as an alternative to jail.

WARNING

Wall Street is chuckling at the forthrightness of President-elect Lopez of Colombia. He was recently guest of honor at a New York dinner sponsored by those who have or hope to get commercial concessions in his country. Lopez's speech—instead of the usual airy nothings—contained a kindly warning that if the boys expected him to play Santa Claus when he took office they'd better guess again.

It was so delicately done that his hosts couldn't take offense but they feel he means it—in which case what was the use of giving him a party?

How New Tire SENSATION smashes DEPRESSION BARRIERS!

Tremendous welcome of new "G-3" — marvel tire that gives 43% more non-skid mileage — keeps Goodyear factories and dealers on jump!

Warning!

Look at the NON-SKID in the center of this tread—the spot that counts, because that's where the tread contacts the ground. When it comes to safety, insurance figures show that 5½ times as many accidents are due to skidding as to blowouts and punctures combined. Remember this when others try to duplicate what the "G-3" gives you: You have to have "NON-SKID" before any tire can give you "NON-SKID MILEAGE" and safety—and you have to have Goodyear Supertwist beneath this type of tread to make it a real success.

A 1934 success story that shows how the American people will buy when you build what they want

LANK and angular he stood there—one of the nation's greatest research engineers. Conviction shone in his eyes as he spoke these words:

"If it were up to me to whip depression, I'd put a big billboard in front of every factory in the land, with this burning message: 'GIVE US SOMETHING NEW AND GOOD AND WE WILL BUY IT'—signed 'THE AMERICAN PUBLIC'."

There is more than psychology in that statement—there is truth—and here's the finest evidence in the world—the evidence of sales.

How a tire started a stampede

Ten weeks ago people opened their morning papers and read the story of a new tire—a spectacular tire—known by the factory job number "G-3".

Eagerly eyes ran through the facts—for here was something the people wanted—a tire proved by grueling days and nights on the test fleet—a tire with 43% longer non-skid mileage than the former All-Weather—a tire that kept its grip twice as long as other tires tested against it.

Then things happened! By the thousands and tens of thousands car owners headed for Goodyear dealers. All over the country they demanded the new "G-3".

This is no exaggeration. You should see the reports that rolled into headquarters at Akron. Excited dealers wrote, wired, called in by phone.

"We're breaking sales records!" "We're swamped with business!" "We're having the biggest sales in history!" "We're selling whole sets of the new "G-3"." "Sold 37 tires"—"sold 50 tires"—"sold 200 tires the first day," ran the figures from all over the country.

All over the country... car owners headed for Goodyear dealers

The "G-3" is the answer to the motorist's prayer. W. D. W., Salisbury, Pa.

The non-skid stayed on these "G-3's" longer than any tire I ever used. H. S. H., Myers, Fla.

I have received 50% more non-skid from these "G-3's" than I ever got before. H. T. H., Adena, O.

These tires have run 21,000 miles . . . the non-skid still appears on the tread. R. H., Orlando, Fla.

. . . the other day I saved myself from a serious accident because of the wonderful grip on your new "G-3". O. G., Portland, Ore.

After 15,000 miles of hard use, much of it at high speed, these "G-3" tires have plenty of tread left. S.O.S., Portland, Ore.

. . . I have received more than double the mileage . . . and the diamond tread is still showing. A. G. R., Clarksburg, W. Va.

. . . these "G-3" tires have delivered the best non-skid mileage that I have ever obtained. E. M. W., Hartford, Conn.

After 15,000 miles the tread on these "G-3" tires looks almost like new. Any previous tires were smooth or went out of service before 15,000 miles. J. P. S., Portsmouth, O.

What you get in the "G-3" All-Weather

Such instantaneous success sprang from this vital fact—Goodyear actually had a wonder tire—had actually spent close to two years developing, testing, perfecting it.

And here's what this great new "G-3" gives you:

A broader, flatter, heavier tread—

A tread with 16% more non-skid blocks in the center—

A tread with the extra-durability and extra-resilience of patented Goodyear Supertwist beneath it to stand up under the extra weight and strain—

A tread that gives 43% more miles of real non-skid safety at no extra cost!

Any wonder this "G-3" is a sensation! Any wonder more people are buying the new "G-3" than any other tire in the world!

Coaching schools, popularized by the late Knute Rockne following the war, do much toward advancement of football, keeping interest in it alive during the summer and ballyhooing the approaching season.

Carl Brubaker and Harry Newman, gridiron and basketball guides of Shaker Heights and Collinwood high schools of Cleveland, respectively, will conduct one at the former institution, situated in a fashionable suburb, from August 8 to 17.

The Shaker Heights course is practically the same as those presented in all sections of the country, starting with the close of school in June and running until September. Circulars are mailed to high and preparatory schools and college mentors. They may enroll for football or basketball for $10, and for both for $15.

Wells' squad, champion of the Hoosier state, will demonstrate his blocking game, and combination of sliding zone and man-for-man defense.

FAMOUS COACHES BUSY

Little is to be in charge of a school at Columbia before coming to Cleveland, and will go from here to Northwestern university, where, from August 13 to 25, he, Fritz Crisler of Princeton, and Dick Hanley will tell ambitious pigskin instructors how to score, once their team is inside the enemy's 20-yard line and impart other secrets of the great intercollegiate sport.

Crisler taught a similar class at Utah State last month. Noble Kiser of Purdue, heads another school at Butler college, Indianapolis, from August 13 to 18. Dr. Carlson joins Andy Kerr for a series of black-board talks and illustrations at Colgate during the latter part of August. Harry Kipke of Michigan, Howard Jones of Southern California, "Pop" Warner of Temple, Wallace Wade of Duke, Benny Bierman of Minnesota, and other widely known coaches keep busy with classes of the kind each summer.

Little made a hit in Cleveland this spring in reading a paper on physical education and its place in the educational system before the National Physical Educational convention.

HEARD ROUND THE WORLD

It is doubtful if a coach ever capitalized a victory as Little has capitalized Columbia's unexpected conquest of Stanford in the Pasadena Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

Parke H. Davis, the renowned historian who passed away recently, called it the greatest gridiron achievement of all time, and one that would do the game more good than any other.

The pictures of this savagely fought fray, in which the smaller Lion scored on and then held the giant Redwoods of the Golden West, have been shown at hundreds of institutions, and will be reeled off and commented on by Little at Shaker Heights.

It would be interesting to attend the Evanston lectures, and hear the conflicting views of two of the foremost strategists.

Crisler favors driving immediately to the line of scrimmage, rather than relying on spins and reverses.

It was on a spinner, in which Cliff Montgomery faked giving the ball to Ed Brominski, before slipping it to Al Barabas, that "Bones" Hamilton, Stanford halfback, committed himself and Barabas, with the ball hidden on his hip, sprinted 18 yards around the Cardinals' right end for the touchdown that was heard around the world.

Any football system is sound when it works.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Freddie Sington, the guy who used to play football for Alabama, is playing sensational baseball with Albany, N. Y. . . . He's hitting .400 and has batted in more than 80 runs. . . . Johnny Mohardt, who used to play football for Notre Dame, and later with the Chicago Bears, now is a doctor in Chicago . . . Howard Jones can play golf about as well as he teaches those Trojans how to play football. . . . He smacked a brassie shot for 200 yards the other day . . . and the drive is said to have been the longest ever seen on the course he was playing. . . . Windsor Lad, winner of the English Derby, may be shipped to the United States for a match with Cavalcade . . . and that race would be comparable to the starts of Papyrus and Epinard in this country. . . . Charley Yates, Georgia Tech golfer and winner of the Intercollegiate tournament, talks to his ball after every shot.

AMERICAN ALL-STARS WIN, 9-7

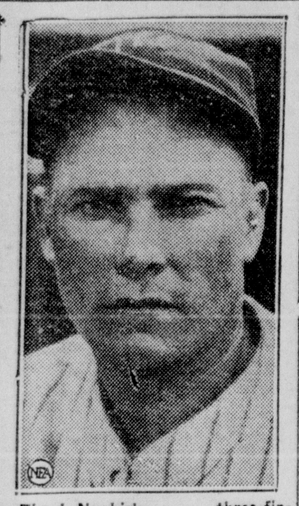
PRIZE ROOKIES AWAIT SUMMONS TO FRONT

Joe DiMaggio . . . star of the San Francisco Seals, with a .365 macing mark . . . may catch on with the Red Sox.



Floyd Newkirk . . . three-fingered pitcher who has won nine games for Newark . . . may see duty with Yanks soon.

Frank Demaree . . . slugging his way back into the big leagues with a .400 average in the Pacific Coast league.

BY JIMMY DONAHUE
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

Hope springs eternal in the breasts of young minor leaguers. The kids who labor in the bush country for their coffee and cake always have the vision of major league uniforms hanging from their frames to spur them on.

The other day Boss Bill Terry, of the Giants, found need of reinforcements, and the astute leader of the world champions immediately got in touch with Nashville, in the Southern association, and recalled a kid outfielder he farmed there earlier in the year, after a brief spring tryout proved he needed seasoning.

Hank Leiber was the guy. He earned a major rehearsal when he banged away at the apple for .356 at Memphis last year. Disappointed at being farmed out, Hennery bore down at Nashville, vowing to get back up again, and his .444 swatting average this year was what caught Terry's eye.

There are apt to be several recalls sent to the minors before the hectic races in both leagues wind up. And in addition to recalls, a couple of raw rookies might be lifted right out of the minors to fill in gaps left by an alarming list of casualties in the ranks of major baseball this season.

In the Pacific Coast league, Frank Demaree is slapping the sphere at a .404 clip for the Los Angeles Angels. Frank's sensational clouting is the result of an "I'll show 'em" attitude taken after the Cubs let him go early in 1933. The kid was a big help to the Grimms in 1932, filling in for the injured Kiki Cuyler, and winding up the year with a home run in the fourth game of the world series against the Yanks.

At present the Cubs, getting some mighty fine pitching and fair hitting, don't actually need young Frank. But they may wobble again before the year's over, and Frank Joseph will be a valuable man to have around.

The Yanks brought Floyd Newkirk up from St. Paul at the beginning of the year, took a look at him, and then farmed him to Newark. The three-fingered gent is pitching some great ball in the International circuit, winning nine while losing one, and if big Red Ruffing or Gomez cracks before the windup, the youngster may get back in the big league duds.

A quintet of other youngsters may get the call before fall or, if not then, surely by next spring.

One is Joe DiMaggio, the San Francisco Seals' clouting outfielder. "Dead Pan" Joe, only 19, broke the Coast league's consecutive hitting mark in 1933, when he swatted safely in 50 straight games. He is better than ever this year, squashing the onion for around .365. It is said the Seals have turned down an offer of $50,000 for him.

Just as soon as the club's management can be convinced that the coin of the realm isn't what it used to be, Joe will move to the majors, probably with the Red Sox.

The second is Bill Hughes, a little past the youngster stage, however, a pitcher who won his first 11 starts with the Birmingham Barons in the southern loop, and lifted that team from nowhere to pennant contender status.

J. Millard Campbell is the third. He has heaved the invincible Los American Coast league club to 13 victories, dropping only three decisions. He probably will wind up with the Cubs.

The last two gents all set to sign naturalization papers in the majors are Gene Trow and Keith Molesworth. The former is a right-handed pitcher for whom the Cubs are reported to have given the St. Paul Saints $25,000. The latter is shortstop of the Baltimore Orioles, and is said to provoke no little interest in the front office of the Boston Braves, with his classy fielding and .330 hitting.

GERMAN SETS RECORD

HAMBURG, Germany, July 10.—(UP)—Hans Heinrich Sievert, German athlete, today claimed a world decathlon record of 8790.46 points, 328 points over the mark officially held by Jim Bausch, former University of Kansas all-around athlete.

DEAN BROTHERS EASY BUT CUBS FEAR 'LEFTIES'

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY

CHICAGO, July 10.—Notes from a big league press box:

The Cubs would rather bat against the Dean boys, Dizzy and Goofy, than any other pitchers in the league . . . They like those fast balls Dizzy and Goofy try to throw past 'em . . . The southpaws, Ed Brandt, Bill Walker, Larry French, Carl Hubbell and Bill Hallahan, give the Cubs the most misery.

Wally Berger, Braves' outfielder, is considered by many to have the perfect stance at the plate . . . . "Chuck" Klein envies Dolph Camilli's style and when Camilli found out about it remarked, "Yeh, but I'd trade my style for his results."

Van Mungo, Brooklyn pitcher, has as much stuff as any flinger in the league, but is having trouble winning . . . . The Cubs say he is "strikeout crazy" . . . . In his last two starts against the Cubs he has made them strike out frequently in the early innings only to weaken and be beaten in the last inning . . . . On May 11 he fanned 11 Cubs and lost, 5-0, and in his last start he fanned 12 and again was beaten.

Zeke Bonura, White Sox first baseman, and Hank Greenberg, Detroit first sacker, once had a fist battle, but are all right now . . . . Charlie Gehringer is conceded to be the sparkplug of the Detroit club and the greatest all-around second baseman in the majors.

Johnny Broaca, Yankee rookie pitcher, set a nine-inning record when he struck out five times, and touched the ball only once in a recent game against the White Sox . . . . But as long as the ex-Yale boy keeps pitching the way he is Joe McCarthy doesn't care if he never gets a hit . . . . Players who have faced Broaca say he is the best rookie pitcher to break in since Gomez.

Veteran sports writers claim that Al Lopez, Brooklyn's fiery little catcher, is the best receiver and all-around workman since Roger Bresnahan . . . . Lopez is not only a great catcher, but he recently played third base creditably in a game against Pittsburgh.

ELKS DEFEATED BY BANK: M. E. JR. NINE WINS

Suddenly returning to its early season form, the First National bank's baseball team defeated the Elks club, 4 to 2, at the Municipal Bowl last night. The Elks tied for the first-half championship.

The First National led the Santa Ana City league most of the first round but went to pieces in the stretch, losing its last three games.

Hits by Jerry Heard and Gene Hitt, a walk to Labrucherie, and another hit by Bill Gibbs gave the Bankers their three winning runs in the fifth inning. A hit by Harold Youel, Gibbons' fielder's choice and Walt Markel's single accounted for an earlier tally.

The Elks made their tallies in the second and fourth. Stryring's single and Schwarm's triple produced the first one. Ojeda got the other in the fourth. He singled, took second on Styring's hit, third on a passed ball, and scored on Schwarm's squeeze bunt.

The South Methodist Juniors won from the South Methodist Seniors, 7-4, in a preliminary contest. The Juniors had a ball game on their hands until the sixth when they put on a five-run rally. The box score:

Long Beach, Brea Fall In County Loop

Long Beach and Brea, the two teams that tied for first place in the first-half- both went down to defeat as the Orange County Night Ball league's second-half got under way last night.

Orange, with Jack Dugan on the ridge, mowed down Brea, 4-2. The Orangemen made three runs in the first inning by bunching four hits, got another in the seventh. Brea got one in the first, one in the seventh when Miller homed.

Anaheim, perhaps the heaviest hitting club in the loop, pounded Carl Winkler, Long Beach's bespectacled hurler, for a 9-2 victory. Benner limited the Cubs to two hits, one by Elliott, one by Zimmer.

Fullerton scored at will in spanking Olive, 19-4. Pister's homer accounted for three of Olive's counters.

Irvine turned back Huntington Beach, 6-5. A three-run attack in the eighth, the result of bunched hits, turned the tide in the Beanpickers' favor.

Santa Ana And Olive Open Second-Half Of Night League Season

Night baseball's "new deal" begins tonight.

Starting from scratch, the National league's eight clubs inaugurate the second-half of their 1934 championship race, with Olive playing at Santa Ana, Anaheim at Huntington Beach, Torrance at Westminster, and Fullerton at Long Beach.

Fourteen games, seven at each city in the conference, are scheduled before the season draws to a conclusion the evening of August 24. The second round of contests will determine a playoff series opponent for Huntington Beach, the first-half champion, unless Huntington Beach repeats. The Oilers probably have the power to do it, and Manager Joe Rodgers has pledged that they will be out to do so.

Five other clubs are given a royal chance. Santa Ana looks like a tremendous threat. So does Torrance, which was coming like a cyclone toward the end of the first-half. Anaheim is a cinch to finish at or near the top. So is Westminster, with its fine pitching and the next best hitting staff in the division. Olive may lack consistency but has the respect of all comers.

Packers After Dugan

The Olive aggregation which invades the Municipal Bowl this eve has the trickiest mound department in night ball. Rudy Heman, with his baffling change of pace, has always been a thorn in Santa Ana's side. He beat the Stars both times he faced them in the first-half. Paul ("Chandu") Watson is another gunner with a deceitful service. And now the Packers are after Jack Dugan of Orange, a slinger with a delivery patterned after Watson's. It took Santa Ana ten innings to beat Dugan in a spring exhibition tussle.

Heman probably will get the assignment here, and Al Reboin, the Santa Anan who plays football for U. S. C. will do the receiving. The giant Nana Coota will be on first base, "Memphy" Hill at second, Ralph Jertberg at third, and Terry Griffith short. "Red" Kidder, Russ Porter and probably Fritz Gunther will attend to the fly-chasing.

Griffith Beats S. A. Twice

Coates lost both his starts to Olive in the first round, chiefly because he couldn't keep Terry Griffith from hitting home runs. In the first game, Griffith's homer was the only run of a brilliant pitcher's battle. In the second, Griffith's homer came with the bases full and beat Santa Ana, 5-1.

Night ball hash:

George Lackeye, Westminster's manager, writes from Madison, Wis., that he is enjoying his vacation. Now at St. Paul, he leaves shortly for the Black Hills in Dakota and Yellowstone National park before returning home. Lackaye scouted several games in St. Louis, found enthusiasm higher than the caliber of the talent. He says the sport is really in its infancy there, as compared with the National Night league . . . . That old firebrand of Anaheim, George Pace, now an American division umpire, is in print again. This time the Pomona club is "on" him, intimating his decisions have shown bias toward Riverside . . . . Joe Rodgers of Huntington Beach says his third baseman, Bill McKinley, will be the greatest ever to play that position in the National wheel . . . .

Anaheim and Westminster have engineered a trade of third basemen. The veteran Al Kohler goes to the Aviators in exchange for Cecil Sauers. The players were dissatisfied and a change of pasture should help both. Kohler was the best third sacker in the game two years ago but his hitting declined sharply in '33. . . . . It has been a long time since the old cry of commercialism cropped up in night baseball, but American league fans moaned after looking over the two-weeks playoff schedule that will decide the inland first-half tie . . . Santa Ana has "farmed" to the Irvine club George Padias, young utility player. Manager Cole things Paddy will get more benefit playing regularly for Irvine than sitting on the bench here . . . . Long Beach's Cubs lead the Orange County league. Long Beach's Admirals failed to win a game in the National. But the Admirals beat the Cubs, 7-2, in an exhibition game last week—and Howard Morning pitched for the Cubs, too.

MAY BE PIRATE COACH

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—The Pittsburgh Pirates may have a new coach next year. He is expected to be Tom Sheehan, veteran pitcher of the Hollywood Coast league club, who is one of "Pie" Traynor's closest friends.

DOUBLE WINDUP FOR O. C. AMATEUR CLUB

Featuring Manuel Rios and Carlos Roldan, a double main event will be offered amateur fistic fanciers at the Orange County Athletic club Thursday night. Bobby Yanes and Cheuy Salazana appear in the other half of the windup.

Rios, 1933 lightweight champion of the Pacific Coast, has not competed in Southern California tournaments this year but is regarded as a better fighter than Raoul Solis, the current Southland titleholder. Roldan, well remembered here, is another outstanding 135-pounder.

Matchmaker "Bud" Rutledge has scheduled 10 bouts. The three top events will be five-rounders, the others four.

ROSENBLOOM MADE 10-8 OVER RAMAGE

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—(UP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion boxer, and Lee Ramage, San Diego ring battler, meet again tonight in a 10-round battle intended to dispel any doubts which might have been raised as to the best man after their draw here recently.

Rosenbloom was quoted as a 10-8 favorite. Newspapermen gave the champion an unofficial edge in their last encounter.

Identity of the referee at the Olympic tonight was kept strictly secret, because, officials said, it was a good policy and should end disputes over decisions.

DO YOU KNOW THAT

Old Strangler Lewis still can do a lot of wrestling . . . but he can't pick winners on the mat. . . . He once more was wrong on the recent Londos-Browning shindig. . . . Zeke Bonura, White Sox sock[illegible]mes from a wealthy family . . . and the Bonura dough was made selling a lot of bananas in New Orleans. . . . The White Sox haven't won a start at Yankee stadium this season. . . . "Pie" Traynor prefers old bats . . . and generally hits with one that some other player has discarded. . . . Henry Cotton, British Open winner, is no club waggler. . . . Like Bobby Jones, he tees up his ball and smacks it without any of that preliminary body English. . . .

150 BEGIN PLAY IN WESTERN AMATEUR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 10.—(UP)—One hundred fifty golfers, including some of the leading simon-pures of the United States, were to start out over the Twin Hills Country club course early today in the qualifying round of the annual Western Amateur tournament.

Jack Westland of Chicago, Walker cupper, who is defending champion, was exempt from qualifying and all he had to do today was watch his competitors try to get one of the 31 open match play berths.

Westland and two fellow Chicagoans, John Lehman, former Purdue star and ex-champion, and Charles (Chick) Evans were among favorites to win the 1934 tournament.

DRIVERS PLAN NEW ATTACK ON RECORDS

Paced by Chet Mortemore, "Curly" Mills and Neil Theuson, midget auto race drivers will make another assault on track records tomorrow night in the Santa Ana Bowl.

Improvements on the track and a thorough watering before the race are expected to make the fastest races of the season. Race fans saw the above three drivers speed to new track records last week and will have Bill Bettridge to add to their programs this week. Mortemore is attracting considerable popularity in his Santa Ana-built No. 96, while Mills in "36" and Theusen in "53" are old favorites.

Crowds at the races are becoming the largest to attend any sport affair ever held in the Bowl. Although qualifying heats start early, fans are advised to arrive well before the opening race at 8:15 p. m.

Perroni Too Good For Jack McCarthy

Jack Dempsey was referee.

Perroni weighed 185, McCarthy 190 1-4.

JIM LONDOS SPURNS $40,000 FOR MATCH

CHICAGO, July 10.—(UP)—The proposed wrestling match between Jim Londos and Ed ("Strangler") Lewis today appeared to have fizzled out. Promoter Joe Foley offered Landos a guarantee of $40,000 or a privilege of 40 per cent of the gate receipts but his manager, Ed White, said he didn't think the offer was high enough. White asked $60,000 guarantee.

Another meeting will be held July 23 to discuss the match, and Foley will be ready to post a $10,000 guarantee with the commission at that time to bind the match.

attention to you," growled Mark disgustedly. His mother reproved him.

"Son, what a name to use to your sister!"

He grinned at her. "Mom," you know it's the truth. This Eustace—he's a great guy. I saw him fishin' off the bridge last Saturday. He thinks they're a lot of crazy kids."

"Eustace—that's his name," Kay confirmed. "Charles Eustace. What do you know about him?" she demanded, staring Mark down.

"Plenty," said Mark importantly. "He's O. K., he is. And he doesn't care for women."

Kay giggled. Mark was irresistibly funny. "Allie says she thinks he's an artist or a writer," she went on.

"Eustace?" Mrs. O'Dare mused. "One of the Waterman girls married a man named Eustace, a New Yorker, when I was just a child. This must be her son."

MONNIE scarcely heard them. Kay's "crushes" were many and various. The newcomer, whoever he might be, was sure to be all right if Mark sponsored him. Mark would know if he were bogus. But what did all this matter—where was Dan? Her head began to ache, and there was a nervous throbbing back of her eyes.

"We'll do the dishes, Mother," she said. "Kay and I. You go and lie down."

Mrs. O'Dare pushed her gently aside. "Nonsense, when you've changed your dress and freshened up."

Monnie set her jaw. "I'm going to wash dishes tonight. Nothing shall stop me."

She put a big checkered apron on over the faded linen. She took the dishpan from its nail, filled it with warm soapy water. With vigor she sloshed the cups and saucers in and out, finding in the homely task some surcease from her pain. She could be useful, anyway, even if Dan didn't want her.

Lost in a daydream, she went through her work. She would work hard, she would earn enough to take them all away from Belvedere. Years later, busy, successful and happy, she would return. She would see an old, tired-looking man on Main street. Someone would say, "There's Monica O'Dare, the famous (author, actress, singer)." The man would look up, his grim features working with emotion. He would mutter, "My Monnie. And I lost her, fool that I was." It would be Dan, tired, broken, disappointed.

She sluiced the drainboard with water, wrung out her cloth with an expert motion. Kay had finished the last of the silver, had flitted upstairs. Through the half open door, Monnie could see her mother dozing over the evening paper in the bay window. Evening had settled down over the little town. The yard looked melancholy, the lilacs sent their fragrance through the dusk.

As the girl turned to put out the light, she heard a firm step on the side porch. Her first thought was that it was Bill, returning early. She went to the screen door.

Amber eyes stared up at the man who stood without.

"I rang the front several times," he said quietly. "I guess no one heard."

Monnie managed to control the tremor in her voice as she answered him. "Come in, Dan," she said softly.

He was back, and he hadn't forgotten her!

News Of Fullerton and Vicinity

PIONEERS TALK OF OLD TIMES AT MEET HERE

FULLERTON, July 10.—Stories of the struggles of the early settlers of Northern Orange county were recited Saturday by pioneers when members of the Orange county Historical society met at Fullerton Commonwealth park for a covered dish dinner and an afternoon of talks and reminiscences.

Dr. C. D. Ball of Santa Ana, who came here in 1887, and who has welcomed all other doctors to Orange county, presided at the meeting. S. M. Davis, a pioneer, was secretary.

A feature of the afternoon was a talk by Frank Henderson, superintendent of Santa Ana schols, who paid tribute to William Holmes McGuffy, who made dynamic history, and who "was author of America's first best seller, the McGuffey readers, of which 122,000,000 copies have been printed and sold."

The speaker brought to his audience the message of these readers, and said of the author, saying "we are glad to pay tribute to a great and good man who moulded the thinking of countless millions; this is dynamic history."

He brought with him some early copies of the readers, and said that between 1836, seven million copies were sold; between 1850 and 1870, 40 million copies were sold. between 1870 and 1890, 60 million copies were sold, and up to 1920 from 1890, 15 million copies were sold

These readers, according to the speaker, were the books that aided youth in early school history; they opened to youth the Bible; they advised against use of alcoholic beverages; they expressed anti-war sentiments; they carried and with almost every story, something for moral training."

In his discussion, he said today if one read from the Bible in public school; he did so almost with apology.

An interesting talk was presented by Mrs. Carrie McFadden Ford of Fullerton who advised the group that this country, that now is covered with beautiful orchards and cities, was so very barren when she was a litle girl, she could sit on the steps of a homestead ranch house, north of Placentia, at the site where now her brother, Ralph McFadden resides, and see the light of the lighthouse at Point Firmin.

In reciting the early life of the settlers, she brought a picture of the struggling time when crops burned up for lack of water, and said that her father, who had digged a well "by hand" to 120 foot depth, was among those first men to open the Cajon ditch which now is the Anaheim Union Water company.

Among others who assisted in the work of bringing irrigation water to north Orange county, but one is living, R. H. Gilman, father of Mrs. Helen Bowen, who resides now in Redondo Beach. Mrs. Ford came to Orange county in 1869, a small child, from Alameda with her parents. Her father, William McFadden, was the first teacher in the district at Yorba.

Otto Des Granges, who came to Southern California in 1873, also impressed his audience with accounts of the business of the territory and said that a ranch near where Buena Park now is contained the only tree, and was known as the Lone Tree ranch, while those who wanted wood to burn, drove to the willow groves along the artesian wells district where they "bought all they could haul on a wagon for 50 cents."

Mayor William Hale, who welcomed the group, and to whose welcome Dr. Ball responded, told of the early development of Fullerton, and of the building of the Hotel St. George in about 1884, a first project in Fullerton, which cost about $55,000.

A resolution of sympathy was passed on the death of J. E. Pleasants of Santiago canyon, arranged and presented by William McPherson and Terry Stephenson. Two new members were accepted, Dr. Charles C. Villet of Garden Grove and Mabel C. Larrick of Santa Ana.

The next meeting is to be held in October.

DAUGHTER OF PIONEERS IS ON HONEYMOON

FULLERTON, July 10.—At a single ring ceremony read before an altar built in the living room of the family home on East Chapman avenue, Miss Isabel Margaret Parker was married to Dr. Walter H. Crabbe of Montreal, Quebec, Canada, when the Rev. B. Dudley Snudden of Riverside read the single ring ceremony Saturday at 8:30 p. m. Miss Evelyn Jacks played for the ceremony.

Miss Parker was attended by Miss Wilma Boardman of Santa Barbara. The bride wore a blue lace gown, with a train, and carried an armful of Talisman roses. Miss Boardman was gowned in rose crepe, and carried sweet peas and delphinium. Best man was Robert Parker, brother of the bride.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Parker, pioneers of Fullerton.

After the reception, the couple went on a honeymoon trip, after she had changed her wedding gown to a rose colored suit. They plan to return to Southern Californa.

HOT WATER FOR EVERYTHING ALL DAY LONG COSTS LESS THAN A 5¢ RAZOR BLADE

"I'd call it a big nickel's worth just to have hot water all ready for my hit-and-run shave in the morning." That's what anybody with an automatic gas water-heater says.

And in Southern California natural gas is so inexpensive that the whole household can have hot water everywhere . . . always ready, all day and all night . . . for less that 5c a day.

Remember that bathing, cooking, dishwashing, laundry, shaving, dozens of other daily trips to the hot water faucets, all add up to thousands of individual uses every month. You can't notice the tiny cost each time. Be sure to insist on a natural gas automatic heater . . . it is three times as economical as other automatic methods.

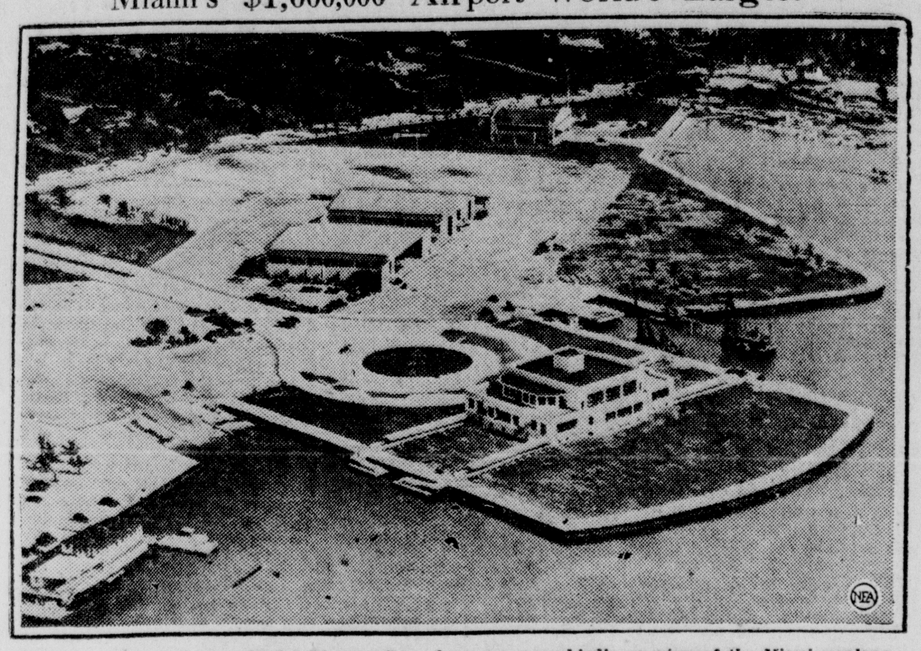
Miami's $1,000,000 Airport World's Largest



Covering 47 acres along colorful Biscayne Bay, here you see a bird's eye view of the Miami seaplane terminal—the world's largest and costliest aviation sea base. Built by the Pan-American Airways at a cost of $1,000,000, the airport has, in addition to the immense hangar shown in center, an international terminal building (foreground) with customs and immigration offices. The new base is an air link between North and South America.

LEGAL OPINION HOLDS ELECTION IS MANDATORY

Still refusing to resign so that an election might be held August 28 to fill out the unexpired terms, despite warnings that their acts after that date might be illegal, Councilmen William Penn, Plummer Bruns and Fred C. Rowland again turned a cold shoulder last night to Councilman A. F. LeGaye's suggestion that all four appointed members submit their candidacies to the will of the people at an election.

"It's the only fair thing to do, to let the people decide whether or not they want to continue us on the job," sad LeGaye, who said that in view of conflicting legal opinions the members of the council ought to "play safe" and not subject themselves or the city to possible illegality.

"I think we all ought to resign. I will resign at any time," LeGaye said. "The job of councilman is not worth fighting for, anyway; it's only supposed to pay $25 per month."

When Penn remarked that conflicting opinions had been presented by attorneys, LeGaye said "that's what makes jobs for the lawyers."

Legal Opinion

In support of his position that the four appointed council members should resign and call an election in connection with the forthcoming state election to avoid possible illegality, LeGaye read a written statement on the question prepared by Eugene T. McGann, for 21 years an attorney of Los Angeles, former county and federal prosecutor, and now candidate for superior judge in Los Angeles county.

McGann's opinion coincided with that of City Attorney Downing that "general" election is synonomous with "regular" election, not necessarily a municipal election, and the state law governing cities of the fifth class would be meaningless, as regards filling of "unexpired terms" unless the regular state laws were intended.

McGann's opinion is as follows:

"The undersigned respectfully submits the following as his opinion of the status of four trustees appointed to the board of trustees of the city of Santa Ana, county of Orange, state of California:

"Act 5233 of the General Laws, Section 54, Article II, Chapter 6 thereof, provides that vacancies occurring in any of the offices provided for by this act shall be filled by appointment by the board of trustees, but if such offices be elective, such appointee shall hold office only until the next regular election, at which time a person shall be elected to serve for the remainder of such unexpired term.

"The question is, what is meant by regular election? It does not necessarily mean municipal election, or it would have so said; and, as a matter of consistent reasoning, it did not intend that the appointees should carry over until the next general municipal election, at which time full terms of offices and not unexpired terms are to be filled.

"The Statutes of 1927, Page 143, in Section 3, Chapter 84, specifically provides that in the event that any election submitting the proposition of incurring indebtedness or the issuance of bonds, or the determining of any question authorized by law to be submitted to the vote of the people of such municipality, shall be consolidated with any regular state or county election.

"The election of August 28, 1934, would be deemed a regular state or county election, and it is therefore the opinion of the undersigned that the trustee appointees of the city of Santa Ana should be required to submit their offices to a vote of the people to determine who shall serve for the unexpired terms of the regularly elected officials in whose stead they were so appointed.

"It is my understanding that no municipal election will take place in the city of Santa Ana prior to the regular municipal election to be held some nine months hence.

EUGENE T. McGANN,

SCHOOL BOARD AT PLACENTIA ADOPTS BUDGET

PLACENTIA, July 10.—The budgets of the Placentia Union Grammar school district and of the Valencia High school district were adopted last night at a busy session of the school boards at the Bradford school, the total for the high school being $88,750, and for the grammar school $98,799.63. This includes for the grammar school the five percent raise allowed by law.

The second election on the bond issue of $200,000 will be set for August 3, provided it meets with approval of Buell Beard, trustee, who will have returned from his vacation before the special meeting called for Monday, July 16. It was pointed out by the board last night that the bond election will reduce the tax for the Valencia High school district considerably, since the budget was placed at the highest point to allow money for building, at 75 cents, and will be reduced to 40 cents if the bond issue carries.

Business of the board, sitting as a grammar school body, included suspending all action on rebuilding La Jolla school, and the manual arts building at the Bradford school campus, after T. C. Kisner, architect, reported the cost of reconditioning the manual arts building will be $14,700, without SERA labor, and of building the La Jolla addition about $46,000. Checks turned in with bids on materials were returned.

Plans for opening school are September 17 for the grammar school and September 10 for the high school. Agreement was reached to employ two other teachers for the high school.

The budget for the high school included $45,000 for capital outlay; $20,500 for special charges; $650 for administratio ncharges; $16,200 for administration charges; $16,200 fund; $500 for operation of plant; $600 for maintenance of plant, and $3,300 for auxiliary agencies.

The grammar school budget included $5,100 for administration; $51,300 for instruction; $1,625 for library; $15,569 for operation of ulant; $5,849 for plant maintenance; $8,205 for auxiliary agencies, including $5,000 for transportation; $330 for special, and $10,831 for capital outlays, or a total of $98,799,-63.

CREEL SUPPORT IS URGED BY NOTED AUTHOR

Rupert Hughes, internationally noted writer and newspaper man, spoke at an open meeting of voters at the Frances Willard Junior High school auditorium last night on "Why Creel Should be Elected Governor of California."

Hughes aimed all of his sharp witticisms at Upton Sinclair, also a noted author, and ignored entirely the other nine candidates for the Democratic nomination.

He pointed out that Creel was the right hand man to President Wilson during his terms in the White House and that he is also a personal friend of President Roosevelt's. He called attention to the fact that Creel, at the urgent request of the president, organized and presided over the NRA on the Pacific coast, resigning after three unsuccessful attempts to quit so he could devote the necessary time to his campaign.

The speaker called attention to the present situation in the harbors of the coast as a contrast to the fact that during his term as NRA administrator Creel settled 44 strikes without trouble, and to the satisfaction of both sides.

Hughes said that Creel is also an idealist, but that his ideals are not unworkable dreams, and that, if elected, he will have the legislature with him for he has always been a Democrat, and is not of another party and trying to ride into office on the Democratic ticket. He promised that "Creel can and will carry out his magnificent program if elected."

Judge J. G. Mitchell, of Santa Ana, chairman of the Democratic county committee, and vice president of the Orange County Creel-for-Governor club, presided at the meeting and introduced the speaker.

Joe Peterson, Democratic candidate for state assemblyman from this district also made a short talk regarding his candidacy.

Surprise Man At Birthday Event

BUENA PARK, July 10.—Bird W. Hopkins of East Eleventh street, who celebrated his seventy-seventh birthday anniversary yesterday, was honored with a surprise birthday dinner by Fullerton friends. Hopkins, who is a retired actor, spent 20 years on the stage and was with Edwin Booth playing the leading role of Dr. Griggs in "The Fisherman's Daughter." He also owned a theatrical company featuring a program with himself in the role of an English outlaw, Jonathan Wild, in the play, "Jack Shepheard."

Table decorations were in opaque white for both linens and table service with deep red carnations as the floral motif.

PROMINENT S. A. CIVIC LEADER OPPOSES CITY TAX DONATION FOR USE BY PRIVATE GROUPS

Holding that a reduction of taxes is imperatively necessary and taxes should be levied for only essential services, W. A. Taylor, prominent civic leader, last night submitted a strong letter to the city council protesting the proposed donation of $4250 in tax money to the Chamber of Commerce.

"I do not believe that public funds should be appropriated for expenditure by private organizations, irrespective of how meritorious the latter may be," declared Taylor in his letter, which the council ordered received and placed on file.

"May I suggest with reference to what has been said as to what other towns and cities have done or are doing in similar matters—that attempting to 'keep up with the Jonses' is largely responsible for the economic mess we are now in," said Taylor in his letter.

"It is my understanding that you have under consideration a proposal to appropriate to the Chamber of Commerce of this city $4250 of taxpayers' funds, to be expended for advertising.

"I desire to enter protest, as a taxpayer, against such an appropriation being made. Even if such advertising as is contemplated achieved its purpose of influencing individuals and firms favorably toward our city, it is lamentably true, under existing conditions, that such persons and firms are, generally, without the resources with which to translate such favorable inclinations tnto actions of practical advantage to our community, and since the benefits of advertising of the nature indicated are always a bit uncertain, even under normal conditions, it seems to me it would be exceedingly unwise to use the funds for such a purpose, raised from impositions on property from which any possible income which can now be derived bears such an uterly disapportionate eriation to the taxes thereon.

"It seems to me a reduction of taxes is imperatively necessary if we are to avert real disaster.

"For many years I have been a member and supporter of the Chamber of Commerce (or the Commercial club—its equivalent) wherever I have lived; but we now have an emergency condition, and should, in my judgment,, pending a recovery, and in deference to those many home owners who are making such desperate efforts to save their properties, confine expenditures strictly to those things which are virtually essential."

First Ballet On Summer Series To Be Given July 11

Ravel's "Bolero," to be presented in the Shrine auditorium, Los Angeles, Wednesday, July 11, has achieved the popular acclaim of ballet patrons just as "Carmen" has won the favor of the opera public. It has brought its composer world fame and fortune. First introduced in the United States by Earl Carroll in his "Vanities" revue, the "Bolero" has since been presented on the concert stage, in big picture house prologues and on the screen.

For the Shrine auditorium production Senorita Goni will offer a new version of the "Bolero," using a Moorish legend by Marouf, celebrated Casablanca poet, as her theme. The action takes place in a Moorish harem, with 100 beautiful slave girls dancing before the Sultan in sumptuous splendor, climaxed by a thrilling scimitar fight between the Sultan and a young sheik over the captive daughter of a desert chief. Senorita Goni, Pauline Becker, James Reynolds and Manuel Ugalde will have the leading roles.

Other ballets on the Shrine summer season will be Lester Horton's production of Oscar Wilde's "Salome," July 25; "The Painted Desert," mammoth American Indian pageant with music by Homer Grunn, August 8, and Ethel Meglin's elaborate fantasy, "Three Little Pigs," featuring a cast and chorus of 500 famous Meglin Kiddies, August 22.

J. Schobel of South Gate; Miss C. Becker of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Walker, Los Angeles and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hart.

Postal Gains Show Boost In Business

Postal receipts at the Santa Ana post office for June 1934 increased $1059.90 over the same month last year according to the monthly tabulation released today by Flake Smith, assistant postmaster at the Santa Ana office.

The income for June of this year reached a total of $34,-692.11 as against $33,632.21 for June 1933. Smith said:

"Executives of the local office are pleased with the increase and feel that it indicates a definite betterment of general business conditions in Santa Ana."

AUDREY GRANAS TO ADDRESS KIWANIANS

Miss Audrey Granas, valedictorian of the graduation class of the Santa Ana High school, and a splendid speaker, will be the speaker at the regular Kiwanis club meeting tomorrow noon, it was announced today. She will talk on the subject, "Education." Mrs. Jerome W. Crays will entertain with dramatic readings. Hugh J. Lowe is program chairman for the day.

SIX EVENTS TO BE GIVEN ON COURSE

POMONA, July 10.—Claremont College's Artist course will present six numbers this year beginning with Fritz Kreisler, violinist, in October. He is to be succeeded by Nelson Eddy, celebrated young American baritone, the Vienna boys' choir, Maier and Pattison, noted two-piano artists, Dusolina Giannini, Italian soprano, and Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra.

Mrs. Mary Batten Steffenson is the representative of the Claremont Artists' Course in Santa Ana.

BOARD REFUSES; EXPECT FILING OF PETITION

First move for the repeal of Santa Ana's city advertising tax was made last night by Councilman A. F. LeGaye after his resolution, seeking to prevent abuse of this taxing power, had been turned down by the remaining members of the board.

After the "no donations" resolution had failed for want of a second, LeGaye read and proposed an ordinance calling an election so the people may vote upon the repeal of the city's 12-cent permissive tax levy for music and advertising adopted in 1926.

"I ask adoption of this ordinance," said LeGaye, "otherwise I feel sure an initiative petition will be presented demanding this matter be placed on the ballot."

In answer to LeGaye's question, City Attorney Clyde Downing said the proposal could be placed on the August primary ballot. In answer to questions by Councilman Penn and Mayor Warner, City Clerk Ed Vegeley said the cost of the last bond election was "about $800."

"If we call the election, it will save trouble, for I am confident the petitions will be coming in," said LeGaye.

Mayor Warner allowed about three seconds for anyone in the audience to talk on the question, then banged his gavel and said the motion was lost for want of a second.

PASTOR WILL BE HONORED

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 10.—The congregation of the First Methodist Episcopal church will hold a reception Friday night at the church parlors, honoring the pastor, the Rev. John Engle and his family, because of Rev. Engle's assignment by the diocese to another year at Huntington Beach.

There will be a potluck supper at 6:30 o'clock followed by the reception and program. All members and friends of the church are cordially invited. It is the plan to accord the Engle family an appreciative testimonial of the esteem in which they are held in the city.

Travelers Return Home To Welcome Arrival Of House Guest

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Nickey have returned to their home, 519 Bush street, from an interesting eastern trip upon which they were accompanied by their granddaughter, Miss Mildred Congdon of San Juan Capistrano.

On this journey they motored by the Lincoln Highway to Chicago, stopping en route for a visit in Omaha, Neb. After devoting some time to the exposition and other interesting Chicago features, they returned to the coast by way of Colorado Springs where they spent a few days. Their return to Santa Ana was hastened by the fact that they received word of the impending arrival of a close friend, Miss Judit Hansen of Stockholm, Sweden, who is now a guest in the Nickey home.

Miss Hansen is a great traveler and as owner and proprietor of a large oriental store in Stockholm, does all her own buying on frequent trips into the Orient by way of Siberia. She and Mr. and Mrs. Nickey first became acquainted eight years ago while fellow passengers on a 'round-the-world cruise. Four years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Nickey were her guests in Stockholm.

Various short trips serve to acquaint the interesting guest with this section of the Southland. She has been taken through the Mission San Juan Capistrano, to Laguna Beach and other coast resorts, and to Glendale, the Southwest Museum, and the luxurious hotels and shops of Los Angeles and Hollywood. Today, Mr. and Mrs. Nickey are taking her to the Huntington Library, and similar interesting experiences await her for each day this week until her departure Saturday on the President Pierce for the Canal trip and ocean voyage to Europe.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

LUNCHEON

Vegetable and cottage cheese salad
3 Ry-Krisp crackers
½ cup berries, with
1 tsp. sugar, no cream, or ½ cataloupe
Clear tea
Calory total, 275.

When you have a few spoonfuls of cooked green vegetables left from dinner, always put it away in a covered cup for your next day's diet salad. Today, the salad uses 1 large tomato, skinned and sliced, 2 tbsps. of cottage cheese seasoned with chopped onion tops or parsley, made creamy with diet mayonnaise. Arrange the salad on crip lettuce and add whatever bit of vegetable left from dinner (green peas, string beans, etc).

Although my record of the Orange Juice-Milk diet stopped with the addition of 1 soft boiled egg to the vegetable meal allowed per day, I want to add one word more. It has to do with your complexion:

After almost a month on this diet I noticed that my skin began to clear up, some natural color was coming back, and the muddy look was fast disappearing. That isn't hard to take, I can assure you!

Another thing noticed is the feeling of vigor this diet has brought me. I am able to walk four miles per day, up hill and over rough trails, and come back fresh enough to do another four miles. And best of all, next day there are no stiff muscles.

Weight can be reduced on this diet by using skimmed milk, but don't take it too fast, or you'll lose the sense of vigor which comes with the full diet. It can be worked by using the creamery skimmed milk one week, and the full milk the next week. Tomorrow I will outline the diet requirements for those who may have missed it.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Macaroni-Cheese Timbales

1 cup grated nippy cheese
1½ cups milk
2 eggs
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
Salt to taste
1 cup uncooked cut macaroni

Cook macaroni rapidly in salted water, drain and blanch in cold water, and drain again.

Although the recipe specifies a custard mixture, my experience has been that a very thin cream sauce holds the eggs far better than the milk mixture. Heat the milk and thicken it just a little with corn starch, then simmer it 15 minutes, take off the fire and stir in the cheese, then the well beaten eggs, seasonings and cooked macaroni. Mix with a quick hand and put the mixture into a buttered dish. Bake in a pan of hot water, moderate oven, until the center is slightly firm on pressure of your finger tip.

If you bake this timbale in a ring mould and insert on a platter, it is nice to fill the center with a hot buttered vegetable . . . diced carrots and new green peas, maybe.

There are approximately 1400 calories in this dish. It will serve six hungry people very generously. The foods are classed as tissue builders and energy makers but the energy units are less than one-fourth the total value, so you may have a small piece of pie if you are longing for it.

Young Couple Spend Honeymoon Days In North

Bridegroom and bride of almost a week, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Owen Stapp have been honeymooning in San Fnacisco and Sequoia National park with plans to return to Santa Ana to take up their residence on Bush street.

The home of Mrs. Sophie Parris, 611 East Washington avenue, was setting on Wednesday, July 4 for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Jane Parris to Mr. Stapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Stapp, 1509 Bush street. The ceremony was read at 11:30 o'clock in the morning by the Rev. Samuel Edgar, pastor of Reformed Presbyterian church.

July 4 as the date of the young couple's marriage bore special significance, for it marked the wedding date of the bride's parents.

The living room made an attractive setting for the wedding. A bower of honeysuckle, fern and sweet peas provided a background for potted palms and tall baskets of gladioluses and other colorful blooms.

PEOPLE FORCED TO THINK, GROW, BY DEPRESSION

VILLA PARK, July 10.—Because of the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Wesley P. Ford who is at Camp Osceola, the pulpit at Villa Park Community church was occupied Sunday morning by the Rev. Powell of Long Beach. The Rev. Powells was pastor of the Congregational church and superintendent of schools for many years at Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He said in part:

"I am going to bring you a theme of interest, providence and calamity. We are in troublous times. Many times people say why does God permit earthquakes, calamities and disasters? As a text I will use the words of Paul, found in II Cor. 4:17—'For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.' If there is any question asked in these days, it is why should there be pain, disease, trouble and sorrow?

"While disasters do occur, floods do not skip the rich man's house, lightning strikes the churches, and man does not lose his faith in God. After a flood, man builds a sea wall and after an earthquake he makes his buildings earthquake proof. If every church should be struck by lightning today, good people would be going to church next Sunday.

"Ninety-nine percent of the evil is due to the carelessness and indifference of man and is not the responsibility of God. There are scores of people who were never struck by lightning, in a cyclone or earthquake. There are thousands of accidents for which no sane person would hold God responsible. If man builds a railroad under an overhanging rock, and the vibration of the trains cause it to tumble down, did God order its construction? Man is responsible, not God.

"All the earthquakes would not equal the anguish and crucifixion of the arena at Rome. There are wars, famines and pestilences and man is responsible. The world is full of food. Why does man permit war, hunger, pestilence, white slavery, so much? It is unnecessary. Hunger has been the great curse of history. War was born when men began to fight for food.

"There is food enough to feed twenty billions of people. Manhood knows enough. Little children in Long Beach go to school without breakfast and the cold storage vaults are filled with food. God permits man, and man permits evil. Could not God have created a universe without pain? All knowledge begins with a question. Hunger, why? Thirst, why? Pain, why? Death, why? Without sorrow, man would never have tried to think out things. Death is only the going out of one door into another room. God permits pain and trouble to make us think. The depression we are now in has compelled us all to think."

JESUS ADVISES HIGHER CHOICE SAYS MINISTER

ORANGE, July 10.—"Life is a long series of choices," Dr. Robert Burns McAulay, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, said in a sermon delivered at the second of a series of union church services held Sunday evening in the First Methodist church.

He stated that "in each individual there are two worlds, the world of the 'is' and the world of the 'ought;' the world of the actual and the world of the possible; the world of the factual and the world of the ideal. One needs power to win in the effort to make the actual the ideal. This calls for creative faith. Everyone who has lifted civilization at all in the past has had this battle and has won it to the extent that he has helped the world.

"The world seems to be built on the two-way plan. Where everyone is, or whoever he is, there are always two roads which run from the spot on which he stands. This is true of every hour of the day. Many is forever standing at the forking of the road, and must decide which way he will go."

Quoting Luke 14:10, "Friends, go up higher," Dr. McAulay stated that Christ is continually urging man to choose the higher road. He also related that man is continually choosing the lower road, excusing himself on the ground that he is only human. Jesus would remind man who He is, the child of God, and urge him to come up to the higher realms and claim them for His own."

Music was provided by the Presbyterian church choir, under the direction of Percy J. Green. "The Holy City" was sung by Vern Estes, accompanied at the piano by Percy Green, who played the postlude and the offertory.

The service for July 15 will be in charge of the First Baptist church, with the Rev. Harry Sheerer, pastor of the church, bringing the evening message.

She uses cosmetics as she always has but removes them thoroughly the Hollywood way—guards against unattractive Cosmetic Skin!

SCREEN STARS are wise in the ways of loveliness! And thousands of clever girls all over the country are adopting Hollywood's beauty care to guard against unattractive Cosmetic Skin—keep their complexions exquisite.

Have you seen warning signals of this distressing modern complexion trouble — enlarged pores, tiny blemishes, dullness —blackheads, perhaps?

Cosmetics Harmless if removed this way

Cosmetics need not harm even delicate skin unless they are allowed to choke the pores. Many a girl who thinks she removes cosmetics thoroughly actually leaves bits of stale rouge and powder in the pores day after day. When this happens, the pores gradually become clogged, distended—unable to function normally —Cosmetic Skin develops.

Lux Toilet Soap is made to remove cosmetics thoroughly. Its rich, ACTIVE lather sinks deeply into the pores, carries swiftly away every vestige of dust, dirt, stale cosmetics. Before you apply fresh make-up during the day, and ALWAYS before you go to bed at night, use this gentle white soap to protect your skin—keep it beautiful. You want the loveliness that makes a girl attractive to everyone who sees her!

Though I use cosmetics, as most girls do, I never worry about Cosmetic Skin. Gentle Lux Toilet Soap guards against it surely

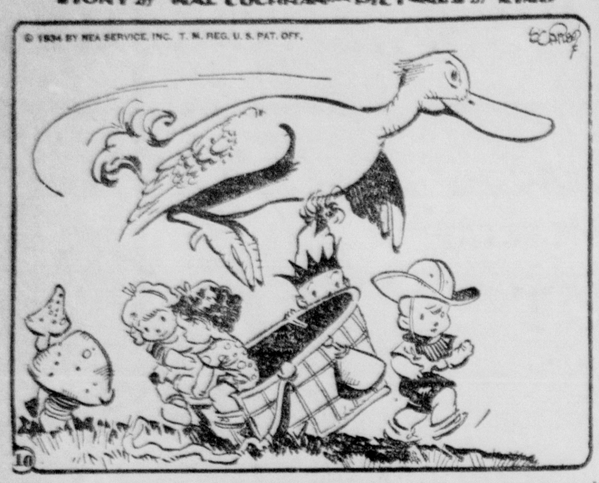
THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING



"Hurray! We're off to see some sights," exclaimed one of the Tinymites, as they went soaring through the air beneath the monstrous goose.

"This basket seems quite safe and sound, so we won't topple to the ground, unless some of the straps break and the basket then comes loose."

"Aw, I'm not worried. Not one bit," said Scouty. "I intend to sit right here and get enjoyment from this very thrilling ride.

"'Twas kind of Mother Goose to let us take her bird. Gee, I'll just bet that we look funny, up here in the basket, side by side.

"The ground looks far from here, to me, but I can still quite plainly see Old Mother Hubbard's cabin, where we fed her dog our beef.

"That was a kind act, seems to me, and, in return, I guess that we will have a nice, safe trip, instead of coming to some grief."

The goose flew on and on. What fun! Then Duncy said, "Gee whiz, the sun is getting very hot. I wish that we could find some shade."

Then Goldy said, "We can't, I fear, 'cause there are no shade trees up here. Say, you have kicked about most every trip we've ever made."

The goose, of course, heard what they said, and t'ward a great big cloud it sped. In just about a minute they were hidden from the sun.

"Imagine this," said Coppy. "Gee, the bird's as smart as he can be. He heard wee Duncy's wish and, now, just look what he has done."

The next thing that the Tinies knew, right toward the earth the big bird flew. The basket settled on the ground. "All out," wee Scouty said. "The bird is all tired out, I fear, so let's just stay and see what's here." And then he turned the goose loose, and up through the air it sped.

An explanation of "How and Why the Backbone Is the Key to Health" will be given by Dr. James Workman during the "Keep Smiling" program to be broadcast from KREG, starting at 6 o'clock tonight.

"That the backbone is the key to health, will, to the uninformed, appear not only improbable but ridiculous," Dr. Workman said. "However, in view of the fact that this idea is the foundation of a separate and distinct school in relieving sickness with thousands of its practitioners located all over the world and with millions of persons as staunch supporters of it after they have given it due consideration and investigation, one should pause and hesitate most seriously before arriving at unfavorable conclusions."

The musical portion of tonight's "Keep Smiling" program will take its audience upon another musical journey of the world and will feature some recent releases from England.

"PIOUS BILL" TO THE RESCUE OF MOTION PICTURES

Yesterday a conference of some of the religious leaders of the country was held in the city of New York over the Legion of Decency drive. Representatives of all religious bodies, Catholic, Jewish and Protestant, were present at the meeting.

The Reverend Joseph A. McCaffery, pastor of the Holy Cross Roman Catholic church, was made chairman of the meeting. This committee will seek a meeting with leaders in the motion picture industry, and impress upon them the determination of the religious group to boycott these vicious pictures.

The chairman of the meeting made one strong statement. We desire to quote it: "I am not voicing the official opinion of the conference, but it is my personal opinion that the situation will never be cleaned up until Will Hays is thrown out of office."

While we would not for a moment either charge or credit Will Hays, or any other single individual, as being responsible for the filth in the films, yet we are confident, from a close observation of the industry now these many years, that the main man responsible for it is the man who was named by the chairman of this meeting—Will Hayes.

He has been paid an enormous salary and has been used originally as a "brownstone front," a pious elder in a church, as a guarantee that the mothers and fathers could trust the pictures that were produced under the general direction of the organization which he headed. Under that guise, there has been poured into the minds and souls of the youth of America the filth of which most of us are aware.

From time to time, as people rose in mighty protest, "Pious Bill" would make a few incantations, sprinkle some perfume water around over things, and say: "These are the resolutions we are going to follow. You can trust me."

A man who has betrayed the confidence that has been reposed in him by the decent people of America is absolutely unworthy of trust and unworthy of any defense whatever. This committee would do well to refuse to go into a conference with that kind of man, because the results of the years of his work now show plainly that you cannot depend on any agreement pertaining to the character of films to which he is a party.

They have been able to mislead and deceive and almost ruin the public by the method which they adopted in taking Hays, a conspicuous politician, at the height of his power, one of the leading laymen in his church, and pay him a big salary to put this over on the public.

But the motion picture industry now must "pay the fiddler." This organization ought to keep alive and it ought not to trust any statements but only believe what it finally sees.

The filthy pictures should be driven out, but the man under whose direction these filthy pictures have been put on, at the very period when he was declaring he was "protecting the public from them," should be driven as far out of the industry as the pictures themselves. If he is retained, you can count upon it that there is going to be no permanent change.

SERA SHOULD BRING HELP TO LARGEST NUMBER POSSIBLE

Saturday there was published in The Register a resolution passed by the Joiners' Association of Orange county. This resolution urged that the SERA authorities, in order to spread the relief money of the federal government as far as possible, should establish a budget plan for practically all the workers, rather than has been done heretofore with just the lower strata. In part, the resolution reads as follows:

"Believing it to be the purpose of President Roosevelt to relieve distress as much as possible by the use of government money, and spreading same to the largest number of people, thereby rendering aid where needed, and inasmuch as a budget plan has been established for those who are or may be assigned to the various projects, we earnestly request that the clerks, stenographers and any other employes where it is possible so to do, be placed on an equal budget with those employed on the projects in construction, thereby giving employment to more people and a wider distribution of government money."

We believe that this should be very seriously and favorably considered. The object should be to extend the money as far as possible, and at the same time, afford relief. There were single women stenographers in the CWA receiving several times the amount of money that men who were heads of families received, and they were getting their money regularly.

If this were budgeted, and a division of labor to a larger extent, paying each approximately the same amount per hour, the money would either serve more people, or the amount would extend for a longer period.

Of course the directing heads will have to be on the job all the time, but under them there could be this larger spread. This resolution has considerable merit, and certainly inasfar as it can be done, consistent with carrying on the work, justice should demand that it be done.

THAT WHITE LINE ON THE ROAD

For many months the National Safety Council has sought the name of the man or woman who first devised the white line in the middle of the road which has done more to safeguard automobile travel than any other device that has been employed since the automobile was invented.

At the summer conference of the California Federation held in San Francisco it was announced that Mrs. June McCarroll a member of the Woman's club of Indio was the originator of the white line. Mrs. McCarroll whom organizations and individuals all over the country have been anticipating honoring, worked diligently, using her own time and money to get the idea started.

Up to this time the name of the one who conceived the idea of the white line has eluded much effort directed toward discovery. The origin of the white line and its sponsor seemed to have been wrapt up in the same mystery as the name of the man who first employed fire to cook his food or the man who first used implements which have now come to be the commonplaces of everyday life. Various reports have come from different parts of the country as to the original use of the line, only to be refused by reports of an earlier use in some other part of the country.

No greater discovery in the interest of human safety has ever been made. A simple device in itself, it has nevertheless been of incalculable worth. Measured by the lives it has saved and the confidence it inspired in all automobile drivers, that white line deserves to rank with the discoveries which have ruled diphtheria, yellow fever, and small pox from the list of human diseases which in times past decimated the human race. Keeping to the right of that line, we round curves and climb hills, which obscure the sight of the road beyond, without fear or thought of approaching autos at a speed approximated only by the swiftest moving trains.

It is to the credit of mankind that with here and there an exception all automobile drivers observe these lines. The road has been safe for us all because of the simple device.

SECRETARY ICKES CALLS THEM DOWN

Secretary Ickes of the Department of the Interior called the employees of his department together a short time ago and gave them a lecture as to what was expected of them. It appears that they had been loafing on the job, and that at the close of the day some of them made such an unseemly rush to get away from their jobs that they actually trampled down a woman who chanced to be in their way.

We have all heard of the man who established a factory to polish up worn-out brains. A patient came to him one day and left his brains to be cleaned. Weeks passed, and he never called for them. The brain cleaner ran upon him one day upon the street and informed him that his brains were all ready for him when he wanted to call. He was told that he no longer had need of his brains; he had gotten a government job.

Uncle Sam has been an indulgent boss. Consideration for employees is a commendable trait. But some people do not appreciate such consideration. They take advantage of it. In a kindly but firm way, Secretary Ickes has informed the employees of his department that the government is entitled to faithful service. His investigator found six men with twelve feet upon the desk having a gorgeous time at government expense. He informed them that he had 66,000 applicants for jobs in the department and warned the drones what generally happens to such creatures in a beehive when the real workers have exhausted their patience.

Saving the Floral Species

Palo Alto Times

We heartily endorse the views of the visiting plant biologists at Stanford this week that more should be done for the preservation of the native flora of our country, especially in California where the variety of specimens is so great, and the popular appreciation of this natural heritage is so poorly developed. Dr. J. C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, summarized the case well in saying: "We should preserve the forests for their botanical specimens as well as for their lumber. In Europe they are intent even on preserving what remnants of the primeval still exist, while we in America are lax about preserving what we have in abundance."

It is an ironic fact that the more we do to make the wild, scenic retreats accessible for the pleasure of the people, the less we ultimately are going to have left for their enjoyment. The all-year highway to Yosemite, for instance, has brought the scenic marvels of that wonderland within reach of countless more thousands of people than ever before, many of whom express their appreciation of the boon by denuding the contiguous areas of the beautiful Mariposa lilies that once were so numerous, but now are getting scarcer year by year.

The scientists propose that there be more state and national floral reserves established for the preservation of the menaced flora. But the people need not wait for those steps to be taken before getting the protective program under way. A decision by the people themselves not to molest the wild flowers would be sufficient if enough would make themselves parties to the resolution.

More Islands Wanted?

Detroit News

General Charles Sherrill, former American Minister to Turkey, has revived the idea that Great Britain and France could pay part of their debts to the United States by handing us some of the Caribbean islands.

The British islands in the Caribbean are Barbados, Jamaica, the Leeward Islands, Trinidad, Tobago and the Windward group. Jamaica and Trinidad are the largest of these islands; three-quarters of the population is of African descent. Concerning Antigua, one of the Leeward group, the interesting information is furnished that in 1931 the birth rate was 30.48 per 1000, the death rate 36.02, and 75.52 per cent of the births illegitimate. Nearly all the islands are overpopulated, and offer no advantage, either to American labor or American capital. If we took them over, we could probably ruin them in no time by extending our coastal shipping laws to them, and then they would be subjects of our charity, like Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The French islands in that part of the world are Guadeloupe and its dependencies, and Martinique; they have a total area of about 1600 square miles. How much are they worth to us? Probably less than nothing. Certainly if we paid only $25,000,000 for the Virgin Islands—which, according to the argument at the time, were worth considerable to us as protection for the Panama Canal—we would not set the value of the French territories as much more; and $25,000,000 would not be enough to cover a single year's installment under the treaty.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

BE WARNED BY ME

A motor car which uses alcohol for fuel will shortly be on the market.

I had a little motor car
Which, in the good old days,
Because it travelled fast and far
I fondly used to praise.
I drove it here, I drove it there,
Through many, many lands,
Delighted that it everywhere
Observed my least commands.

And then one day, along last fall—
A luckless day, indeed—
I chanced to hear that alcohol
Would much enhance its speed.
And, having just about enough
Dinero in the bank,
I bought a gallon of the stuff
And poured it in the tank.

That car of mine, so docile once,
With neither spur nor goad
Began to do amazing stunts
Along the public road.
It balked, it hopped, it leaped aside,
It jumped across a fen,
Fell in a gutter three feet wide,
And then leaped out again.

Completely out of my control,
It did a step of jazz;
It really seemed to have a soul—
The kind a demon has.
At last it practically flew
Across a pair of bars,
And fell asleep, so I am through
With alcoholic cars.

AMERICANISM: Knowing that your Congressman's power is based on length of service; ditching him for a new man who makes bigger promises.

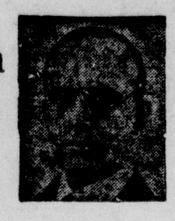
Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK



THE DOCILE MAJORITY

Along with millions of Americans I was shocked by the news of the last few days out of Germany.

The agents of a ruling Chancellor shoot down a retired Chancellor.

It was as if the federal agents of a Roosevelt should execute a Hoover and arrest men who had served in his Cabinet.

And yet the news dispatches have said that the German rank and file were going about their business as if nothing had happened.

"Think of such a thing happening in the United States," said a man to me in the club car of a train between Chicago and Washington.

Of course such a thing is not going to happen literally in the United States, but the basic factors that make such a thing possible in Germany are present in our American situation.

The majority is docile.

Given the requisite vigor and rhetorical expertness leadership can get away with almost anything in America as in Germany.

I am convinced that, given a little astuteness in setting the stage, the Roosevelt administration could declare martial law throughout the United States, on the grounds that it was necessary in order to meet the menace of depression, and get away with it.

The docile millions would accept it and go on with a business-as-usual air just as they have in Germany.

As a schoolman I am a little discouraged that this should be so. I should like to think that universal schooling had made us different. I am afraid it has not.

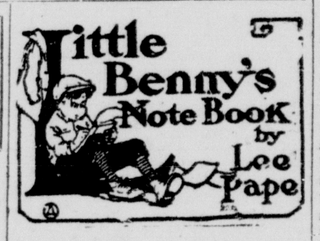
Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape



I was sitting on my front steps Sattiday afternoon waiting for something to happen, and Puds Simkins and Leroy Shooster came up. Puds saying, We're going around to the Little Grand to see the new Kut Up Komedy, go on in and find out if you can go, why dont you?

Nobody's home except my father and he's asleep taking a nap and if I wake him up he'll be sure to say no on account of me waking him up, I said, and Leroy said, Maybe he aint really asleep for real.

Sure he is, he's snoring, I said. If he was snoring loud he'd wake up by himself to find out what was making all the noise, hut he's snoring easy like a bee and that means he's nowhere neer waking up. If he woke up natural he mite give me money to go, I said, and Puds said, Well how about if we catch a lot of flies and throw them in the room, there's nothing like flies for making people wake up.

Nothing doing, that's his least favorite way of being woke up, I said, and Leroy Shooster said, Then how about if you go in and we ring the bell for you, and we keep on ringing it till he wakes up.

G, that mite work, I said. And I went in the house and the doorbell started to ring without stopping as if somebody had stuck a pin in it, and I kept guard at the living room door to see when pop would wake up, wich he did so sudden I didn't have time to duck out of site, and he yelled, Isn't anybody ever going to anser that bell? Yee gods, what is this, a nitemare? What's the ideer of standing there gawking in here when the doorbell is ringing like a thousand delirium trimmings? he said.

Yes sir, I meen I was just going, pop, I said. And I quick ran down and made Puds take his finger off the button, saying, He didn't wake up very natural, you 2 better go on and go ahead.

Wich they did, me taking a little wawk.

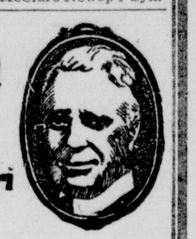
J. A. Beek of Balboa Island, Orange county harbor master, filed application with the State Railroad commission, to establish an automobile ferry between Balboa and Balboa Island under direction of the Balboa Island Transportation and Development company. There was one passenger ferry with a second and larger boat under construction, but no accommodations for automobiles.

Announcement was made that all high school text books and supplies were to be furnished free to pupils when schools opened again in the fall. This was in compliance with a law just passed by the state legislature. It would effect a saving of approximately $7000 to parents of Santa Ana High school students during the school year.

The United States Weather Bureau sent notice to the Orange County Harbor commission, of its intention to erect a 50-foot steel weather tower on the bluffs

Our Children By Angelo Patri



THE OFFENDER

This is a plea for the child who offends parents and teachers. Please believe me when I tell you that the child who habitually annoys or offends does not really want to do so. He would be different if he could. All children are naughty once in a while. They feel like making mischief and they get a certain joy out of the daring deeds but they do not make a habit of it. They forget about being troublesome and lose themselves in their work and play. The truly troublesome offender that gives teachers gray hair and mothers sleepless nights is a different order of child. He needs help, not punishment.

Take the child who wiggles and squirms, loses his place, speaks out of turn, fails in lesson after lesson. His teacher tries all her remedies in vain. She appeals to the parents and they begin a series of rewards and punishments. "If you don't bring home a better report you will get a sound whipping." "If you bring home a report card with an A you will get a new bicycle." For an hour, a day, maybe a couple of days the spell holds. Then the old story over again.

That child wants to be good. He wants to get a good mark, win the A and the bicycle. Above all he covets the applause of his classmates and teacher. Then why doesn't he try to win them? Because, for some reason or other he is limited in his effort and cannot succeed. He has not the power to succeed. Punishment only serves to increase the difficulty. The cause must be discovered and removed and then the offending child will succeed. He wanted to all along.

We found one offender who was suffering from hunger. He ate his meals but they were not nourishing him and the doctor fixed him up speedily. A girl who became fear stricken every time she was called on to read and fell gasping into her seat every time she was called upon was discovered to have about thirty per cent normal hearing. She had never heard words clearly enough to recognize them. Special instruction fixed her up and her troublesome symptoms departed. A child stole anything and everything with appalling persistency. Police and probation officers, parents and teacher worked in vain until it was discovered that this child was unloved and unwanted in the home that sheltered him. When he was placed in a good home and shown that he was wanted and loved, the stealing stopped. The habitual truant, idler, mischief maker, needs examination, sympathetic understanding examination followed by sympathetic and understanding care. After that he does well.

He does well unless he is a feeble minded child who is being forced to reach a standard beyond his powers. He must be given a chance in his own field, on his own level of achievement. Then he will do well. Some of the worst disciplinary cases in the schools have turned out to be kindly, industrious workers under proper conditions. Don't hate the offender. Study to cure him.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)

MARITIME UNIONS BEFORE BOARD

City Council Scuttles Economy Program, Opens Purse

RESOLUTION TO PROTECT FUNDS LOST

MOTION NOT SECONDED

Mayor Warner Declines at Request of LeGaye to Leave His Chair to Act

THE CITY COUNCIL served notice on the taxpayers last night that it did not intend to conduct an economical administration of city affairs, reserving tax funds only for necessary governmental expense.

It also served notice on its friends that the bars were down and that applications for city tax funds to be spent by private organizations would be welcomed and sympathetically considered.

Such was the intent of its action in refusing to adopt a resolution of policy submitted by Councilman A. F. LeGaye setting up a policy of economy and accountability in the determination of the budget for 1934-35.

Moves Adoption

After City Clerk Ed Vegely had read the resolution, LeGaye moved its adoption and asked for a second to his motion. William Penn inquired if this was the same resolution that had died for want of a second at the last council meeting, and was told by LeGaye that it was the same proposition.

Mayor E. G. Warner held his gavel suspended for a brief moment, then declared that the motion was lost for want of a second and called for new business.

LeGaye refused to be diverted and asked Warner if he would step from the chair and second the motion, but the mayor hurriedly whacked his gavel again and declared loudly that the motion was lost for want of a second.

The meeting was attended by the largest crowd for many months and overflowed from the room out on the sidewalk, street and curbing. Every available seat

TWO KILLED MONDAY IN AIRPLANE CRASH

SAN BERNARDINO, July 10.—(UP)—Two men were dead today and two others, passengers of a cabin plane which crashed at an airport near here late yesterday, lay injured critically in a hospital. All were from Los Angeles.

The dead were George Hague, prominent air speed flier and pilot of the plane, and Attorney Sam R. Edwards.

R. H. Sampson, another attorney, and Assistant Fire Chief Harry Claybourne were injured seriously. Doctors said they may die.

Hague was killed instantly in the crash. Edwards died several hours later in a hospital.

Sampson had hired the plane for an air trip here where he was attending a court trial. The plane apparently failed to gain altitude in taking off and struck a row of trees, witnesses said.

WOMEN PICKET AS HUSBANDS JAILED

Grimly, they patrolled entrances to the black boglands while a score of striking weeders arrested in clashes with deputies yesterday, awaited hearings.

"They can't arrest a woman without a warrant, and while they are getting warrants we can raise plenty of hell," declared Mrs. Cynthis Lenhart, wife of one of the jailed men. She organized 21 women pickets to guard entrances to the rich muck, where barefooted strikebreakers are attempting to save the million-dollar crop from rampant weeds.

PARAGUAY AND BOLIVIA FIGHT BLOODY BATTLE

Forty Thousand Troops Attack Fort Ballivian in Gran Chaco War

BUENOS AIRES, July 10.—(UP)—Bolivian and Paraguayan forces were locked today in a major battle, which gave indication of determining the victor in the bloody Gran Chaco war.

Forty thousand Paraguayan troops were attacking Fort Ballivian, stronghold of the Bolivian forces near the Pilcomayo and key position to the whole Chaco region.

The Bolivian defenders were the picked men of the army and had orders to defend their position to the last man.

Fighting was fierce and bloody.

The Paraguayans advanced one kilometer—five-eighths of a mile—through the thick line of advance trenches before the fort. This made it possible for artillery to advance within range of the fort, according to Paraguayan official reports.

Two Attacks

General Jose Estgarribia, French trained graduate of the famous St. Cyr Academy, pursued his favorite tactics by attacking from more than one front. While his main force beleaguered Ballivian others were detailed to make secondary attacks on the El Carmen and Canada strongest positions.

Paraguayan official reports of this, the fifth major attack on Ballivian and the first to show progress, described the one kilo-

WATER IS HAULED TO VALLEY TOWNS

EL CENTRO, Cal., July 10.—(UP)—The Imperial Valley, parched by drought and gravely menaced by a water shortage, received its first "outside" water today when six tank cars were delivered over the Southern Pacific for domestic consumption.

The cars contained about 70,000 gallons of water and were shipped from Mecca to be "spotted" at six points in the Rurap area. Shipments will continue daily until 200,000 gallons are delivered, provided that much is necessary to bridge the emergency.

Although city dwellers are not endangered at present from a shortage, the situation is expected to become more serious daily unless heavy and quick rains set in in the upper basin of the Colorado river. Water through the irrigation district canals, which are fed by the Colorado, is still sufficient to care for livestock and crops but is gradually getting lower. The precious supply is being prorated among ranchers.

The fresh water supply shipped into the valley was purchased with funds of the federal drought relief administration.

Nazi Reich Ordered To Meet Friday

Chancellor Hitler to Address Legislature and Review Rebellion

BERLIN, July 10.—(UP)—The all-Nazi Reichstag was summoned today to meet at 8 p. m. Friday to give its formal blessing to the acts of Adolf Hitler's government in suppressing the Roehm revolt.

Ten minutes after announcement of the summons, German newspapers were ordered to make no mention of it. It was explained that the meeting had been summoned as announced, but that the time might be altered before Friday.

The chancellor himself is expected to address the gathering of the Nazi legislature, and review the suppression of the storm troop rebellion.

It was certain that whatever the chancellor had to say would be approved unanimously, by cheers and, if desired, by vote. There is no opposition representation.

Indications were the cabinet spokesman would confine himself to general terms.

Reorganization of the storm troop organization into a compact, blindly-loyal force of picked men, were still in the discussion stage today, and seemed likely to remain there until Hitler and his aides had made a thorough study.

There was discussion whether the session would be made the occasion for the long promised statement of killings in reprisal for the alleged plot of Ernst Roehm and his fellow troop leaders to overthrow the government.

The decree calling the meeting made it plain that the Reichstag was expected to do no legislating; that it was convened with but one idea—reading of the government's statement.

This is the first time the Reichstag has met since January 30, anniversary of Hitler's accession to power. The January meeting also was called only to hear and approve a government statement.

The meeting, it was believed, would be held again in the Kroll opera house. The Reichstag building, badly damaged by the incendiary fire of February, 1933, has not been fully repaired.

It was expected the government's statement, besides giving full background of the revolt, might review the recent Flensburg congress of Nazi party leaders and go into foreign politics.

MERRIAM TO SEEK GOVERNMENT FUNDS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 10.—(UP)—Gov. Frank F. Merriam has under consideration a plan to file a supplemental application with the federal government for a sum sufficient at least to start work on the proposed $170,000,000 central valley water project, it was revealed today.

Governor Merriam said he had asked state engineer Edward Hyatt concerning the advisability of filing such an application after President Franklin D. Roosevelt had informed him that allocation of the full amount asked for the project was "impossible at this time," and suggested application for a smaller amount from the PWA.

UPTON SINCLAIR IS HECKLED IN SPEECH

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(UP)—To a heckling audience that persisted in interrupting him as he spoke, Upton Sinclair, noted author and gubernatorial aspirant, denied that he was a communist from the platform of the Dreamland auditorium here last night.

"Why aren't you a communist?" a heckler shouted.

"Don't throw anyone out," he said. "I answer all questions."

WHAT THE COUNCIL REJECTED

"Resolved, that it shall be the policy of the city council in making up the annual budget for the year 1934-35, that no money shall be budgeted or set aside from the treasury of the city, which is to be directly or indirectly contributed to any private group or organization, nor shall any money be so appropriated, except for the absolutely necessary functions of government and then only in amounts absolutely necessary and to be expended by those duly and regularly elected officials, so that the responsibility for such expenditure can be placed by the voter upon such officials."

LEGION BOSSES HUNT FOR NEW DEAL OPPONENT

Political Chiefs in Veterans Organization to Fight Roosevelt

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 10.—(UP)—The "king makers" of the American Legion today were reported laying the ground work for election of a national commander opposed to President Roosevelt and the new deal.

The "king makers" are a small group of Legion politicians who have controlled the election of national commanders almost from the beginning of the World War Veterans organization.

Republican and strongly anti-Roosevelt, the faction is credited with electing Edward A. Hayes, the present national commander, who has criticized the new deal vigorously.

Leaders in the movement, Republicans all, are:

Constitutionally the legion is a non-political organization dedicated to support those candidates best suited for office and who reputedly have the best interests of the veterans at heart.

The "king makers" plan of operation is to win the election of delegates to the national convention who are opposed to the new deal.

Their activities are said to be extending into the state Legion conventions which will name delegates to the national meeting in Miami, Fla., next October.

A so-called reform element is reported ready to fight to rid the organization of the inner council's domination.

The two men mentioned in Legion circles here as the most promising candidates for national commander are Frank Belgrano, California banker, and Ray Murphy, of Iowa.

Belgrano is a Republican but is in sympathy with the new deal program.

WILL HAYS CONFERS WITH MOVIE HEADS

HOLLYWOOD, July 10.—(UP)—Will H. Hays, "czar of the films" by virtue of his position as president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors association, today was closeted with executives of the industry in an obvious "clinic" over nation-wide demand for cleaner films.

The film czar slipped into town with as little attention as possible and began immediately to confer with the executives after refusing to confer with newspapermen.

Hays was accompanied on the studio tour by Joseph I. Breen, his assistant and the one-man jury delegated by the producers to censor all future productions.

ARMY BALLOON AWAITING ONLY FAIR WEATHER

Huge Stratosphere Craft Christened "Explorer" Monday Afternoon

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 10.—(UP)—Tourists and sightseers swarmed the streets of Rapid City today, eagerly awaiting the take-off of the giant balloon "Explorer" on its stratosphere flight.

Major William E. Kepner, pilot, and Capt. Albert W. Stevens, scientific observer, and members of the ground crew marked time as adverse weather reports delayed setting the hour for the ascension.

A steady stream of cars rolled up the 11-mile grade to the sheltered bowl in the Black hills where the 3,000,000 cubic feet bag was ready for inflation, bearing tourists from far scattered sections of the country.

Within half an hour license plates of 22 states were noted on the streets of Rapid City. The influx of visitors was described as unparalleled in the history of this resort town.

V. E. Jakl, government meteorologist from Kansas City who was sent here to aid in gathering information on weather conditions for the balloonists, checked reports from points many hundreds of miles from Rapid City.

Three low pressure areas in the immeriate vicinity made it inadvisable for the balloon to take off today as originally planned.

A high pressure area must prevail for many hundreds of miles to the east and south for the huge craft to take off with a maximum of safety and to insure the best results in photography and observation.

It was estimated it would take 12 hours to inflate the balloon which will tower as high as a 27-story building when filled with gas.

Major Kepner and Captain Stevens estimated the flight would take 12 hours, four for the ascent with a maximum altitude of 15 miles as the goal, four for observation at the "ceiling" and four for the descent

Officials planned to permit only members of the flight and ground crews and newspaper men to enter the bowl while the balloon is being inflated.

Hydrogen gas is to be used, and every precaution is being taken to guard against the possibility of fire.

Other spectators will witness the ascension from the rim of the canyon, outside guard lines that have been thrown about it.

From the rim thousands of tourists and most of the population of Rapid City witnessed the christening of the craft shortly before dusk yesterday.

DILLINGER'S GANG BATTLES SHERIFF

FOND DU LAC, Wis., July 10.—(UP)—The story of an undersheriff and two policemen that they engaged in a running gun battle with gangsters fleeing with the body of a dead or wounded companion today spurred a new hunt for John Dillinger.

The officers, forced to give up the chase when machine guns spat at them from the bandit car, said one of the men in the front seat looked like the Hoosier outlaw.

A few minutes before the exciting chase a wrecked car, splotched with blood and bearing the marks of bullet fire, was found in a ditch five miles east of here.

No Progress Reported On Naval Limit

France Proposed Security Treaty to Supplement Lacarno Pact

LONDON, July 10.—(UP)—British-French diplomatic conversations, principally centering around an Eastern European security treaty, were adjourned today.

A formal communique said that besides the French plan for the security treaty and the naval conversations, preparatory to the 1935 conference, the future of the disarmament conference was among topics discussed.

The communique said:

"The friendly conversations between the British and French ministers which were concluded at the foreign office this morning made it possible for the two governments to appreciate clearly their respective points of view on the questions under discussion.

"These questions included the French proposals for additional mutual security in eastern Europe, the future of the disarmament conference, and preparations for the naval conference in 1935. In connection with this last point, M. Pietri will remain in London a few days longer."

Both Great Britain and France expect Germany to demand representation at the 1935 conference. Britain is believed to be not adverse to German representation. If Germany is represented, France wants Russia and perhaps other countries there.

It was learned authoritatively that the United States delegation prefers to limit the conference to the five nations now bound by naval treaties—the United States, Britain, Japan, France and Italy.

No progress seemed to have been made, or to be likely, in the French effort to persuade Italy not to build two 35,000 ton battleships.

Barthou's plan for a new treaty of security would include Germany, Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Esthonia, Latvia and Lithaunia. It would supplement the Locarno treaty.

There were signs that Britain, once cold to the treaty, might give it approval.

OIL PROBE RESUMED AT BARTLESVILLE

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., July 10.—(UP)—The special house oil investigating committee came here today to ask officials of producing companies why oil prices failed to drop when congress passed no control legislation, as it had predicted they would.

Informal sessions were scheduled with executives of the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company, large operator in the Oklahoma City field, and the Phillips Petroleum company.

The committee, headed by Rep William P. Cole jr., (D.), Maryland, came from Tulsa where conferences were held yesterday with oil executives. The group was named to study the oil problem from federal angles after the Disney control bill failed to reach passage at the regular session of congress.

ANOTHER REPRIEVE IS GRANTED WOMAN

ALBANY, N. Y., July 10.—(UP)—Governor Lehman today granted a new reprieve to Mrs. Anna Antonio, Albany, mother of three children who was scheduled to be executed in the electric chair Thursday night for the insurance slaying of her husband.

The reprieve was until the week beginning August 5th, and included the men, Vincent Saetta and Sam Faracci.

Lehman at the same time, announced that Chief Judge Cuthbert W. Pound, had agreed to convene the court of appeals in session as soon as possible to pass upon an appeal for a new trial.

BOURBON BOSS IS SHOT DOWN BY GANGSTERS

Kansas City Political Head Ambushed in Front of Downtown Hotel

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 10.—(UP)—John Lazia, a north side political chieftain and power in the underworld, was shot down by gangsters early today as he stepped from an automobile in front of the Park Central hotel.

Seriously wounded by eight machine gun and shotgun slugs, Lazia was taken to St. Joseph hospital. A blood transfusion was made in a desperate effort to save his life.

Lazia, under federal conviction for failing to file income tax returns, and his wife and two friends, Charles Carolla and wife, had just stopped their car in front of the Armour boulevard hotel when two gangsters arose from behind an ambush of shrubbery, lawn chairs and a retaining wall.

As the Democratic leader, reputed lieutenant of Tom Pendergast, Missouri political boss, stepped to the driveway a blast of gunfire roared. Two score shots followed, the rat-tat-tat of the machine gun being punctuated by the deep boom of the shotgun.

Lazia sank to the pavement.

Carolla, who was driving the machine, pushed Mrs. Lazia who was in the rear seat, and Mrs. Carolla, who was in the front seat, to the floor. Then he shot the car out of the driveway and cut back eastward on Armour boulevard. He returned a few minutes later.

Meanwhile, Lazia, whose name often had been mentioned in gangland shootings, was lying prostrate on the pavement, calling for help.

ST. LOUIS, July 10.—(UP)—Dominic Gambrone, 57, was found shot to death on an outlying road last night, an apparent gangland ride victim.

Arms neatly folded on the chest, the body was discovered by Richard Gruetzmacher, who narrowly missed running over it in his automobile.

Police here said Gambrone had been arrested about ten times prior to 1922, but they had no record of him since.

EDITOR NAMED TO STATE FAIR BOARD

SACRAMENTO, July 10.—(UP)—Appointment of Horace E. Thomas, editor and co-publisher of the Marysville Appeal-Democrat, as a member of the state fair board was announced by the governor's office today.

Thomas was named for the term ending February 1, 1937. He will fill the position made vacant by the death of Ellis Franklin of Colfax, and probably will have charge of the educational exhibits.

SHOTS ARE EXCHANGED

Hauling of Freight in Harbor is Increased Under Militia Protection

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(UP)—Maritime unions today laid before the president's mediation board, their version of the controversy which has precipitated the Pacific coast marine strike, now in its third month.

The board met at 10 a. m. for hearings described as being "designed to bring the true background of the strike before the public."

As the board met the state militia, which took over patrol of the San Francisco water front after last Thursday's bloody riots, extended its sentry lines to include Islais Creek at the southern end of the waterfront. State-owned grain warehouses are located there. Company G, 184th infantry, from Chico, Calif., was given the area to patrol.

Before the mediation board went into session J. C. Rohlfs, spokesman for the steamship companies, issued a statement denying the employers had refused to meet striking seamen and discuss their demands.

Willing To Confer

"Shipowners will be glad," he said, "to meet with the representatives of their employes whenever they can be certain they are dealing with the actual spokesmen of the employes."

Meantime the strike committee of the maritime unions went ahead with its promotion of a general strike. Realizing that the danger is real, merchants were filling their shelves with available stock and reported housewives were doing likewise.

The important development of the day in this phase of the situation was the announcement that the Alameda County Central Labor Council, in which 32,000 members of 79 unions are represented, had voted to poll its unions on the question of a general strike. This organization covers Alameda

LATE NEWS FLASHES

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(UP)—Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson revealed late today that he had recommended to President Roosevelt the placing of the national recovery administration under a non-partisan commission.

SEQUOIA NATIONAL PARK, Calif., July 10.—(UP)—Two hundred fire fighters battled desperately today to hold a raging forest blaze which threatened one of California's most valuable pine stands. The fire, which already has destroyed 1000 acres of brush and small timber, jumped control lines twice and entered the famous Salt Creek pinery, but was held again behind new lines.

Three More Vote

Three more unions voted to support a general strike in the last 24 hours, they being the hoisting and portable engineers, auto mechanics and barbers.

Militiamen patrolling the waterfront during the night fired on two automobiles which failed to stop at barricades. One car, it developed, was driven by Harlan Dykes, Santa Clara university basketball coach. Five shots were fired at him, one taking effect in the fender of the car. He explained that he had not understood the regulations and was released.

Hauling of freight and general activities in the harbor were increased under the militia's protection. Trucks operated by the industrial association were taking freight from four piers—Nos. 32, 34, 38 and 40—to the Industrial association warehouses.

HICKMAN CALM AS TRIAL IS OPENED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(UP)—Millard Hickman, dapper marine engineer, sat calmly in ocurt today while his attorneys announced they would rely upon testimony of Blanche McKay, buxome, blonde "alibi girl," to prove the 45-year-old "family man" was not responsible for the revoluting murder of Louise Jeppesen, 23.

While Miss Jeppesen—pretty Ogden, Utah, Sunday school teacher who became a San Francisco "party girl"—was being beaten and attacked in Golden Gate park last May 13, Hickman was in his apartment with Miss McKay, defense attorneys told the court.

Miss McKay displayed no emotion during the attorney's recitation. Hickman ,father of two girls, appeared calm and on the verge of boredom.

Selection of a jury was to be completed today, with first testimony expected tomorrow.

BUILDERS TO MEET AT ORANGE TONIGHT

Latest developments in the SERA as relating to public and private construction work in the county will be one of the chief topics of discussion tonight at the monthly meeting of the Orange County Builders Exchange at the Orange American Legion clubhouse, starting at 6:30 o'clock.

Charles Fallert, manager of the National Reemployment Service, will give a short talk and answer questions concerning the service and its relation to construction jobs. Congressman Sam L. Collins will speak briefly.

The meeting is in charge of the metal workers and hardware dealer members, with John Knox acting as chairman. Thermon Means is supervising the general arrangements under President C. M. Gilbert.

Boy Apprehended For Gas Thefts

Following repeated thefts of gasoline, oil and tools from his ranch, D. D. Field, living on East Seventeenth street north of Tustin, secured the aid of sheriff's officers yesterday and apprehended a youth who admitted the thefts.

The boy revealed that he had stolen 25 gallons of gasoline and one gallon of oil during recent weeks. He paid for the fuel and was not held by Deputy Sheriff Harvey Gulick, who handled the case.

SANTA MONICA, July 10. (To the Editor of The Register:) Every day we get new surprises from Europe. Sunday some fellow from Germany named Hess, who said he was speaking for Hitler, told France there wasn't any use of them fighting and that they would like to make up. It all sounded so friendly that you started peeping under the bottom to see what was hid.

Mr. Roosevelt visited our Virgin Islands, he seems to have got away pretty good. Two or three years ago I flew into those islands just a couple of weeks after Mr. Hoover had been there, and those Virginis were sure sore. But Mr. Roosevelt promised 'em a distillery.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

metre advance as having overwhelmed the third line of the enemy trenches, and forcing a retreat by its defenders toward the Pilcomayo river which forms the frontier between the Chaco and Argentina.

Capture of some munitions was claimed.

Defend Position

Bolivians, the communiques said, showed determination to defend the Ballivian key position at all costs. Bolivian prisoners were quoted as saying that their high command was concentrating all available men at the fort.

Paraguayan planes were co-operating with the ground force, and four of them bombed Fort Ballivian. However, according to Bolivian official dispatches, the bombs fell 1 1-2 kilometers from the fort proper and did no damage. It was asserted that two Bolivian aviators fought the four planes and sent one down in flames, 1,500 meters behind the Bolivian lines.

Bolivian dispatches, admitting the retreat of one kilometer, indicated that what was expected to be a great battle was just beginning.

It was said that the Paraguayan casualties were heavy, and that the advance was brought to a sharp halt after the initial progress.

Bolivian as well as Paraguayan dispatches emphasized the importance of the combat and the fierceness of the fight. Bolivian dispatches indicated optimism as to the outcome.

Council Approves Opening of Club

The opening of the Valencia Business Men's club at 309 1-2 East Broadway was approved by the city council last night, on the recommendation of Police Chief Floyd Howard and City Attorney Clyde Downing.

Downing said that he and Howard had made a thorough investigation of J. Leonard Cole and F. E. Finster, the promoters of the club, and felt no hesitancy in recommending that the application be granted. He pointed out, however, that the club would have to be conducted in a lawful manner, be conducted solely as a business men's club to offer recreation, be in the form of one big room on the second floor, and conform to other promises made in the request.

The motion to grant the application was made by Councilman Fred Rowland and seconded by Plummer Bruns.

ALCOHOL EVILS CITED BY TWO DRY LECTURERS

FULLERTON, July 10.—The solution of the question of drinking alcoholic beverages lies in education of youth as to the true nature of alcohol, both Dr. William L. Stidger of Boston and Col. Frank B. Ebbert of Washington, D. C., agreed in talks last night to a good crowd at the Fullerton Methodist church.

Dr. Stidger, lecturer, author and poet, speaking under the Methodist board of temperance and public morals, Col. Ebbert, one of the authors of the Volstead act, traveling in the interest of temperance, each delivered a powerful lecture on the evils of alcohol.

In his talk, Dr. Stidger called attention to the scientific fact, which has not been taugh to youth of the past generation, that alcohol is listed, scientifically with cocaine, morphine, heroin, and all other deadly drugs. He said training of youth along that line will solve the problem, and that although at the present time the cause of prohibition is the most unpopular cause in America, for that reason and that the use of alcohol is the most deadening to morals of any drug, the "ministers and Christians should sound a trumpet of no uncertain sound; for if the trumpet sound an uncertain sound, who shall prepare for battle?"

He advised that first Christians must realize that to create a new forward movement, it must be realized that the temperance question is God's movement, and after that realization, "get started; ask no quarter, and train youth as to the devastating use of alcohol; it is the business of the church to do this; it isn't necessary for the church to revisualize the saloon of the old days; conditions now are worse than they ever were in saloon days, and there is no personal liberty with drunks driving cars.

"It is worse now because women are in the business, and little children are being taught to not have a prejudice against drinking places; statistics show that one-third of the people who attend the drinking places between 10 p. m. and 2 a. m. are women and girls.

"It is ridiculous to suggest paying government debts with revenue of liquor; the government appropriated $10,000,000 recently to stop rum running on the Canadian border. If we had had that kind of co-operation during prohibition days we could have enforced prohibition," he said.

"Where else can the church stand but on what it has started; it must be finished; if we are worthy of the traditions of the Christians, we must finish it; we would be false to every tradition of Christianity if we quit, and in the words of Joan d'Arc, as written by Bernard Sraw, 'thou must listen to it, though thy heart break with the terror of it,' he warned.

"It is amazing but true that high school and college youth is not instructed in harmful effects of alcoholic use; youth needs the truth," Col. Ebbert said. He said boys and girls are not hard to instruct along lines of truth, and that they must be instructed, for "not a boy or girl is living today but that if this liquor situation is not changed, will not be required to make a decision, squarely, under hard circumstances, as to whether he or she will drink or not; let them know alcohol is a poison drug," he warned.

He warned that within a short time $500,000 bartenders and barmaids will be paying 50 cents a month into a fund to "educate boys and girls in use of intoxicating liquors," and that something must be done in schools to counteract this. "It is amazing," he said, "that any of us have come out of this situation with truth, considering the everlasting propaganda that was distributed to make us believe prohibition has failed. We must get over our confused thinking, and come out for strong prohibition."

The Methodist board of morals and temperance, he said, is arranging a broadcast and an education program on temperance.

Sentence Bond Deal Convict To Serve Term Here

The booking of John Austin of Los Angeles was being awaited at the county jail this afternoon, following his commitment to the Orange county jail for one year by Federal Judge George Cosgrave this afternoon for his alleged part in a "million-dollar hot bond" ring which sent several others to federal prison.

Austin was sentenced after he was convicted of a charge of forging signatures to several stolen Liberty bonds. Austin admitted signing the name of "Ed Wideman" to several of the bonds which were stolen in mid-western bank raids.

Seek Barefoot Boy For School Theft

A barefoot boy, believed to be from 10 to 14 years of age, is thought to be responsible for the theft of a home-made telegraph sounder from the shop building at the Willard junior high school over the week end, according to police.

A window in the building was broken and the sounder stolen from a table under the window. Barefoot tracks near the window were found by officers.

IZ ZAT SO?

By STRIPPED BARE
(Not Bugs Nor Max)

The Second Street Circus, a one-ring affair, went through its act with plenty of snap last night. The snap was supplied from the whip of Ringmaster Bill Jerome.

It really is a circus, though some of the citizens looking on last night mistook it for a Quaker meeting, just after Councilman LeGaye presented his economy resolution. The silence was very loud, as LeGaye looked about hopefully for a second.

The horse act, in this circus, is pretty good. Combined with the three musketeers act, it gets over fine. Last night, it got over the economy hurdle before the crowd realized what was going on—or over.

The three musketeers—Bill, Ted and George—are mounted, you know. They sit up there in the saddles and apply the spurs and whip. The horses are—you guessed it—Warner, Penn, Bruns and Rowland.

The boys are good. If they get a few horse laughs now and then, or if somebody mutters something about horses' necks, in their hearing, they shouldn't mind. They suit their riders, anyway.

What matters if the crowd last night muttered and growled about recall, and appeared to have a strange belief that the appointed members should resign, LeGaye having expressed his readiness to resign if the other appointees would follow suit. Why resign just when the spending is getting good?

It may be possible the four horses can equal the records of the good old grab-bag days, when the Chamber of Commerce tossed off $8000 of the taxpayers' money each year, and thought nothing of it.

Or maybe they can bring back memories of those happy days and the $32,000 our taxpayers handed over for the glass factory—ouch!

* * *

The four horses were so anxious last night to prove that they aren't a Burke council that they let it slip out whose council they are. Whose, did you ask?

Well, who called Warner and Bruns out of the council meeting the other night and told them what was what about appointing a successor to Witmer?

And who was in the chamber group that had two attorneys appear before the council to say that it wouldn't be legal to call an election on councilmen? Which might upset the chamber's plan to get its hand into the treasury.

Who? Is it necessary to answer? We refer you to the ringmaster of the Second Street Circus.

One horselaugh at the circus last night was the buck-passing act. When Attorneys Jacobs and Swanner first appeared a week ago before the council, with the election statement, saying they represented a group from the chamber of commerce, the chamber officials passed the buck back to them and intimated that the legal gentlemen were claiming a little too much, in claiming to represent the chamber.

It hadn't looked so well for the chamber, to try to get city money and at the same time try to ward off an election, so they would be sure to get the city money.

But last night, the attorneys tossed the buck right back at them. "It's your baby, gents," says the attorneys.

Well, we may have to add another ring to the circus for this act, if it keeps going.

and bit of standing room space in the councilroom was occupied by a murmuring mass of taxpayers who were astonished at the precision of the machine in grinding out business so quickly, no one in the audience had a chance to say anything.

On several occasions there would have been opportunity for discussion from those present but affairs were rushed along by Mayor Warner, who tried to adjourn the meeting twice before LeGaye had finished his discussion and wielded his gavel loudly to end each item of business and hurry to the next.

Soon after LeGaye had urged that the advertising and music ordinance be put up to the voters for approval or rejection, Warner and Penn asked City Clerk Ed Vegely concerning the expense of an election. Vegely replied that it would probably cost about $700 or $800, since the election could be combined with the primaries.

Taxpayers Indignant

When the meeting was ended at 8:25 o'clock, the crowd charged out on the sidewalk and continued the discussion for more than half an hour. The murmur of discontent heard inside the meeting was magnified into heated protest among the sidewalk groups. Although the four majority councilmen had planned to hold a secret budget meeting following the meeting, the continued presence of the crowd outside the council chamber discouraged that thought and the budget confab was held over until this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

GRANTS AUTHORITY TO ABANDON ROAD

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(UP)—The Interstate Commerce commission today granted authority to the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad company to abandon approximately two miles of its old San Pedro branch in Long Beach, Los Angeles county, Cal.

Abandonment of the section will eliminate a dangerous crossing of the main track.

The railroad said in its application that the use made of the tracks was not sufficient to justify their continued maintenance and operation.

WORKS "CON" GAME TO GET CLOTHING

Wearing a complete stolen outfit of clothes, a man giving the name of Jack Cupitt is being sought by police, following a report of the alleged theft by C. R. Irby, 414½ West Fourth street.

Cupitt called at Irby's employment agency and told a story of having rented a building and two trucks to start a beer agency, according to Irby. The suspect conferred at length with Irby and several others, finally asking Irby to loan him some good clothes for a few hours. Cupitt left his Santa Ana friends in Los Angeles for a few minutes and never came back.

The clothing lost by Irby included a new suit, white shoes, blue tie and shirt and tie pin and clasp, all valued at $75. The suspect is said to be 5 feet 10 inches tall, 22 years old and having black curly hair.

COTTON INDUSTRY AGREEMENT FAILS

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(UP)—Attempts to bring the cotton ginning industry under a marketing agreement were abandoned by the AAA today. Officials said ginners refused to accept any agreement without a provision authorizing rate fixing.

"The agreement was proposed by the ginners in an earnest effort to correct some of the ills of the industry," Cully A. Cobb, chief of the AAA cotton section, said. "The administration finds itself unable to sanction and enforce fixed rates for ginning services, and as the industry felt this was a primary requirement for the successful operation of the agreement, we have but one alternative—that is, to discontinue our present efforts to effect an agreement."

The opposition stand of ginners developed at a series of hearings held throughout the cotton belt the last at Oklahoma City July 2

KNIGHTS VOTE FOR CLEANER PICTURES

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(UP)—Knights Templar of America, celebrating its 39th triennial convention here, today added its voice to the widespread campaign for cleaner movies.

Speaking on behalf of the order, Dr. Mark A. Matthew, past grand prelate of the Templar Grand encampment, called upon motion picture producers to raise the moral standards of their productions.

Dr. Matthew condemned the producers for catering to "a depraved public sex obsession," and declared that unless they lift the public sentiment to correct this condition, new producers will be secured to furnish motion picture entertainment to the American people.

More than 12,000 delegates from all over the United States and insular possessions are attending the conclave.

THEFT CHARGE AGAINST CASH IS DISMISSED

Petty theft charges concerning a $150 dog were dismissed in justice court yesterday against Dr. N. D. Cash, proprietor of a dog and cat hospital on South Main street.

Dr. Cash had been charged with the theft of a dog by R. R. Burns, following involved litigation and argument over hospital expenses and care of the dog. Since the dog is now dead, and can not be returned to Burns, he moved for dismissal of the charges and had Deputy District Attorney Harold McCabe make the motion in court.

Judge Kenneth Morrison ordered that the hospital expenses put up by Burns for the delivery of the dog, should be refunded.

The trouble started more than a year ago when Burns took his dog to the dog hospital. He filed the petty theft charge in June after Dr. Cash had won a small claims judgment against Burns for the payment of expenses. Burns alleged that the dog had been taken away from the hospital. The dog was later killed on the highway, according to Dr. Cash.

SEEK RETURN OF SUSPECTS IN THEFT CASE

Still hopeful of returning six alleged orange thieves to Orange county for prosecution, deputy sheriffs are in close touch with Los Angeles officers concerning the outcome of the spectacular capture of the men Friday night near Bandini.

It was first believed that all the men were to be brought here yesterday but it was then learned that several or all of the prisoners might have been involved in a ring of fruit thieves surprised near Covina several months ago when one of their numbers was killed by officers. For this reason, further investigation is being made by the Los Angeles deputy sheriffs.

Complaints have been issued for the men on charges of petty theft and will be served as soon as they can be returned here. The prisoners are Matt Arthur Poulson, 35 Solomon J. Sells, 50; Jimmy Fortiner, 25; Fred Simpson, 27; Robert E. Lang, 32, and Jack W. Osborne, 31, all of Los Angeles. A seventh man, Louis Licalso, 50, is held for purchasing stolen fruit but can not be tried here, since his alleged offense occurred in Los Angeles.

The men, riding in two cars, were stopped by gunfire from officers and 16 sacks of fruit were recovered in each car. A total of 85 boxes of fruit believed to have been taken from Orange county groves, was later recovered from a Los Angeles warehouse and 32 additional boxes are expected to be found today.

ONLY 9 DAYS LEFT FOR REGISTRATION

Voters of the county today were urged to attend to any registration details that may be necessary to qualify themselves for participating in the August primary election, registration for which will close July 19, it was pointed out by County Clerk J. M. Backs.

Only nine days remain, Backs reminded the voters, in which to register or to transfer registration if the voter has moved to a new precinct since the last election; also to register changes of address within the same precinct; and to make changes in party affiliation, if desired.

Valencia oranges made an unusually large growth on the tree during June, outside fruits making the greatest increase in size that has been measured for June, while inside fruit growth was the greatest of any June that has been measured, excepting 1926.

This was shown today in a table of growth and measured sizes, just issued by D. D. Waynick, of the Association laboratory, and based upon averages of measurements in 10 Valencia groves, mostly in Orange county.

The growth rate for outside fruits for June was .034 and for inside fruits .049. The average of measured sizes in the 10 groves for outside fruit was 2.557 during June 1 to 9, and 2.591 during July 1 to 9. The measurement of inside fruit was 2.422 during June 1 to 9 and 2.471 during July 1 to 9.

"The actual growth rate for the last 30 days is more significant than measured sizes," Dr. Waynick commented, "because of the smaller number of groves remaining in which fruit has not been picked. Growth through June amounted to more than one-third of a packing size The increased growth for the last 60 days undoubtedly accounts for the large percentage of splits in many groves."

STROUP WILL SPEAK TONIGHT FOR SINCLAIR

Russell C. Stroup, candidate for Congress, will address a rally of the Sinclair forces in Riverside county this evening at the Freemont school in Riverside. Stroup has been touring the neighboring county in the interests of the candidacy of Upton Sinclair and has been received enthusiastically by E. P. I. C. supporters, according to reports from the meetings.

On Friday evening, July 13, the Democrats of Orange county will have the opportunity of hearing Stroup speaking in support of Sinclair at the E. P. I. C. rally in Fullerton.

In a statement today Stroup said of Sinclair, "I am giving my support to Upton Sinclair because I believe him to be the candidate for governor who promises to support most intelligently and practically the program of President Roosevelt. All candidates claim to be "supporting" the President but many of them are simply "leaning" on him. If Sinclair is elected governor, with an opportunity to put his E. P. I. C. program into action, California will be the one state which can say to the President that it will care for its own unemployment problem without coming to the already burdened Federal Government with a tin cup asking for alms."

Adella Proctor Called by Death

Mrs. Adella Proctor, 78, passed away today at the home of her son, Winifield Scott Proctor. She had been a resident of Santa Ana for the past 10 years.

Mrs. Proctor is survived by two children, Mrs. Bertha Reynolds of Huntington Beach and her son Winfield Scott Proctor. Her husband died in Huntington Beach in 1923. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Harrell and Brown.

SUPERVISORS HOLD HUDDLE SESSION TODAY

After spending most of the morning session in a "huddle" the county supervisors today transacted several small items of business.

One was the adoption of a motion by Supervisor George Jeffrey to deed an abandoned strip of the old Coast highway right-of-way in the Aliso section to the bankrupt estate of Joseph Thurston, of Laguna Beach.

This action instead of an abandonment proceeding, was necessary in view of the state's policy of requiring deeds, instead of easements, for rights of way. When the Coast highway was realigned in that section, Thurston donated the right-of-way, under agreement that the abandoned right-of-way would be restored to him.

RACHEL A. MURRELL DIES AT HER HOME

Mrs. Rachel Ann Murrell passed away yesterday at Midway City after a lingering illness. Mrs. Murrell was 80 years of age, and had lived in Midway City for the last 11 years.

Mrs. Murrell is survived by three daughters, Mrs. W. D. Stambaugh and Miss Orta Murrell of Midway City, and Mrs. W. C. Wilcoxen of Ford, Kans.

Services will be held from the Winbigler Funeral Home, 609 North Main street, at 10 a. m. tomorrow with the Rev. Wooten, of the Nazarene church of Midway City officiating. Interment will be in Westminster Memorial Park.

HARBOR FUNDS INCREASED BY FEDERAL MONEY

The $886,235.56 received from the federal government by Orange county officials yesterday, for the Newport harbor project, will be temporarily deposited to the Newport harbor fund in the county treasury, subject to call from the federal government, it was stated today by County Auditor W. T. Lambert.

While the government loaned and granted the amount to the harbor district, the government also allocated $917,000 to the harbor, through the war department as a federal project, and the war department engineers will direct the work, controlling expenditures of both allocations.

The harbor fund in the county treasury already held $43,000, recently appropriated by the county supervisors from county funds, to cover engineering expenses, which were not provided for in the PWA allocation. The county expects to recover this money through receipts from sale of materials dredged from the harbor.

NEGRO BADLY HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

W. A. Jones, Santa Ana Negro, received a fractured skull and Gene Morris, Anaheim, was slightly dazed last night when the automobile in which they were riding struck a telephone pole on Lincoln avenue in Anaheim.

Jones and Morris were brought into Anaheim by a passing truck driver and taken to a physician for treatment. Morris was sent to his home and Jones taken to the Orange County hospital.

The accident was reported to Anaheim police by a passing motorist. Few details were available.

URGES USE OF SPLINTS FOR POLIOMYELITIS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—Deformities caused by poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis can and should be prevented, if proper splintage is used immediately after the disease has attacked the patient.

Authority for this statement is Dr. Leroy C. Abbott, clinical professor of orthopedic surgery in the University of California Medical school. Treatment, he says, should be started immediately after the onset of paralysis and should consist of absolute bed rest, support of weakened muscles, and the use of splints to prevent deformity.

"Immediately after the disease has attacked the patient," Dr. Abbott emphasizes, "splints made of wire, metal or plaster of Paris, must be applied to the extremities and the trunk held in position to overcome the tendency to deformity.

"Deformity is perhaps one of the main reasons why infantile paralysis is generally regarded as such a hopeless condition by the lay public. These deformities occur because of the unopposed action of gravity, overuse of unparalyzed muscles, which destroys muscle balance, and the habitual assumption of faulty attitudes by the patient. Later, these deformities become fixed by shortening of the muscles and ligaments, and finally by changes in the size, shape and contour of the bones themselves."

The most valuable method of treatment, according to Dr. Abbott, is muscle training. This consists of the carefully guided use of muscles to increase their power of contraction. Exercise to a greatly weakened muscle, however, must be given with caution. Over-exercise and careless handling of the affected extremities are often more harmful than if nothing were done. Such exercising should be done by physical therapists, trained in anatomy, physiology, and the methods of prevention of deformity.

No Lack Of Phosphate In County Soil

Long continued fertilizer experiments with citrus trees, conducted by the University of California Citrus Experiment Station, furnish substantial support for the belief that Southern California soils are well supplied with available phosphate.

Authority for this statement is H. D. Chapman, assistant chemist in the experiment station. His research indicates, however, that it is necessary to apply nitrogenous fertilizers to most California soils to maintain citrus fruit yields and tree vigor.

Substantial gains in phosphate in the citrus orchard soils of the state are attributed to fertilization practices. In the principal citrus areas of Southern California the soils are well supplied with this plant food.

Ten years of differential fertilizer experiments in Orange county, conducted by the Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with local orchards, brought the same conclusion, according to Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg, who supervised the tests. Despite this fact, many citrus growers annually apply large quantities of phosphate or phosphorous-containing materials to their groves.

Results of Chapman's field experiments and laboratory studies are given in agricultural experiment station bulletin 571, "The Phosphate of Southern California Soils in Relation to Citrus Fertilization." Copies may be obtained without cost from the office of the farm advisor at Santa Ana.

ROTARY CLUB IN PLANS FOR FISCAL YEAR

ORANGE, July 10.—Plans for the ensuing year were outlined Monday evening at a special dinner meeting of the Orange Rotary club held in the McFarland cafe. Various committee assignments were made, after which Herbert Harris, past district governor, spoke to the group, giving suggestions for the year's activities.

C. H. Robinson, newly elected president, was in charge of the meeting. He announced that a special program has been arranged for the regular weekly dinner meeting to be held Thursday noon in the American Legion hall, at which time Allen Stelle of San Pedro will speak on the strike conditions on the Pacific coast. The program will be in charge of Donald Smiley.

Mason Fishback, general program chairman, announced that Congressman Sam L. Collins will speak at the July 19 meeting.

STATE TO GET FEDERAL FUNDS FOR ROAD WORK

SACRAMENTO, July 10. — (UP) —Passage by congress of the Hyden-Cartwright bill assured for California the continuation of widespread highway building and improvement work which has done much to relieve unemployment during the past 10 months, according to Earl Lee Kelly, director of public works.

The bill provided for an appropriation of $200,000,000 for emergency construction of highways during the fiscal year 1934-35. Of that amount, California will receive $7,932,206. In addition, the state will receive $4,000,000 for 1935-36, and $4,000,000 for 1936-37.

When the state began its intensive highway construction program last August, it had approximately $34,000,000 to spend. During the past 10 months, the department had spent or contracted to spend about $26,000,000, leaving $8,000,000 to add to the new federal advance of $7,932,206.

This total of $16,000,000 will permit the department to continue its projects through the year. Construction crews will remain about the same in number, and the department itself will not need to discharge anyone for lack of work or funds, Kelly said.

Kelly is strongly in favor of the state taking over all roads. Of the 75,000 miles of highway in California, approximately 14,000 are in the state system. The rest are county roads.

If the legislature should turn all roads over to the public works department, county road taxes could be eliminated, and all highways could be maintained out of the gas tax fund, with 2½ cents going to the state and ½ cent to the cities, Kelly argues. At present cities are apportioned only 1/4 cent of each 3-cent tax, and counties receive one cent, leaving 1 3/4 cents for the state. Some counties, it is claimed, do not use their share for road building, but rely upon additional taxation to meet the highway needs.

Experimentation With Zinc Spray In 2 New Plots

The Aliso Rancho and Bennie Osterman of El Toro have provided two new plots of Valencia trees for further trials of zinc sulphate sprays for mottle leaf control, according to Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg.

"Recent examination of the effects of the zinc sprays applied in December and January show much improvement in the plots located at Yorba Linda, Anaheim and El Toro," he said. "The Garden Grove plots, however, show little or no advantage over the check plots so far. The work is still in an experimental stage. Growers who are interested in this phase of mottle leaf control should by all means make only small trials with sufficient check trees."

Editor, The Register—

Have been a builder all my life, so have learned to make estimates. Have got in the habit so that I estimate every thing from an economical standpoint.

After living in Santa Ana for six years, thought I would find how much waste energy and money there was in business here.

This is what I find from an estimate that several people who have seen my figures say should be doubled.

But I find the people of Santa Ana waste $14,490.00 per month. Now if the chamber of commerce will segregate their business they can save that amount, which would amount to $173,880.00 per year; and put 1639 men and women on a four hour shift.

This is how I get these figures: I take 82 different lines of business. Subtract two-thirds of them and leave the other one-third to handle the trade.

For an illustration, there are 21 drug stores. I cut out 14 of them. Compute the rent at $50; $700 saved. Service stations, 78. Cut out 52. Average rent per month, $25; saved, $1300. Grocery stores, 100. Cut out 75. Average rent $10 per month; save $750. Fifteen big markets. Cut out 10. Average rent per month, $100; save $1000. And so on down the line.

Now I am asked what I am going to do with the idle men. Well that is easy. We will put the two-thirds in one-third of the stores. Tell them to work four-hour shifts, and keep the stores open 12 hours. People will buy the same amount of goods they are buying now. Also whoever gets the saving must buy the vacated property.

If the chamber of commerce really wants to advertise Santa Ana, adopt this system and they will be advertised all over the world; and it will not cost the tax payers a red cent.

Here is what could be saved in Los Angeles, Chicago, New York City, state of California, and in cities of over 30,000 population in the United States, using Santa Ana as a basis, with a population as taken by census in 1930:

Number of men put to work 4 hours per day—Santa Ana, 1629; Los Angeles, 67,199; Chicago, 183,568; New York City, 378,709; state of California in cities of 30,000 or over, 141,617; cities of United States of 30,000 or over, 2,358,500.

Amount of rent saved per month—Santa Ana, $14,490; Los Angeles, $439,090; Chicago, $1,622,880; New York City, $3,347,190; state of California in cities of 30,000 or over, $652,430; cities of United States of 30,000 or over, $15,750,000.

Saving in United States per year, $199,000,000.

SUGGEST BOND VOTE TO MEET DELINQUENCIES

Recommending that the city council take action next Monday in calling an election on bonds to meet the delinquencies on the 1915 improvement bond act, City Attorney Clyde Downing gave a report last night on the latest developments in his investigation of the indebtedness of the city.

Downing said that one of the foremost bond authorities in Los Angeles had ruled that an election for bonds to refund the delinquencies on the 1915 bonds would not be legal. It would be permissible, however, to call an election under an act of 1909 to vote bonds to make an "investment," which would be the paying for the bond delinquencies, Downing said he had been informed.

Before this election could be called, it would be necessary to have a friendly suit in court to test the legality of such an election, Downing said. He pointed out that by acting quickly, the council could have the suit, call the election and have it held in the near future.

Councilman A. F. LeGaye also reported that the proposed conference of bankers would be held probably today or tomorrow, depending on when the banking committee could meet. The city councilmen, city attorney, heads of the four Santa Ana banks and several bonding authorities will meet to discuss the best method of meeting the obligations under the 1915 act.

LeGaye raised the question of legality, in asking why the city council did not have legal right to act now, as it did when the bond improvement districts were passed, instead of being forced to call for a vote.

Downing answered by declaring that under the 1915 act, the city does not guarantee the bonds but must buy up delinquent property and sell it to meet the bond delinquencies.

When asked by LeGaye what would happen if the proceeds from the property were less than the delinquencies, Downing replied that the recent Lakeport decision took care of that contingency. This provides that the city is liable for the delinquencies and must levy a tax up to 10 cents per district to repay the delinquencies.

Since the city of Santa Ana is already more than $207,090 delinquent on the bond districts, the councilmen have been warned that some action must be taken. Since the hearing of the Lakeport case has been held over until the end of this year, it is improbable that a possible tax raise would have to be put in effect this year, it is reported.

TAXI COMMISSION MEMBERS NAMED

Councilmen Fred Rowland and Plummer Bruns were named to the taxi commission by Mayor E. G. Warner last night, since the resignation of A. C. Hasenjaeger and elevation of Warner to mayor had left vacancies on the group.

Rowland was named to the post as police commissioner and Bruns as street commissioner, City Attorney Clyde Downing is the third member of the committee, while Police Chief Floyd Howard acts in an advisory capacity.

On the recommendation of Downing, the application of W. R. Crosby, 21, 1023 Custer street for a taxi drivers' permit, was granted by the council. Crosby will drive for the Broadway Cab company.

Grant Permit To Take Donations For Pension Plan

Permission to collect donations for the expressed purpose of spreading of the Townsend old age revolving pension plan from the Santa Ana headquarters at 218 West Fifth street, was asked by and granted to J. T. Nichols by the city council last night.

The application came as the result of the recent passage by the council of a regulation that any organization or group desiring to solicit donations must bring an application before the council.

The motion to grant the application was made by Councilman William Penn.

ATTORNEYS AGAIN INFORM COUNCIL THEY ACTED AT REQUEST OF C .C. GROUP

A group of Chamber of Commerce executives, headed by Supervisor Wm. C. Jerome and including Secretary George Raymer, Ex-Supervisor Chas. H. Chapman, and Postmaster T. E. Stephenson had asked Attorneys O. A. Jacobs and Chas. D. Swanner to oppose the proposed city election for a vote upon filling positions of the four appointed councilmen, it was disclosed last night.

The disclosure, which followed denials by Secretary Raymer that such a request had been made by the Chamber, came in a written opinion on the election question submitted to the council last night by Jacobs and Swanner.

The request came originally from Jerome, and later was concurred in by Raymer, Chapman, Stephenson and others, and the oral opinion of the attorneys was given to the council last Thursday night at a budget meeting. It was "given upon the request of the group of gentlemen at said meeting who were representing the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants Division of Santa Ana" the letter submitted last night declared.

"In accordance with your request for a written opinion on the election law regarding vacancies and appointments to the city council, after the oral opinion given by Charles D. Swanner and O. A. Jacobs to the city council at its informal meeting Thursday, July 5, 1934, which was given upon the request of the group of gentlemen at said meeting who were representing the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants Division of Santa Ana, am pleased to render such opinion in accordance with my views previously expressed.

"Section 754 of Act 5233, of the General Laws, provides as follows: 'Any vacancy occurring in any of the offices provided for in this act shall be filled by appointment by the board of trustees; but if such office be elective, such appointee shall hold office only until the next regular election, at which time a person shall be elected to serve for the remainder of such unexpired term. In case a member of the board of trustees is absent from the city for a period of 90 days, unless by permission of the board of trustees, his office shall by the board be declared vacant, and the same filled as in case of other vacancies.'

"The question then presented under this act is what the legislature meant by 'the next regular election.' In accordance with the law, it appears that there are only two kinds of elections, 'general election' and 'special election,' and does not make provisions or give a definition of 'regular election.' Political Code, Section 1041, defines a 'general election' as follows: 'There must be held throughout the state, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday of November, in the year eighteen hundred and eighty, and in every second year thereafter, an election, to be known as the general election.'

"And gives the definition of 'special election' as follows: 'Special elections are such as are held to supply vacancies in any office, and are held at such times as may be designated by the proper board or officer.'

"However, our Supreme Court has had occasion in the case of People vs. Lynch, 114 California Reports, at Page 168, to cite several authorities from out of state cases, defining the term 'regular election.' A Kansas case is cited and quoted as follows: 'The words 'regular election' do not necessarily mean general election or township election. They simply mean the regular election prescribed by law for the election of the particular officer to be elected.'

"In citing a Florida case, the following quotation is given: 'When it is declared that the city council shall fill vacancies until the next regular election, it means until the next regular election provided by the charter for electing the officer whose term has been vacant.'

"The nearest case we have in California which might decide this question as to the meaning of the term 'regular election' is found in the case of People vs. Babcock, in 123 California Reports, at page 307, in which our supreme court construed the term 'regular election' under an act of the city and county of San Francisco referring to the appointment of the superintendent of schools by the board of education to fill a vacancy. In filling this vacancy, the board of education specified, 'to fill the vacancy until the regular election then next following.'

"In this particular case the next regular election was a general state election and also a general municipal election, and the proclamation for the municipal election included the office for superintendent of schools. In affirming this election for superintendent of schools and in their opinion, the supreme court states: 'In the case of any particular statute the construction can be determined only by considering the context in which the word is found, the purpose of the statute and the object which it was designed to accomplish. The next regular election may mean the election at which officers are to be regularly elected, or 'regular' may be used merely to exclude special elections, or it may be used synonymously or inter-changeably with the word 'general.'

"They further make a quotation of the particular section under discussion and state as follows: 'If regular election is here to be construed as the election at which this class of officers is regularly chosen, then in cases of some officers contemplated by the charter, the regular election could only be at the end of the term and the provision that a person shall be elected to serve for the remainder of the unexpired terms would be meaningless. These instances are given not as having any determinative force upon the question here presented, but in illustration of the fact that the phrase 'regular election has no fixed and inflexible meaning.'

"This decision was rendered in 1899, at which time general municipal elections for members of the board of trustees were held every two years. In other words, the terms were staggered. Section 754 of the act at this time could not be mis-interpreted and the intention of the legislature was clear by reason of the fact that a general municipal election was held every two years. In 1903, Section 752 of the act was amended so that after 1907 the staggered system was abolished and we now have the board of trustees all elected every four years. Therefore, the force and effect of Section 754 was taken away and an appointee would hold office until the next general municipal election. This in view of the fact that Section 752 then specified and now specifies that the board of trustees shall be elected at a general municipal election.

"The only construction, therefore, that can now be placed upon Section 754 as to the term 'regular election' is that it means the next general municipal election as it meant previous to the amendment.

"The supreme court in conclusion of their opinion in the case of People vs. Babcock, state as follows: " 'Regular election' as thus employed, then, is synonymous with 'general election.' Whether it be a general state election or a general municipal election, it is unnecessary here to determine, since the election at which the relator was elected was both a general state election and a general municipal election.'

"From the foregoing decisions, the writers have come to the conclusion that 'regular election' as used in Section 754 of Act 5233 can only be given the meaning intended by the legislature at the time the act was passed, and means the next general municipal election occurring in April, 1935."

The Davis application was made by H. R. Harwood ann called for the speaking privilege on August 23. The Creel-for-Governor club asked for the August 16 date at the park.

Previously, the council had issued a standing invitation to political candidates, especiall those for governor, to use the park as guests of the city.

Gospel Mission Changes Location

Removal of the Gospel Mission from 314 East Fourth street to a temporary tent location at Edinger and South Main street, was approved by the city council last night following application of Charles L. Coleman, director of the mission.

Termination of a lease in the present location was cited by Coleman for moving his mission. Permission of adjoining property owners in the new location was presented and no objection was voiced to the erection of the large tent for the summer months.

Coleman has announced that nightly services will be held at 7:30 p. m., starting tomorrow night.

SECRET BUDGET MEET SOUGHT BY 4 HORSEMEN

The Four Horsemen on the city council do not want to discuss budget items and the proposed $4250 donation to the Chamber of Commerce at an open public meeting when taxpayers are present to air their views on the question.

This was shown last night, at the council meeting, when no opportunity was given spectators to give their views of the Chamber of Commerce budget request and the matter was dodged entirely.

Instead of bringing up the question which held the interest of the taxpayer delegation, Mayor E. G. Warner attempted to close the meeting a couple of times to head off Councilman A. F. LeGaye's discussion of election and advertising questions, and declared the meeting adjourned at 8:25 o'clock the meeting lasting less than an hour.

After the meeting had been summarily adjourned, the word was passed to councilmen that a budget huddle would be held after the crowd had adjourned, and that all but LeGaye waited around a half hour for such a meeting.

But the crowd of taxpayers, apparently riled at the treatment accorded them and anxious to discuss the meeting and the questions which had been ignored, stood about on the sidewalk.

Finally, seeing no secret meeting could be held to discuss the budget at that time, the Four Horsemen postponed the budget huddle until this afternoon at 2 o'clock, to be held in the office of City Auditor Lloyd Banks.

CHAPTER ONE

THE lilacs were budding as Monnie walked down High street. She took off her hat and swung it from her fingers, letting the May breeze ruffle the little bronze curls around her forehead. Spring again! It was glorious after the long winter. Spring—and Dan Cardigan's irregular, tormenting wooing would begin once more. Monnie's wayward heart thumped uncomfortably. Dan had been in Cleveland all winter. Now he would be back—was in fact, on his way at the moment. Monnie tried not to dance at the thought. Dan with his handsome, sullen face, those long-lashed blue eyes whose glance had the power to make her smile or weep, would be staring down at her in a few hours.

"Where you goin,' Miss O'Dare" The mocking voice of Laura Grayling challenged her. Laura was 50, prim, an acid spinster. Monnie flushed. She felt that Miss Laura could see straight through her, knew all her thoughts. She said demurely, "Just hurrying home to supper. Lovely evening, isn't it?"

"I thought," said Miss Laura, "that you must be goin' to a fire. You nearly knocked me down."

"I'm so sorry," murmured Monnie. "I—I was thinking of something else, I guess."

She hurried along, her cheeks like peonies.

Two more blocks—then home. She hoped Mom's headache would be better. And that Kay would be in a better temper. And that Mark would have passed his exams. And that Bill would be home. Poor Bill! He worked so hard. He was two years older than Monnie, who was 20. He had gone to work at 16 when Mr. O'Dare died, very suddenly, in the night. Bill had wanted to go to college. He had been eagerly ambitious but his ambitions had carried him only as far as the big new garage at Broad street and Vine, the one with the little brick house and the flaring red pumps. Bill was an "expert mechanic" now and proud of it. He tended the ailments of sick cars as a good physician does his patients. He had developed into a silent, rather brusque young man with a perpetual black rim under his fingernails.

Only Monnie and her mother suspected what went on under that fair thatch. Belvedere, like so many small towns all over these United States, had its fair share of snobbery. Bill belonged to no particular group. He could not "go with" the crowd on the hill—the Waynes and the Millisons and the Blagdens—because he worked in a garage. Hank Wayne and Lucy Millison and Ernest and John Blagden went away to college, as did most of the other young people from the Hill. When they came home from school at Christmas time or during the summer holidays they had a series of parties which were duly recorded in the Belvedere Argus. Miss Anstice Cory, who had been society editor of the Argus for 20 years, delighted in their doings. Monnie always read about the parties. The young people who lived on the Hill seemed to her a golden group, enviable beyond belief.

MARK O'DARE, who was 13 and in his freshman year at High School, was a little too young to feel the pinch of poverty as the others did. It was Kay, 16, golden-haired, a junior in the tall stone High School, who minded most of all. Kay hated being left out of things . . . hated living on the wrong side of town in the shabby little shingled cottage which had been the only thing left to the O'Dares when "darling Papa" had gone.

Monica O'Dare sighed. The day had been warm and business in Mr. Vernon's drug store, where she worked, had been unusually brisk. She was tired. She did hope things would be smooth at home. She wanted to look fresh and unworried the first time Dan saw her after an absence of months. She shivered, thinking of all the girls Dan must have met during the winter in Cleveland. Dan was "learning the business" in his uncle's mills. He was 21, the Cardigans' only son. They were proud of him, and Dan, it must be admitted, was rather proud of himself. He had left an eastern college the year before to go into "The Works" and it was felt, in the family, that the boy had done a fine thing.

Monica wondered, for the hundredth time, how she had had the great luck to attract Dan. Hadn't she been in love with him for years—since second year high school, really? And hadn't it seemed the most fantastic dream come true, two years ago, when Dan had first begun to notice her?

She went over the scene in her mind again. She cherished it. It had been during the first week she had clerked at the drug store. It was July. High school commencement was just behind her. She had been, she remembered, wearing a thin white dress—dotted swiss. It was her class day dress. Her mother hadn't wanted her to wear it to work, had said that it was highly unsuitable. But Monica, with a gentle persistence that surprised even herself, had worn it. Something had told her to look her best that day. Maybe it was the knowledge that Dan Cardigan was back in town.

SHE had been arranging the perfume bottles in the case, her back turned to the door, when she heard his voice. That slow, deep drawl had set her pulses pounding. She went on, fingering the squat crystal containers, afraid to turn around and betray what she was feeling. Then she heard Mr. Vernon's good-natured, "Guess there's somebody you know here, Dan. Meet my new helper. Guess you two know each other."

She had turned, hoping the nervous pulse in her throat, now beating madly, didn't reveal itself. She had been rewarded for her calm demureness by a flash of interest in Dan Cardigan's smoldering eyes. Her own, velvet lashed, with their amber depths, were lifted innocently to his.

"God, make him like me, make him like me!" she had prayed, with simple fervor.

Well, he had. And he did—she hoped! Perhaps this summer, this week, things would be settled between them. Perhaps—it might be as simple as this—Dan would come to see her tonight and say: "Let's cut down to High Springs Saturday and be married."

He hadn't asked her yet, in so many words. But everyone in town knew she was "Dan Cardigan's girl." Everyone expected him to ask her. Only Monnie, herself, sometimes felt a sick pang of apprehension. When they were together it was all right. Dancing or riding down the yellow roads in Dan's old roadster. It was when she was alone, when her mother looked at her anxiously, worriedly, not speaking her thoughts, that Monnie knew terror—terror at the thought of losing Dan.

She turned in, at length, between the ragged lines of privet that bordered the red brick walk, and went, with brisk step, toward the little white house. For the thousandth time she thought the same thoughts; that the house ought to be painted; that they ought to have new canvas on the old porch swing; that the hedge needed trimming; that mother's petunias were hardier than any others on Denny street.

It was a nice little house, a trifle shabby it is true, but home, for all that. If Monnie longed for the fleshpots of "the Hill" she gave no outward sign of it. Not for the world would she have hurt her mother's feelings. The O'Dares had been used to better things. Before Papa's death they had had a trimmed brick house farther out, with sloping lawns, and a colored man to keep the borders tidy. Papa had had a little car, too, and they had been a prosperous little family. Now everything was changed. Monnie, in spite of her few years, had a burden to carry. Bill helped but it was Monnie to whom the mother looked for everything.

"Hello, there!" She hung her hat on the outmoded "hall tree" (how she hated that thing) and passed through to the kitchen. Mrs. O'Dare was at the stove, stirring something. There was a mingled smell of cooking food. Beets bubbled in a big pot and from the oven floated the odor of meat loaf.

"Hot!" Monnie said simply, pushing back the ringlets of bronze hair and sighing. She was wishing, this night, for cool food on silver salvers, for a great high moon with silvery green curtains swishing at the windows and a man's face (it wore Dan's features) smiling down at her. She saw herself wearing organdie of palest silk, flowing to her toes. There were blue slippers on her feet.

"Mo-ther!" The shrill, girlish voice of Kay brought Monnie abruptly back to earth. Kay stood in the doorway, her youthful bosom heaving with some real or fancied grievance, her eyes, gentian-blue where Monnie's were amber-dark, smoldering.

"Mo-ther! You said you'd press my linen and you didn't!"

MONNIE compressed her lips. "Why didn't you do it yourself? You know Mother's worn out as it is!"

Mrs. O'Dare intervened.

"I'm sorry, honey. I didn't seem to get around to it. I was on the go all day." Her fine, delicately lined face was flushed and tired. Monica felt a surge of affection for her and with it the familiar flare of impatience Kay's unreasonableness so often evoked.

"I'll do it after supper," Mrs. O'Dare said gently.

Monnie swung. "You won't do any such thing! You'll go and lie down while Kay and I do the dishes. You had that bad headache yesterday and you're a wreck now." Her eyes blazed into Kay's. It was all very well to sympathize with the younger girl (Monnie did—more passionately, than she dared admit) but this bullying of their mother was more than she could bear.

She followed the sulking youngster into the hall, shutting the door behind her. In a low voice she said, "How can you, Kay ? You know she's tired out. Dr. Allen said—"

Kay shrugged her shoulders. Petulantly she muttered, "All you care about it getting your own way. If you were going out with Dan Cardigan it'd be a different story."

Monnie flushed a deep scarlet. What did Kay know about Dan's arrival back in town? The unfairness of her sister's attitude cut her deeply.

DAN CARDIGAN

"Dan's back in town," Kay said spitefully. "And I bet he never even telephoned you."

Monnie's heart began to beat thickly, painfully. She felt almost suffocated. But she managed to say, with dignity,

"I knew he was coming. I heard from him the other day."

Kay smiled wisely. "Bet you didn't see him driving down Main street with Sandra about half-past two? Oh no, he wouldn't bother to come around — not till he's good and ready. And when he comes he'll find you waiting right where he left you."

Sandra—Dan—that very afternoon! Monnie couldn't believe it. Sandra had been in the store at noon, hadn't said anything at all about expecting Dan. There was only one train he might have come on and that was the early morning one. Then why hadn't he called her?

She felt quite sick. A little warning pulse in her temple began to throb.

Kay plunged on: "Bet he'd sing a different tune if he came here, just once, and found you'd gone out with someone else. But no, you're always ready and waiting, whenever he happens to take a notion to drop around! I should think you'd have more—"

"Kay!" A quiet voice interrupted this tirade. Mrs. O'Dare, pale but with a certain grimness about her gentle mouth, stood in the doorway, staring at her younger daughter. Kay wilted. "I'm sorry, Mom," she said. "I didn't mean it—"

"You run along and finish setting the table," Mrs. O'Dare said in a cool voice. Kay went. Monnie, whose knees had begun to feel oddly like straw, sat down on the little old Windsor chair beside the door.

"Maybe if you'd have time for a bath before supper," Mrs. O'Dare began doubtfully, "you'd feel better. You're tired out. I've got the heater lighted."

SHE went upstairs with a step determinedly swift. Not for worlds would she let any of them know what it cost her to hide the hurt in her heart. Dan back—and he hadn't called her! When she was fairly aching for the sight of him, for the clasp of his hand! Maybe Kay had been mistaken, maybe she had been merely spiteful! But no, even Kay in a tantrum was not likely to invent the spectacle of Dan and Sandra Lawrence together.

At the thought Monnie's pulses began to hammer and that feeling of sinking—sinking—smote her once more. Sandra, who was so cool and sure of herself, who after a year at finishing school in the east had gone to Paris to return clanking with bracelets, redolent of strange, alluring scents, wearing the most extreme and bizarre costumes Belvedere had seen these many moons.

Monnie quieted the raging tumult within her. 'Dan and Sandra—why, there was nothing to it. They belonged to the same crowd, knew the same people. It was only the merest accident, probably, that they had met that day. Sandra knew how Dan felt about Monnie. Didn't she stop in at the store often to whisper charmingly, "I suppose you've heard from someone in the city? I knew that was why you looked so pretty today."

Monnie was proud of Sandra's friendship. Sandra, who could know anyone and was invited everywhere, who was so clever and might have been a writer or an artist if she put her mind to it (she said so herself). Only Sandra had been born to money. Te Lawrences owned the paper mills out on the River road and Sandra, last of the line, lived with her father in the handsome stone pile on the Hill. Near the Cardigans. That was how she happened to know Dan so well. Dan—Dan—Dan!

Monnie ran water in the tub and sifted in a handful of pine-needle salts. Maybe he would call, any minute now. People always did telephone the instant you got into the tub. She shut off the faucet, struck by the dreadful thought that she might miss him. But mother would know how important it was. Mother would call her!

Trembling with excitement, Monnie dashed through her bath, slipping into clean underthings and donned the coolest of her few frocks, a last year linen that had been lilac tinted when new and was now the color of late evening sky.

"Monnie!" That was Kay's voice, on the landing.

"Coming!" Monnie sang, almost gayly.

Kay linked her arm in that of her elder sister. "I'm sorry I was so nasty," she said, very low. "I didn't mean it. Only —only—everything's so rotten—"

Monnie stifled the alarm she felt. "How do you mean?"

Kay sniffed. "Oh, this miserable town and the people and the way you get high-hatted if you're poor. I'm going to get out of it—"

THEY were almost at the foot of the stairs now. Monnie warned: "Don't let Mother hear you!" She thought, "Poor kid! I must do something for her—must help her to have a good time."

They all sat down. Monnie looked around, her eyes questing.

"Bill?"

She thought her mother's smile seemed forced.

"He phoned he had to work and would get something to eat near the shop."

Mark, freckled, red-haired, put in, mischievously, "Bet he's got a girl over at Snowden. Bet he has."

Kay frowned at him.

"Well, if he has," said Mrs. O'Dare tranquilly, "I hope she's a nice girl and I hope she likes him."

"He hasn't been seeing much of Gertrude lately, has he?" Monnie asked, attacking her plate with the zest of healthy youth. She felt rested now, she felt she might put her worries and fears behind her in this blest atmosphere of home.

Mrs. O'Dare answered the question. "I don't think so," she said. "Gertrude passed me at church Sunday in a great hurry—didn't even stop to speak. I thonght—I guessed—she was hurt about something. She's a sweet girl—and very fond of Bill."

Mrs. O'Dare always tried to speak well of everyone. Her children knew that. That was why they held their tongues about Gertrude. Privately all three were just a little pleased to know that the affair of Bill and Gertrude was waning. Gertrude was plump and prim and talkative—although the traits did not seem to go together. Monnie, especially, felt Bill deserved something better than Gertrude. Why, there wasn't the tiniest scrap of glamour in an affair like this. Suppose Bill should marry and settle down — marry Gertrude, that is—and begin to raise a family right there in Belvedere! He'd be doomed. He wouldn't have a chance. Bill wanted to learn, to do something big, to visit far-off places and make a name for himself. Marriage with Gertrude Hampstead would finish him, once and for all.

Kay made a half movement to answer it, but fell back as she saw her sister's eager expression. Monica tried to move slowly, not to seem too excited, but her hand trembled as she lifted the receiver.

"Hello?" She made her voice sound cool and impersonal. Dan must not know she had been waiting for him so patiently.

"Oh, yes?" There was flatness in her tone now. Kay recognized it. So did their mother, listening in spite of herself. "Yes. Yes. I'll tell him. Thanks."

She hung up, hating to go back to the table. She managed a smile of fictitious brightness. "That was Hank Robinson. He wants Bill to call him."

Mrs. O'Dare said she would tell him. She did not look at Monnie.

"No dessert for me, thanks," Kay chattered, helping to remove plates. She was, Monnie could see, making conversation, trying to bridge over the awkward moment. Kay could be kind when she wasn't thinking entirely of herself.

"—and they say he's frightfully rich. Awfully good-looking. He's something like Gary Cooper—" Who was Kay talking about? Monnie sat up, began to listen.

"He's taken the old Waterman place out on the River road." Kay chattered. "Doesn't seem to do anything much. Stretches out in a deck chair in the morning and goes riding in the afternoon."

"What's his name?" Mrs. O'Dare inquired. Her life was so restricted now that she welcomed news of the outside.

Kay wrinkled her brows. "I'll swear I knew it this morning," she offered, "but I can't think of it at the moment. We were standing on the school steps when he rode by. Allie Niles said he smiled at her—"

"Aw, you dopes are always thinkin' someone's payin'

FAR EAST

Japan has made a proposition to the United States that is chock full of international significance.

Tokyo wants Uncle Sam to enter into what amounts to an non-aggression pact. If there is any squeamishness about titling it "non-aggression," the Nipponese are perfectly willing to sign an arbitration treaty.

The point is that the Japs want assurances we won't mess into any trouble in their part of the world. International pulse feelers will tell you they are finally getting ready to square off with Soviet Russia.

Just before he left for Tokyo to report to the home office Ambassador Hiroshi Saito put the proposition up the State Department. The ambassador made a customary goodbye call on President Roosevelt. He mentioned the subject further at the White House.

Saito wasn't content with laying this groundwork. He paid a visit to Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. The senate would have to ratify such a treaty and Saito wanted a tip on the probable reaction of that august body. This isn't exactly according to diplomatic Hoyle. An envoy representing a smaller nation would be snapped up by the state department for trying to deal directly with the senate.

Our officials didn't jump avidly at the idea of a non-aggression treaty. In the past—notably when the French made a similar proposition—senatorial reaction has been anything but kindly. An inherent suspicion of international love pacts has pervaded our upper house for years.

The United States had an arbitration agreement with Japan up to 1929. Both parties agreed to undertake all possible mediation steps in any dispute before resorting to arms. This government wanted to renew the treaty. A hitch developed when our state department suggested a clause recognizing the Monroe Doctrine.

Tokyo promptly countered with a proposal that a Japanese Monroe Doctrine, giving them similar authority over her section of the Far East, be included. The Japs knew this would never get past the American senate and finally suggested it would be best to forget the whole business rather than stir up adverse national sentiment in both countries. They pointed out the Kellogg multi-lateral agreement would substitute anyway.

CUTS

Naval authorities are not fooled by Tokyo extolling the "moderate" and "conservative" qualities of Admiral Okada, new Japanese premier. They found him a tough customer at Geneva in 1932, when naval angles of disarmament were discussed. He plainly foreshadowed Japan's demand for naval parity and stated that Japan wanted plenty of submarines.

The fact that a naval expert is put at the head of Japan's government is regarded here as evidence that a steel-hard policy will be pursued.

Both Japan and Great Britain would like to cut down the size of battleships, to which Uncle Sam objects. If this common aim should swing Britain behind Japan in demanding parity, which is still more objectionable to Uncle Sam, somebody will have to be very skillful in devising compromises if next year's conference does not result in calling off all naval limitation agreements.

QUARTERS

Former President Hoover was the butt of many a jibe over the multitudinous commissions he appointed. So far as President Roosevelt is concerned one of two things has happened. The boys have either lost their sense of humor in this connection or have decided the joke has worn thin.

The ever-growing alphabetical setup of the Roosevelt administration has created a housing problem here in Washington. Further, it is costing the government hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in rental of miscellaneous office buildings.

During the past week the newest arrivals—the Stock Market Commission, the Communications Commission, the Aviation Commission, etc.—have been chasing around with their carpet bags pleading for quarters. Secretary Ickes, in charge of locating emergency organizations, finally said in mock desperation he would have to pitch tents if any more arrived.

Hampered by building trades strikes Uncle Sam is trying to erect a complete set of new government buildings along Pennsylvania Avenue, but even they may not be able to carry the load.

NRA is keeping six whole Department of Commerce divisions out of their own building. The C. C. C. moved into the new Post Office building almost before Jim Farley had a chance to try out his green shower bath.

All of this is creating lots of new jobs despite the Democratic campaign pledge to consolidate and retrench. But you might as well walk—certainly don't run—if you'd like to get on the payroll. There are lots of boys and girls here already ahead of you.

CALLS

One of the closest guarded secrets of the Treasury Department is the date on which the Comptroller of Currency calls for the condition of national banks. The reason is obvious. It is to prevent any advance window dressing in anticipation of the examiners' arrival.

Imagine everyone's surprise the other day when the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation sent out a circular calling for a report from state bank members, issuing it so far in advance they had to mark it "hold for release."

Some of the banks got a little panicky. To reassure them, Chairman Crowley announced the call was not a preliminary to additional assessments on insured banks at this time. He failed to mention there probably will be an extra levy on October first.

NURSE

The Federal Information Service of the National Emergency Council tries to answer all questions of the citizenry concerning their government. Some of the inquiries received, considering the bulk of business, naturally are a little screwy. Here was a poser arriving the other day:

"Please tell me," wrote an ambitious woman, "how I can get a job as a nurse aboard a battleship."

NOTES

The government will greatly increase its allotment of relief funds for unemployed teachers....Ahmet Muhtar Bey, late Turkish ambassador to Washington, now dead at Angora, once saved the life of Mustapha Kemal Pasha when Muhtar was governor of Istanbul ....Interest on the public debt now amounts to $1,223,000,000 a year....Senator Borah's radio speech made the G.O.P. unhappy too....New dealers are delighted by two court decisions refusing to invalidate the act eliminating the gold clause from contracts....But the judges put the question up to the supreme court.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

SHOCK

New York conservatives are privately much upset about the new industrial emergency committee and Donald Richberg's elevation in the Washington scheme.

They feel like a child who expected candy and got its ears boxed instead. Their plans for remodelling NRA to their own pattern of self-rule for business and gently easing the government out of the industrial picture are suddenly up against a steep and rocky climb instead of the anticipated easy coasting.

They had been so sure things were coming their way. Secretary Roper and conservative Democrats in congress had privately indicated sympathy with their aims. The Hot Springs conference of business leaders last month was marked by confident talk about how the president had seen the light and would alter his course gradually—so as not to disturb public sentiment—to fit their ideas. So the appointment of a committee composed entirely of planned economy advocates to map the future relations of government and business was a painful shock.

CRUMB

There will be a lot of references to Richberg as acting president but the wise take no stock in them. What matters to Wall Street is his role as chief guide for the permanent New Deal trail. It isn't likely that he'll do anything very important in the next few months. But his influences on government policy next year and thereafter will probably leave an enduring mark on the American business structure.

When Richberg first appeared in the Washington setup New York was highly suspicious. He was classed as a labor sympathizer—therefore a radical—and his early remarks about the government running business if business proved incapable of running itself sharpened conservative fears. Since then business leaders have found him more reasonable and realistic and the original hostility to him has abated. But he remains definitely a liberal—and that's almost as bad from the New York slant as being an out-and-out socialist.

The same criticism applies to emergency committee members Perkins, Ickes and Hopkins from the viewpoint of those who want to free industry from regulation. Insiders doubt that General Johnson—for all his color—will cut much ice in committee deliberations.

Hopeful conservatives manage to find one crumb of comfort in the committee's makeup. "At least it won't be Tugwell or Frankfurter's bright young men who have the fate of business in their hands."

EARS

Plenty of secret confabulating among leaders of the projected conservative comeback is due in the next few weeks to decide how to deal with the Richberg menace. It isn't clear yet what form the counter-attack will take but you can bet your last collar-button there'll be one. Chances favor tactics of boring from within rather than open opposition to the emergency committee.

In that case Mr. Richberg and his associates will be in for a prolonged siege of the most ingenious and convincing arguments business can think up to prove that a permanent planned economy is bound to be a terrible flop. A banker cracks that the committee would do well to hire professional listeners if it doesn't want to lose its ears through overwork.

GERMANY

Financial experts say that Germany's economic plight is desperate and look for drastic moves to try to save the situation.

One such move might be a government declaration that foreign trade is henceforth a government monopoly—accompanied by removal of the mark from foreign exchange just as was done with the rouble in Russia. This might ease the situation temporarily but insiders doubt that any remedy will effect a lasting cure as long as political complications impede the functioning of normal trade channels.

WHITEWASH

The long-heralded New York state utility investigation is working out as insiders expected. The equal division of the investigating committee between Democrats and Republicans blocked the choice of either Ferdinand Pecora or Samuel Seabury as counsel—exactly what it was supposed to do. Informed cynics comment that either Pecora or Seabury might have been too enterprising for the committee's comfort.

This is no personal reflection on John H. Mack—Roosevelt Democrat who got the job. But Mr. Mack is not so ambitious to make a killing for the sake of his record and presumably won't try so hard to get around the obstacles which will be skilfully strewn in his path.

It's a 10 to 1 shot the committee will go through a lot of exciting motions and wind up by giving all concerned a reduction of nervous strain. Also that facts dug up now will be more useful in '36.

STRATEGY

There's a lot of whispering in local Republican circles about running Samuel Seabury for governor against Herbert Lehman. Take it with a carload of salt.

Kingsland Macy—who is fostering the Seabury candidacy—knows perfectly well the upstate Republicans will never swallow a Democratic flag-bearer in such a crucial year. The strategy is to scare them good and plenty with the Seabury menace so they'll be glad to take an authentic Republican liberal instead. It's about the only way a liberal can be put over peacefully.

Sometimes a fine seems positively painless as an alternative to jail.

WARNING

Wall Street is chuckling at the forthrightness of President-elect Lopez of Colombia. He was recently guest of honor at a New York dinner sponsored by those who have or hope to get commercial concessions in his country. Lopez's speech—instead of the usual airy nothings—contained a kindly warning that if the boys expected him to play Santa Claus when he took office they'd better guess again.

It was so delicately done that his hosts couldn't take offense but they feel he means it—in which case what was the use of giving him a party?

How New Tire SENSATION smashes DEPRESSION BARRIERS!

Tremendous welcome of new "G-3" — marvel tire that gives 43% more non-skid mileage — keeps Goodyear factories and dealers on jump!

Warning!

Look at the NON-SKID in the center of this tread—the spot that counts, because that's where the tread contacts the ground. When it comes to safety, insurance figures show that 5½ times as many accidents are due to skidding as to blowouts and punctures combined. Remember this when others try to duplicate what the "G-3" gives you: You have to have "NON-SKID" before any tire can give you "NON-SKID MILEAGE" and safety—and you have to have GoodyearSupertwist beneath this type of tread to make it a real success.

A 1934 success story that shows how the American people will buy when you build what they want

LANK and angular he stood there—one of the nation's greatest research engineers. Conviction shone in his eyes as he spoke these words:

"If it were up to me to whip depression, I'd put a big billboard in front of every factory in the land, with this burning message: 'GIVE US SOMETHING NEW AND GOOD AND WE WILL BUY IT'—signed 'THE AMERICAN PUBLIC'."

There is more than psychology in that statement—there is truth—and here's the finest evidence in the world—the evidence of sales.

How a tire started a stampede

Ten weeks ago people opened their morning papers and read the story of a new tire—a spectacular tire—known by the factory job number "G-3".

Eagerly eyes ran through the facts—for here was something the people wanted—a tire proved by grueling days and nights on the test fleet—a tire with 43% longer non-skid mileage than the former All-Weather—a tire that kept its grip twice as long as other tires tested against it.

Then things happened! By the thousands and tens of thousands car owners headed for Goodyear dealers. All over the country they demanded the new "G-3".

This is no exaggeration. You should see the reports that rolled into headquarters at Akron. Excited dealers wrote, wired, called in by phone.

"We're breaking sales records!" "We're swamped with business!" "We're having the biggest sales in history!" "We're selling whole sets of the new "G-3"." "Sold 37 tires"—"sold 50 tires"—"sold 200 tires the first day," ran the figures from all over the country.

All over the country... car owners headed for Goodyear dealers

The "G-3" is the answer to the motorist's prayer. W. D. W., Salisbury, Pa.

The other day I saved myself from a serious accident because of the wonderful grip on your new "G-3". O. G., Portland, Ore.

After 15,000 miles of hard use, much of it at high speed, these "G-3" tires have plenty of tread left. S.O.S., Portland, Ore.

... these "G-3" tires have delivered the best non-skid mileage that I have ever obtained. E. M. W., Hartford, Conn.

I have received more than double the mileage ... and the diamond tread is still showing. A. G. R., Clarksburg, W. Va.

After 15,000 miles the tread on these "G-3" tires looks almost like new. Any previous tires were smooth or went out of service before 15,000 miles. J. P. S., Portsmouth, O.

The non-skid stayed on these "G-3's" longer than any tire I ever used. H. S. H., Myers, Fla.

I have received 50% more non-skid from these "G-3's" than I ever got before. H. T. H., Adena, O.

These tires have run 21,000 miles ... the non-skid still appears on the tread. R. H., Orlando, Fla.

What you get in the "G-3" All-Weather

Such instantaneous success sprang from this vital fact—Goodyear actually had a wonder tire—had actually spent close to two years developing, testing, perfecting it.

And here's what this great new "G-3" gives you:

A broader, flatter, heavier tread—

A tread with 16% more non-skid blocks in the center—

A tread with the extra-durability and extra-resilience of patented Goodyear Supertwist beneath it to stand up under the extra weight and strain—

A tread that gives 43% more miles of real non-skid safety at no extra cost!

Any wonder this "G-3" is a sensation! Any wonder more people are buying the new "G-3" than any other tire in the world!

Coaching schools, popularized by the late Knute Rockne following the war, do much toward advancement of football, keeping interest in it alive during the summer and ballyhooing the approaching season.

Carl Brubaker and Harry Newman, gridiron and basketball guides of Shaker Heights and Collinwood high schools of Cleveland, respectively, will conduct one at the former institution, situated in a fashionable suburb, from August 8 to 17.

The Shaker Heights course is practically the same as those presented in all sections of the country, starting with the close of school in June and running until September. Circulars are mailed to high and preparatory schools and college mentors. They may enroll for football or basketball for $10, and for both for $15.

Little is to be in charge of a school at Columbia before coming to Cleveland, and will go from here to Northwestern university, where, from August 13 to 25, he, Fritz Crisler of Princeton, and Dick Hanley will tell ambitious pigskin instructors how to score, once their team is inside the enemy's 20-yard line and impart other secrets of the great intercollegiate sport.

Little made a hit in Cleveland this spring in reading a paper on physical education and its place in the educational system before the National Physical Educational convention.

HEARD ROUND THE WORLD

It is doubtful if a coach ever capitalized a victory as Little has capitalized Columbia's unexpected conquest of Stanford in the Pasadena Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

Parke H. Davis, the renowned historian who passed away recently, called it the greatest gridiron achievement of all time, and one that would do the game more good than any other.

The pictures of this savagely fought fray, in which the smaller Lion scored on and then held the giant Redwoods of the Golden West, have been shown at hundreds of institutions, and will be reeled off and commented on by Little at Shaker Heights.

It would be interesting to attend the Evanston lectures, and hear the conflicting views of two of the foremost strategists.

Crisler favors driving immediately to the line of scrimmage, rather than relying on spins and reverses.

It was on a spinner, in which Cliff Montgomery faked giving the ball to Ed Brominski, before slipping it to Al Barabas, that "Bones" Hamilton, Stanford halfback, committed himself and Barabas, with the ball hidden on his hip, sprinted 18 yards around the Cardinals' right end for the touchdown that was heard around the world.

Any football system is sound when it works.

AMERICAN ALL-STARS WIN, 9-7

DEAN BROTHERS EASY BUT CUBS FEAR 'LEFTIES'

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY

CHICAGO, July 10.—Notes from a big league press box:

The Cubs would rather bat against the Dean boys, Dizzy and Goofy, than any other pitchers in the league . . . They like those fast balls Dizzy and Goofy try to throw past 'em . . . The southpaws, Ed Brandt, Bill Walker, Larry French, Carl Hubbell and Bill Hallahan, give the Cubs the most misery.

Wally Berger, Braves' outfielder, is considered by many to have the perfect stance at the plate . . . . "Chuck" Klein envies Dolph Camilli's style and when Camilli found out about it remarked, "Yeh, but I'd trade my style for his results."

Van Mungo, Brooklyn pitcher, has as much stuff as any flinger in the league, but is having trouble winning . . . . The Cubs say he is "strikeout crazy" . . . . In his last two starts against the Cubs he has made them strike out frequently in the early innings only to weaken and be beaten in the last inning . . . . On May 11 he fanned 11 Cubs and lost, 5-0, and in his last start he fanned 12 and again was beaten.

Zeke Bonura, White Sox first baseman, and Hank Greenberg, Detroit first sacker, once had a fist battle, but are all right now . . . . Charlie Gehringer is conceded to be the sparkplug of the Detroit club and the greatest all-around second baseman in the majors.

Johnny Broaca, Yankee rookie pitcher, set a nine-inning record when he struck out five times, and touched the ball only once in a recent game against the White Sox . . . . But as long as the ex-Yale boy keeps pitching the way he is Joe McCarthy doesn't care if he never gets a hit . . . . Players who have faced Broaca say he is the best rookie pitcher to break in since Gomez.

Veteran sports writers claim that Al Lopez, Brooklyn's fiery little catcher, is the best receiver and all-around workman since Roger Bresnahan . . . . Lopez is not only a great catcher, but he recently played third base creditably in a game against Pittsburgh.

ELKS DEFEATED BY BANK; M. E. JR. NINE WINS

Suddenly returning to its early season form, the First National bank's baseball team defeated the Elks club, 4 to 2, at the Municipal Bowl last night. The Elks tied for the first-half championship.

The First National led the Santa Ana City league most of the first round but went to pieces in the stretch, losing its last three games.

Hits by Jerry Heard and Gene Hitt, a walk to Labrucherie, and another hit by Bill Gibbs gave the Bankers their three winning runs in the fifth inning. A hit by Harold Youel, Gibbons' fielder's choice and Walt Markel's single accounted for an earlier tally.

The Elks made their tallies in the second and fourth. Stryring's single and Schwarm's triple produced the first one. Ojeda got the other in the fourth. He singled, took second on Stryring's hit, third on a passed ball, and scored on Schwarm's squeeze bunt.

The South Methodist Juniors won from the South Methodist Seniors, 7-4, in a preliminary contest. The Juniors had a ball game on their hands until the sixth when they put on a five-run rally. The box score:

Long Beach, Brea Fall In County Loop

Long Beach and Brea, the two teams that tied for first place in the first-half- both went down to defeat as the Orange County Night Ball league's second-half got under way last night.

Orange, with Jack Dugan on the ridge, mowed down Brea, 4-2. The Orangemen made three runs in the first inning by bunching four hits, got another in the seventh. Brea got one in the first, one in the seventh when Miller homed.

Anaheim, perhaps the heaviest hitting club in the loop, pounded Carl Winkler, Long Beach's bespectacled hurler, for a 9-2 victory. Benner limited the Cubs to two hits, one by Elliott, one by Zimmer.

Fullerton scored at will in spanking Olive, 19-4. Pister's homer accounted for three of Olive's counters.

Irvine turned back Huntington Beach, 6-5. A three-run attack in the eighth, the result of bunched hits, turned the tide in the Beanpickers' favor.

Santa Ana And Olive Open Second-Half Of Night League Season

Night baseball's "new deal" begins tonight.

Starting from scratch, the National league's eight clubs inaugurate the second-half of their 1934 championship race, with Olive playing at Santa Ana, Anaheim at Huntington Beach, Torrance at Westminster, and Fullerton at Long Beach.

Fourteen games, seven at each city in the conference, are scheduled before the season draws to a conclusion the evening of August 24. The second round of contests will determine a playoff series opponent for Huntington Beach, the first-half champion, unless Huntington Beach repeats. The Oilers probably have the power to do it, and Manager Joe Rodgers has pledged that they will be out to do so.

Five other clubs are given a royal chance. Santa Ana looks like a tremendous threat. So does Torrance, which was coming like a cyclone toward the end of the first-half. Anaheim is a cinch to finish at or near the top. So is Westminster, with its fine pitching and the next best hitting staff in the division. Olive may lack consistency but has the respect of all comers.

Packers After Dugan

The Olive aggregation which invades the Municipal Bowl this eve has the trickiest mound department in night ball. Rudy Heman, with his baffling change of pace, has always been a thorn in Santa Ana's side. He beat the Stars both times he faced them in the first-half. Paul ("Chandu") Watson is another gunner with a deceitful service. And now the Packers are after Jack Dugan of Orange, a slinger with a delivery patterned after Watson's. It took Santa Ana ten innings to beat Dugan in a spring exhibition tussle.

Heman probably will get the assignment here, and Al Reboin, the Santa Anan who plays football for U. S. C. will do the receiving. The giant Nana Coota will be on first base, "Memphy" Hill at second, Ralph Jertberg at third, and Terry Griffith short. "Red" Kidder, Russ Porter and probably Fritz Gunther will attend to the fly-chasing.

Griffith Beats S. A. Twice

Coates lost both his starts to Olive in the first round, chiefly because he couldn't keep Terry Griffith from hitting home runs. In the first game, Griffith's homer was the only run of a brilliant pitcher's battle. In the second, Griffith's homer came with the bases full and beat Santa Ana, 5-1.

Night ball hash:

George Lackeye, Westminster's manager, writes from Madison, Wis., that he is enjoying his vacation. Now at St. Paul, he leaves shortly for the Black Hills in Dakota and Yellowstone National park before returning home. Lackaye scouted several games in St. Louis, found enthusiasm higher than the caliber of the talent. He says the sport is really in its infancy there, as compared with the National Night league . . . . That old firebrand of Anaheim, George Pace, now an American division umpire, is in print again. This time the Pomona club is "on" him, intimating his decisions have shown bias toward Riverside . . . . Joe Rodgers of Huntington Beach says his third baseman, Bill McKinley, will be the greatest ever to play that position in the National wheel . . . .

Anaheim and Westminster have engineered a trade of third basemen. The veteran Al Kohler goes to the Aviators in exchange for Cecil Sauers. The players were dissatisfied and a change of pasture should help both. Kohler was the best third sacker in the game two years ago but his hitting declined sharply in '33. . . . . It has been a long time since the old cry of commercialism cropped up in night baseball, but American league fans moaned after looking over the two-weeks playoff schedule that will decide the inland first-half tie . . . . Santa Ana has "farmed" to the Irvine club George Padias, young utility player. Manager Cole things Paddy will get more benefit playing regularly for Irvine than sitting on the bench here . . . . Long Beach's Cubs lead the Orange County league. Long Beach's Admirals failed to win a game in the National. But the Admirals beat the Cubs, 7-2, in an exhibition game last week—and Howard Morning pitched for the Cubs, too.

MAY BE PIRATE COACH

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—The Pittsburgh Pirates may have a new coach next year. He is expected to be Tom Sheehan, veteran pitcher of the Hollywood Coast league club, who is one of "Pie" Traynor's closest friends.

DOUBLE WINDUP FOR O. C. AMATEUR CLUB

Featuring Manuel Rios and Carlos Roldan, a double main event will be offered amateur fistic fanciers at the Orange County Athletic club Thursday night. Bobby Yanes and Cheuy Salazana appear in the other half of the windup.

Rios, 1933 lightweight champion of the Pacific Coast, has not competed in Southern California tournaments this year but is regarded as a better fighter than Raoul Solis, the current Southland titleholder. Roldan, well remembered here, is another outstanding 135-pounder.

Matchmaker "Bud" Rutledge has scheduled 10 bouts. The three top events will be five-rounders, the others four.

ROSENBLOOM MADE 10-8 OVER RAMAGE

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—(UP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion boxer, and Lee Ramage, San Diego ring battler, meet again tonight in a 10-round battle intended to dispel any doubts which might have been raised as to the best man after their draw here recently.

Rosenbloom was quoted as a 10-8 favorite. Newspapermen gave the champion an unofficial edge in their last encounter.

Identity of the referee at the Olympic tonight was kept strictly secret, because, officials said, it was a good policy and should end disputes over decisions.

DO YOU KNOW THAT

Old Strangler Lewis still can do a lot of wrestling . . . but he can't pick winners on the mat. . . . He once more was wrong on the recent Londos-Browning shindig. . . . Zeke Bonura, White Sox sock[illegible] comes from a wealthy family . . . and the Bonura dough was made selling a lot of bananas in New Orleans. . . . The White Sox haven't won a start at Yankee stadium this season. . . . "Pie" Traynor prefers old bats . . . and generally hits with one that some other player has discarded. . . . Henry Cotton, British Open winner, is no club waggler. . . . Like Bobby Jones, he tees up his ball and smacks it without any of that preliminary body English. . . .

150 BEGIN PLAY IN WESTERN AMATEUR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 10.—(UP)—One hundred fifty golfers, including some of the leading simon-pures of the United States, were to start out over the Twin Hills Country club course early today in the qualifying round of the annual Western Amateur tournament.

Jack Westland of Chicago, Walker cupper, who is defending champion, was exempt from qualifying and all he had to do today was watch his competitors try to get one of the 81 open match play berths.

Westland and two fellow Chicagoans, John Lehman, former Purdue star and ex-champion, and Charles (Chick) Evans were among favorites to win the 1934 tournament.

DRIVERS PLAN NEW ATTACK ON RECORDS

Paced by Chet Mortemore, "Curly" Mills and Neil Theuson, midget auto race drivers will make another assault on track records tomorrow night in the Santa Ana Bowl.

Improvements on the track and a thorough watering before the race are expected to make the fastest races of the season. Race fans saw the above three drivers speed to new track records last week and will have Bill Bettridge to add to their programs this week. Mortemore is attracting considerable popularity in his Santa Ana-built No. 96, while Mills in "36" and Theusen in "53" are old favorites.

Crowds at the races are becoming the largest to attend any sport affair ever held in the Bowl. Although qualifying heats start early, fans are advised to arrive well before the opening race at 8:15 p. m.

JIM LONDOS SPURNS $40,000 FOR MATCH

CHICAGO, July 10.—(UP)—The proposed wrestling match between Jim Londos and Ed ("Strangler") Lewis today appeared to have fizzled out. Promoter Joe Foley offered Landos a guarantee of $40,000 or a privilege of 40 per cent of the gate receipts but his manager, Ed White, said he didn't think the offer was high enough. White asked $60,000 guarantee.

Another meeting will be held July 23 to discuss the match, and Foley will be ready to post a $10,000 guarantee with the commission at that time to bind the match.

"Son, what a name to use to your sister!"

He grinned at her. "Mom," you know it's the truth. This Eustace—he's a great guy. I saw him fishin' off the bridge last Saturday. He thinks they're a lot of crazy kids."

"Eustace—that's his name," Kay confirmed. "Charles Eustace. What do you know about him?" she demanded, staring Mark down.

"Plenty," said Mark importantly. "He's O. K., he is. And he doesn't care for women."

Kay giggled. Mark was irresistibly funny. "Allie says she thinks he's an artist or a writer," she went on.

"Eustace?" Mrs. O'Dare mused. "One of the Waterman girls married a man named Eustace, a New Yorker, when I was just a child. This must be her son."

MONNIE scarcely heard them. Kay's "crushes" were many and various. The newcomer, whoever he might be, was sure to be all right if Mark sponsored him. Mark would know if he were bogus. But what did all this matter—where was Dan? Her head began to ache, and there was a nervous throbbing back of her eyes.

"We'll do the dishes, Mother," she said. "Kay and I. You go and lie down."

Monnie set her jaw. "I'm going to wash dishes tonight. Nothing shall stop me."

She put a big checkered apron on over the faded linen. She took the dishpan from its nail, filled it with warm soapy water. With vigor she sloshed the cups and saucers in and out, finding in the homely task some surcease from her pain. She could be useful, anyway, even if Dan didn't want her.

Lost in a daydream, she went through her work. She would work hard, she would earn enough to take them all away from Belvedere. Years later, busy, successful and happy, she would return. She would see an old, tired-looking man on Main street. Someone would say, "There's Monica O'Dare, the famous (author, actress, singer)." The man would look up, his grim features working with emotion. He would mutter, "My Monnie. And I lost her, fool that I was." It would be Dan, tired, broken, disappointed.

She sluiced the drainboard with water, wrung out her cloth with an expert motion. Kay had finished the last of the silver, had flitted upstairs. Through the half open door, Monnie could see her mother dozing over the evening paper in the bay window. Evening had settled down over the little town. The yard looked melancholy, the lilacs sent their fragrance through the dusk.

As the girl turned to put out the light, she heard a firm step on the side porch. Her first thought was that it was Bill, returning early. She went to the screen door.

Amber eyes stared up at the man who stood without.

"I rang the front several times," he said quietly. "I guess no one heard."

Monnie managed to control the tremor in her voice as she answered him. "Come in, Dan," she said softly.

He was back, and he hadn't forgotten her!

PIONEERS TALK OF OLD TIMES AT MEET HERE

FULLERTON, July 10.—Stories of the struggles of the early settlers of Northern Orange county were recited Saturday by pioneers when members of the Orange county Historical society met at Fullerton Commonwealth park for a covered dish dinner and an afternoon of talks and reminiscences.

Dr. C. D. Ball of Santa Ana, who came here in 1887, and who has welcomed all other doctors to Orange county, presided at the meeting. S. M. Davis, a pioneer, was secretary.

A feature of the afternoon was a talk by Frank Henderson, superintendent of Santa Ana schols, who paid tribute to William Holmes McGuffy, who made dynamic history, and who "was author of America's first best seller, the McGuffey readers, of which 122,000,000 copies have been printed and sold."

The speaker brought to his audience the message of these readers, and said of the author, saying "we are glad to pay tribute to a great and good man who moulded the thinking of countless millions; this is dynamic history."

He brought with him some early copies of the readers, and said that between 1836, seven million copies were sold; between 1850 and 1870, 40 million copies were sold. between 1870 and 1890, 60 million copies were sold, and up to 1920 from 1890, 15 million copies were sold

These readers, according to the speaker, were the books that aided youth in early school history; they opened to youth the Bible; they advised against use of alcoholic beverages; they expressed anti-war sentiments; they carried and with almost every story, something for moral training."

In his discussion, he said today if one read from the Bible in public school; he did so almost with apology.

An interesting talk was presented by Mrs. Carrie McFadden Ford of Fullerton who advised the group that this country, that now is covered with beautiful orchards and cities, was so very barren when she was a litle girl, she could sit on the steps of a homestead ranch house, north of Placentia, at the site where now her brother, Ralph McFadden resides, and see the light of the lighthouse at Point Firmin.

In reciting the early life of the settlers, she brought a picture of the struggling time when crops burned up for lack of water, and said that her father, who had digged a well "by hand" to 120 foot depth, was among those first men to open the Cajon ditch which now is the Anaheim Union Water company.

Among others who assisted in the work of bringing irrigation water to north Orange county, but one is living, R. H. Gilman, father of Mrs. Helen Bowen, who resides now in Redondo Beach. Mrs. Ford came to Orange county in 1869, a small child, from Alameda with her parents. Her father, William McFadden, was the first teacher in the district at Yorba.

Otto Des Granges, who came to Southern California in 1873, also impressed his audience with accounts of the business of the territory and said that a ranch near where Buena Park now is contained the only tree, and was known as the Lone Tree ranch, while those who wanted wood to burn, drove to the willow groves along the artesian wells district where they "bought all they could haul on a wagon for 50 cents."

Mayor William Hale, who welcomed the group, and to whose welcome Dr. Ball responded, told of the early development of Fullerton, and of the building of the Hotel St. George in about 1884, a first project in Fullerton, which cost about $55,000.

A resolution of sympathy was passed on the death of J. E. Pleasants of Santiago canyon, arranged and presented by William McPherson and Terry Stephenson. Two new members were accepted, Dr. Charles C. Villet of Garden Grove and Mabel C. Larrick of Santa Ana.

The next meeting is to be held in October.

"I'd call it a big nickel's worth just to have hot water all ready for my hit-and-run shave in the morning." That's what anybody with an automatic gas water-heater says.

And in Southern California natural gas is so inexpensive that the whole household can have hot water everywhere . . . always ready, all day and all night . . . for less that 5c a day.

Remember that bathing, cooking, dishwashing, laundry, shaving, dozens of other daily trips to the hot water faucets, all add up to thousands of individual uses every month. You can't notice the tiny cost each time. Be sure to insist on a natural gas automatic heater . . . it is three times as economical as other automatic methods.

LEGAL OPINION HOLDS ELECTION IS MANDATORY

Still refusing to resign so that an election might be held August 28 to fill out the unexpired terms, despite warnings that their acts after that date might be illegal, Councilmen William Penn, Plummer Bruns and Fred C. Rowland again turned a cold shoulder last night to Councilman A. F. LeGaye's suggestion that all four appointed members submit their candidacies to the will of the people at an election.

"It's the only fair thing to do, to let the people decide whether or not they want to continue us on the job," sad LeGaye, who said that in view of conflicting legal opinions the members of the council ought to "play safe" and not subject themselves or the city to possible illegality.

"I think we all ought to resign. I will resign at any time," LeGaye said. "The job of councilman is not worth fighting for, anyway; it's only supposed to pay $25 per month."

When Penn remarked that conflicting opinions had been presented by attorneys, LeGaye said "that's what makes jobs for the lawyers."

Legal Opinion

In support of his position that the four appointed council members should resign and call an election in connection with the forthcoming state election to avoid possible illegality, LeGaye read a written statement on the question prepared by Eugene T. McGann, for 21 years an attorney of Los Angeles, former county and federal prosecutor, and now candidate for superior judge in Los Angeles county.

McGann's opinion coincided with that of City Attorney Downing that "general" election is synonomous with "regular" election, not necessarily a municipal election, and the state law governing cities of the fifth class would be meaningless, as regards filling of "unexpired terms" unless the regular state laws were intended.

McGann's opinion is as follows:

"The undersigned respectfully submits the following as his opinion of the status of four trustees appointed to the board of trustees of the city of Santa Ana, county of Orange, state of California:

"Act 5233 of the General Laws, Section 54, Article II, Chapter 6 thereof, provides that vacancies occurring in any of the offices provided for by this act shall be filled by appointment by the board of trustees, but if such offices be elective, such appointee shall hold office only until the next regular election, at which time a person shall be elected to serve for the remainder of such unexpired term.

"The question is, what is meant by regular election? It does not necessarily mean municipal election, or it would have so said; and, as a matter of consistent reasoning, it did not intend that the appointees should carry over until the next general municipal election, at which time full terms of offices and not unexpired terms are to be filled.

"The Statutes of 1927, Page 143, in Section 3, Chapter 84, specifically provides that in the event that any election submitting the proposition of incurring indebtedness or the issuance of bonds, or the determining of any question authorized by law to be submitted to the vote of the people of such municipality, shall be consolidated with any regular state or county election.

"The election of August 28, 1934, would be deemed a regular state or county election, and it is therefore the opinion of the undersigned that the trustee appointees of the city of Santa Ana should be required to submit their offices to a vote of the people to determine who shall serve for the unexpired terms of the regularly elected officials in whose stead they were so appointed.

"It is my understanding that no municipal election will take place in the city of Santa Ana prior to the regular municipal election to be held some nine months hence.

EUGENE T. McGANN,

SCHOOL BOARD AT PLACENTIA ADOPTS BUDGET

PLACENTIA, July 10.—The budgets of the Placentia Union Grammar school district and of the Valencia High school district were adopted last night at a busy session of the school boards at the Bradford school, the total for the high school being $88,750, and for the grammar school $98,799.63. This includes for the grammar school the five percent raise allowed by law.

The second election on the bond issue of $200,000 will be set for August 3, provided it meets with approval of Buell Beard, trustee, who will have returned from his vacation before the special meeting called for Monday, July 16. It was pointed out by the board last night that the bond election will reduce the tax for the Valencia High school district considerably, since the budget was placed at the highest point to allow money for building, at 75 cents, and will be reduced to 40 cents if the bond issue carries.

Business of the board, sitting as a grammar school body, included suspending all action on rebuilding La Jolla school, and the manual arts building at the Bradford school campus, after T. C. Kisner, architect, reported the cost of reconditioning the manual arts building will be $14,700, without SERA labor, and of building the La Jolla addition about $46,000. Checks turned in with bids on materials were returned.

Plans for opening school are September 17 for the grammar school and September 10 for the high school. Agreement was reached to employ two other teachers for the high school.

The budget for the high school included $45,000 for capital outlay; $20,500 for special charges; $650 for administratio ncharges; $16,200 for administration charges; $16,200 fund; $500 for operation of plant; $600 for maintenance of plant, and $3,300 for auxiliary agencies.

The grammar school budget included $5,100 for administration; $51,300 for instruction; $1,625 for library; $15,569 for operation of ulant; $5,849 for plant maintenance; $8,205 for auxiliary agencies, including $5,000 for transportation; $330 for special, and $10,831 for capital outlays, or a total of $98,799.63.

CREEL SUPPORT IS URGED BY NOTED AUTHOR

Rupert Hughes, internationally noted writer and newspaper man, spoke at an open meeting of voters at the Frances Willard Junior High school auditorium last night on "Why Creel Should be Elected Governor of California."

Hughes aimed all of his sharp witticisms at Upton Sinclair, also a noted author, and ignored entirely the other nine candidates for the Democratic nomination.

He pointed out that Creel was the right hand man to President Wilson during his terms in the White House and that he is also a personal friend of President Roosevelt's. He called attention to the fact that Creel, at the urgent request of the president, organized and presided over the NRA on the Pacific coast, resigning after three unsuccessful attempts to quit so he could devote the necessary time to his campaign.

The speaker called attention to the present situation in the harbors of the coast as a contrast to the fact that during his term as NRA administrator Creel settled 44 strikes without trouble, and to the satisfaction of both sides.

Hughes said that Creel is also an idealist, but that his ideals are not unworkable dreams, and that, if elected, he will have the legislature with him for he has always been a Democrat, and is not of another party and trying to ride into office on the Democratic ticket. He promised that "Creel can and will carry out his magnificent program if elected."

Judge J. G. Mitchell, of Santa Ana, chairman of the Democratic county committee, and vice president of the Orange County Creel-for-Governor club, presided at the meeting and introduced the speaker.

Joe Peterson, Democratic candidate for state assemblyman from this district also made a short talk regarding his candidacy.

Surprise Man At Birthday Event

BUENA PARK, July 10.—Bird W. Hopkins of East Eleventh street, who celebrated his seventy-seventh birthday anniversary yesterday, was honored with a surprise birthday dinner by Fullerton friends. Hopkins, who is a retired actor, spent 20 years on the stage and was with Edwin Booth playing the leading role of Dr. Griggs in "The Fisherman's Daughter." He also owned a theatrical company featuring a program with himself in the role of an English outlaw, Jonathan Wild, in the play, "Jack Sheppheard."

Table decorations were in opaque white for both linens and table service with deep red carnations as the floral motif.

PROMINENT S. A. CIVIC LEADER OPPOSES CITY TAX DONATION FOR USE BY PRIVATE GROUPS

Holding that a reduction of taxes is imperatively necessary and taxes should be levied for only essential services, W. A. Taylor, prominent civic leader, last night submitted a strong letter to the city council protesting the proposed donation of $4250 in tax money to the Chamber of Commerce.

"I do not believe that public funds should be appropriated for expenditure by private organizations, irrespective of how meritorious the latter may be," declared Taylor in his letter, which the council ordered received and placed on file.

"May I suggest with reference to what has been said as to what other towns and cities have done or are doing in similar matters—that attempting to keep up with the Jonses' is largely responsible for the economic mess we are now in," said Taylor in his letter.

"It is my understanding that you have under consideration a proposal to appropriate to the Chamber of Commerce of this city $4250 of taxpayers' funds, to be expended for advertising.

"I desire to enter protest, as a taxpayer, against such an appropriation being made. Even if such advertising as is contemplated achieved its purpose of influencing individuals and firms favorably toward our city, it is lamentably true, under existing conditions, that such persons and firms are, generally, without the resources with which to translate such favorable inclinations tnto actions of practical advantage to our community, and since the benefits of advertising of the nature indicated are always a bit uncertain, even under normal conditions, it seems to me it would be exceedingly unwise to use the funds for such a purpose, raised from impositions on property from which any possible income which can now be derived bears such an uterly disapportionate erlation to the taxes thereon.

"It seems to me a reduction of taxes is imperatively necessary if we are to avert real disaster.

"For many years I have been a member and supporter of the Chamber of Commerce (or the Commercial club—its equivalent) wherever I have lived; but we now have an emergency condition, and should, in my judgment,, pending a recovery, and in deference to those many home owners who are making such desperate efforts to save their properties, confine expenditures strictly to those things which are virtually essential."

First Ballet On Summer Series To Be Given July 11

Ravel's "Bolero," to be presented in the Shrine auditorium, Los Angeles, Wednesday, July 11, has achieved the popular acclaim of ballet patrons just as "Carmen" has won the favor of the opera public. It has brought its composer world fame and fortune. First introduced in the United States by Earl Carroll in his "Vanities" revue, the "Bolero" has since been presented on the concert stage, in big picture house prologues and on the screen.

For the Shrine auditorium production Senorita Goni will offer a new version of the "Bolero," using a Moorish legend by Marouf, celebrated Casablanca poet, as her theme. The action takes place in a Moorish harem, with 100 beautiful slave girls dancing before the Sultan in sumptuous splendor, climaxed by a thrilling scimitar fight between the Sultan and a young sheik over the captive daughter of a desert chief. Senorita Goni, Pauline Becker, James Reynolds and Manuel Ugalde will have the leading roles.

Other ballets on the Shrine summer season will be Lester Horton's production of Oscar Wilde's "Salome," July 25; "The Painted Desert," mammoth American Indian pageant with music by Homer Grunn, August 8, and Ethel Meglin's elaborate fantasy, "Three Little Pigs," featuring a cast and chorus of 500 famous Meglin Kiddies, August 22.

Postal Gains Show Boost In Business

Postal receipts at the Santa Ana post office for June 1934 increased $1059.90 over the same month last year according to the monthly tabulation released today by Flake Smith, assistant postmaster at the Santa Ana office.

The income for June of this year reached a total of $34,692.11 as against $33,632.21 for June 1933. Smith said:

"Executives of the local office are pleased with the increase and feel that it indicates a definite betterment of general business conditions in Santa Ana."

AUDREY GRANAS TO ADDRESS KIWANIANS

Miss Audrey Granas, valedictorian of the graduation class of the Santa Ana High school, and a splendid speaker, will be the speaker at the regular Kiwanis club meeting tomorrow noon, it was announced today. She will talk on the subject, "Education." Mrs. Jerome W. Crays will entertain with dramatic readings. Hugh J. Lowe is program chairman for the day.

SIX EVENTS TO BE GIVEN ON COURSE

POMONA, July 10.—Claremont College's Artist course will present six numbers this year beginning with Fritz Kreisler, violinist, in October. He is to be succeeded by Nelson Eddy, celebrated young American baritone, the Vienna boys' choir, Maier and Pattison, noted two-piano artists, Dusolina Giannini, Italian soprano, and Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra.

Mrs. Mary Batten Steffenson is the representative of the Claremont Artists' Course in Santa Ana.

BOARD REFUSES; EXPECT FILING OF PETITION

First move for the repeal of Santa Ana's city advertising tax was made last night by Councilman A. F. LeGaye after his resolution, seeking to prevent abuse of this taxing power, had been turned down by the remaining members of the board.

After the "no donations" resolution had failed for want of a second, LeGaye read and proposed an ordinance calling an election so the people may vote upon the repeal of the city's 12-cent permissive tax levy for music and advertising adopted in 1926.

"I ask adoption of this ordinance," said LeGaye, "otherwise I feel sure an initiative petition will be presented demanding this matter be placed on the ballot."

In answer to LeGaye's question, City Attorney Clyde Downing said the proposal could be placed on the August primary ballot. In answer to questions by Councilman Penn and Mayor Warner, City Clerk Ed Vegeley said the cost of the last bond election was "about $800."

"If we call the election, it will save trouble, for I am confident the petitions will be coming in," said LeGaye.

Mayor Warner allowed about three seconds for anyone in the audience to talk on the question, then banged his gavel and said the motion was lost for want of a second.

PASTOR WILL BE HONORED

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 10.—The congregation of the First Methodist Episcopal church will hold a reception Friday night at the church parlors, honoring the pastor, the Rev. John Engle and his family, because of Rev. Engle's assignment by the diocese to another year at Huntington Beach.

Travelers Return Home To Welcome Arrival Of House Guest

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Nickey have returned to their home, 519 Bush street, from an interesting eastern trip upon which they were accompanied by their granddaughter, Miss Mildred Congdon of San Juan Capistrano.

On this journey they motored by the Lincoln Highway to Chicago, stopping en route for a visit in Omaha, Neb. After devoting some time to the exposition and other interesting Chicago features, they returned to the coast by way of Colorado Springs where they spent a few days. Their return to Santa Ana was hastened by the fact that they received word of the impending arrival of a close friend, Miss Judit Hansen of Stockholm, Sweden, who is now a guest in the Nickey home.

Miss Hansen is a great traveler and as owner and proprietor of a large oriental store in Stockholm, does all her own buying on frequent trips into the Orient by way of Siberia. She and Mr. and Mrs. Nickey first became acquainted eight years ago while fellow passengers on a 'round-the-world cruise. Four years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Nickey were her guests in Stockholm.

Various short trips serve to acquaint the interesting guest with this section of the Southland. She has been taken through the Mission San Juan Capistrano, to Laguna Beach and other coast resorts, and to Glendale, the Southwest Museum, and the luxurious hotels and shops of Los Angeles and Hollywood. Today, Mr. and Mrs. Nickey are taking her to the Huntington Library, and similar interesting experiences await her for each day this week until her departure Saturday on the President Pierce for the Canal trip and ocean voyage to Europe.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

LUNCHEON

Vegetable and cottage cheese salad
3 Ry-Krisp crackers
½ cup berries, with
1 tsp. sugar, no cream, or
½ cataloupe
Clear tea
Calory total, 275.

When you have a few spoonfuls of cooked green vegetables left from dinner, always put it away in a covered cup for your next day's diet salad. Today, the salad uses 1 large tomato, skinned and sliced, 2 tbsps. of cottage cheese seasoned with chopped onion tops or parsley, made creamy with diet mayonnaise. Arrange the salad on crip lettuce and add whatever bit of vegetable left from dinner (green peas, string beans, etc).

Although my record of the Orange Juice-Milk diet stopped with the addition of 1 soft boiled egg to the vegetable meal allowed per day, I want to add one word more. It has to do with your complexion:

After almost a month on this diet I noticed that my skin began to clear up, some natural color was coming back, and the muddy look was fast disappearing. That isn't hard to take, I can assure you!

Another thing noticed is the feeling of vigor this diet has brought me. I am able to walk four miles per day, up hill and over rough trails, and come back fresh enough to do another four miles. And best of all, next day there are no stiff muscles.

Weight can be reduced on this diet by using skimmed milk, but don't take it too fast, or you'll lose the sense of vigor which comes with the full diet. It can be worked by using the creamery skimmed milk one week, and the full milk the next week. Tomorrow I will outline the diet requirements for those who may have missed it.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Macaroni-Cheese Timbales

1 cup grated nippy cheese
1½ cups milk
2 eggs
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
Salt to taste
1 cup uncooked cut macaroni

Cook macaroni rapidly in salted water, drain and blanch in cold water, and drain again.

Although the recipe specifies a custard mixture, my experience has been that a very thin cream sauce holds the eggs far better than the milk mixture. Heat the milk and thicken it just a little with corn starch, then simmer it 15 minutes, take off the fire and stir in the cheese, then the well beaten eggs, seasonings and cooked macaroni. Mix with a quick hand and put the mixture into a buttered dish. Bake in a pan of hot water, moderate oven, until the center is slightly firm on pressure of your finger tip.

If you bake this timbale in a ring mould and insert on a platter, it is nice to fill the center with a hot buttered vegetable . . . diced carrots and new green peas, maybe.

There are approximately 1400 calories in this dish. It will serve six hungry people very generously. The foods are classed as tissue builders and energy makers but the energy units are less than one-fourth the total value, so you may have a small piece of pie if you are longing for it.

Young Couple Spend Honeymoon Days In North

Bridegroom and bride of almost a week, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Owen Stapp have been honeymooning in San Frnacisco and Sequoia National park with plans to return to Santa Ana to take up their residence on Bush street.

The home of Mrs. Sophie Parris, 611 East Washington avenue, was setting on Wednesday, July 4 for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Jane Parris to Mr. Stapp, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Stapp, 1509 Bush street. The ceremony was read at 11:30 o'clock in the morning by the Rev. Samuel Edgar, pastor of Reformed Presbyterian church.

July 4 as the date of the young couple's marriage bore special significance, for it marked the wedding date of the bride's parents.

The living room made an attractive setting for the wedding. A bower of honeysuckle, fern and sweet peas provided a background for potted palms and tall baskets of gladioluses and other colorful blooms.

George H. Parris gave his sister in marriage. She made a lovely bride in a soft blue swagger suit worn with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Her sister, Miss Marie Parris, as maid of honor, wore a blue crepe dress with blue costume details and a corsage bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. Andrew Rogers was best man.

Tiered wedding cake and coffee served during the reception. The newly married couple will be established on Bush street temporarily.

Mrs. Sophie Parris, who has been ill for the past year, was able to witness the pretty ceremony.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Boyer and P. N. Peterson, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. L. P. McConnell, La Crescenta. During the afternoon several friends dropped in the Parris home to extend congratulations. They included Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wyant, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Andrew and family, Miss Etta B. Coyer, Santa Ana.

The bride is a graduate of Santa Ana High school and of Orange County Hospital Nurses Training school, where she was president of the 1932 graduating class. Mr. Stapp is owner of the Independent Ice company.

PEOPLE FORCED TO THINK, GROW, BY DEPRESSION

VILLA PARK, July 10.—Because of the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Wesley P. Ford who is at Camp Osceola, the pulpit at Villa Park Community church was occupied Sunday morning by the Rev. Powells of Long Beach. The Rev. Powells was pastor of the Congregational church and superintendent of schools for many years at Milwaukee, Wisconsin. He said in part:

"I am going to bring you a theme of interest, providence and calamity. We are in troublous times. Many times people say why does God permit earthquakes, calamities and disasters? As a text I will use the words of Paul, found in II Cor. 4:17—'For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.' If there is any question asked in these days, it is why should there be pain, disease, trouble and sorrow?

"While disasters do occur, floods do not skip the rich man's house, lightning strikes the churches, and man does not lose his faith in God. After a flood, man builds a sea wall and after an earthquake he makes his buildings earthquake proof. If every church should be struck by lightning today, good people would be going to church next Sunday.

"Ninety-nine percent of the evil is due to the carelessness and indifference of man and is not the responsibility of God. There are scores of people who were never struck by lightning, in a cyclone or earthquake. There are thousands of accidents for which no sane person would hold God responsible. If man builds a railroad under an overhanging rock, and the vibration of the trains cause it to tumble down, did God order its construction? Man is responsible, not God.

"All the earthquakes would not equal the anguish and crucifixion of the arena at Rome. There are wars, famines and pestilences and man is responsible. The world is full of food. Why does man permit war, hunger, pestilence, white slavery, so much? It is unnecessary. Hunger has been the great curse of history. War was born when men began to fight for food.

"There is food enough to feed twenty billions of people. Manhood knows enough. Little children in Long Beach go to school without breakfast and the cold storage vaults are filled with food. God permits man, and man permits evil. Could not God have created a universe without pain? All knowledge begins with a question. Hunger, why? Thirst, why? Pain, why? Death, why? Without sorrow, man would never have tried to think out things. Death is only the going out of one door into another room. God permits pain and trouble to make us think. The depression we are now in has compelled us all to think."

Home Budgets To Be Talk Subject

ORANGE, July 10.—A lecture on home economics, health, and hygiene by Mrs. J. W. Crays is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Woman's clubhouse, it was announced today. Proper foods and the health of the family will be discussed, it is said, along with marketing, budgeting, and many other topics of interest to home makers.

B. & P. W. CLUB ENTERTAINED BY READINGS

ORANGE, July 10.—A pleasant evening was shared Monday by members of the Business and Professional Women's club, when they met at the home of Mabel Coburn, 513 East Washington avenue, for their bi-monthly dinner meeting.

Following the beautifully appointed dinner, a program of interpretive readings was presented by Mrs. Jerome Crays of Pasadena, who will lecture Wednesday in the Orange Women's clubhouse on ""Health and Economics."

During a short business session in charge of Mrs. Alice Cole, president, it was announced that the next meeting will be held at the El Modena school, at which time a class of Mexican girls, under the direction of Miss Phyllis Wannamaker, will serve a Mexican dinner. A program of unusual interest will also be given by the Mexican girls, following the dinner.

JESUS ADVISES HIGHER CHOICE SAYS MINISTER

ORANGE, July 10.—"Life is a long series of choices," Dr. Robert Burns McAulay, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, said in a sermon delivered at the second of a series of union church services held Sunday evening in the First Methodist church.

He stated that "in each individual there are two worlds, the world of the 'is' and the world of the 'ought;' the world of the actual and the world of the possible; the world of the factual and the world of the ideal. One needs power to win in the effort to make the actual the ideal. This calls for creative faith. Everyone who has lifted civilization at all in the past has had this battle and has won it to the extent that he has helped the world.

"The world seems to be built on the two-way plan. Where everyone is, or whoever he is, there are always two roads which run from the spot on which he stands. This is true of every hour of the day. Many is forever standing at the forking of the road, and must decide which way he will go."

Quoting Luke 14:10, "Friends, go up higher," Dr. McAulay stated that Christ is continually urging man to choose the higher road. He also related that man is continually choosing the lower road, excusing himself on the ground that he is only human. Jesus would remind man who He is, the child of God, and urge him to come up to the higher realms and claim them for His own."

Music was provided by the Presbyterian church choir, under the direction of Percy J. Green. "The Holy City" was sung by Vern Estes, accompanied at the piano by Percy Green, who played the postlude and the offertory.

The service for July 15 will be in charge of the First Baptist church, with the Rev. Harry Sheerer, pastor of the church, bringing the evening message.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

"Hurray! We're off to see some sights," exclaimed one of the Tinymites, as they went soaring through the air beneath the monstrous goose.

"This basket seems quite safe and sound, so we won't topple to the ground, unless some of the straps break and the basket then comes loose."

"Aw, I'm not worried. Not one bit," said Scouty. "I intend to sit right here and get enjoyment from this very thrilling ride.

"'Twas kind of Mother Goose to let us take her bird. Gee, I'll just bet that we look funny, up here in the basket, side by side.

"The ground looks far from here, to me, but I can still quite plainly see Old Mother Hubbard's cabin, where we fed her dog our beef.

"That was a kind act, seems to me, and, in return, I guess that we will have a nice, safe trip, instead of coming to some grief."

The goose flew on and on. What fun! Then Duncy said, "Gee whiz, the sun is getting very hot. I wish that we could find some shade."

Then Goldy said, "We can't, I fear, 'cause there are no shade trees up here. Say, you have kicked about most every trip we've ever made."

The goose, of course, heard what they said, and t'ward a great big cloud it sped. In just about a minute they were hidden from the sun.

"Imagine this," said Coppy. "Gee, the bird's as smart as he can be. He heard wee Duncy's wish and, now, just look what he has done."

The next thing that the Tinies knew, right toward the earth the big bird flew. The basket settled on the ground. "All out," wee Scouty said. "The bird is all tired out, I fear, so let's just stay and see what's here." And then he turned the goose loose, and up through the air it sped.

KEEP SMILING PROGRAM TO BE ON AIR TONIGHT

An explanation of "How and Why the Backbone Is the Key to Health" will be given by Dr. James Workman during the "Keep Smiling" program to be broadcast from KREG, starting at 6 o'clock tonight.

"That the backbone is the key to health, will, to the uninformed, appear not only improbable but ridiculous," Dr. Workman said. "However, in view of the fact that this idea is the foundation of a separate and distinct school in relieving sickness with thousands of its practitioners located all over the world and with millions of persons as staunch supporters of it after they have given it due consideration and investigation, one should pause and hesitate most seriously before arriving at unfavorable conclusions."

The musical portion of tonight's "Keep Smiling" program will take its audience upon another musical journey of the world and will feature some recent releases from England.

"PIOUS BILL" TO THE RESCUE OF MOTION PICTURES

Yesterday a conference of some of the religious leaders of the country was held in the city of New York over the Legion of Decency drive. Representatives of all religious bodies, Catholic, Jewish and Protestant, were present at the meeting.

The Reverend Joseph A. McCaffery, pastor of the Holy Cross Roman Catholic church, was made chairman of the meeting. This committee will seek a meeting with leaders in the motion picture industry, and impress upon them the determination of the religious group to boycott these vicious pictures.

The chairman of the meeting made one strong statement. We desire to quote it: "I am not voicing the official opinion of the conference, but it is my personal opinion that the situation will never be cleaned up until Will Hays is thrown out of office."

While we would not for a moment either charge or credit Will Hays, or any other single individual, as being responsible for the filth in the films, yet we are confident, from a close observation of the industry now these many years, that the main man responsible for it is the man who was named by the chairman of this meeting—Will Hayes.

He has been paid an enormous salary and has been used originally as a "brownstone front," a pious elder in a church, as a guarantee that the mothers and fathers could trust the pictures that were produced under the general direction of the organization which he headed. Under that guise, there has been poured into the minds and souls of the youth of America the filth of which most of us are aware.

From time to time, as people rose in mighty protest, "Pious Bill" would make a few incantations, sprinkle some perfume water around over things, and say: "These are the resolutions we are going to follow. You can trust me."

A man who has betrayed the confidence that has been reposed in him by the decent people of America is absolutely unworthy of trust and unworthy of any defense whatever. This committee would do well to refuse to go into a conference with that kind of man, because the results of the years of his work now show plainly that you cannot depend on any agreement pertaining to the character of films to which he is a party.

They have been able to mislead and deceive and almost ruin the public by the method which they adopted in taking Hays, a conspicuous politician, at the height of his power, one of the leading laymen in his church, and pay him a big salary to put this over on the public.

But the motion picture industry now must "pay the fiddler." This organization ought to keep alive and it ought not to trust any statements but only believe what it finally sees.

The filthy pictures should be driven out, but the man under whose direction these filthy pictures have been put on, at the very period when he was declaring he was "protecting the public from them," should be driven as far out of the industry as the pictures themselves. If he is retained, you can count upon it that there is going to be no permanent change.

SERA SHOULD BRING HELP TO LARGEST NUMBER POSSIBLE

Saturday there was published in The Register a resolution passed by the Joiners' Association of Orange county. This resolution urged that the SERA authorities, in order to spread the relief money of the federal government as far as possible, should establish a budget plan for practically all the workers, rather than has been done heretofore with just the lower strata. In part, the resolution reads as follows:

"Believing it to be the purpose of President Roosevelt to relieve distress as much as possible by the use of government money, and spreading same to the largest number of people, thereby rendering aid where needed, and inasmuch as a budget plan has been established for those who are or may be assigned to the various projects, we earnestly request that the clerks, stenographers and any other employes where it is possible so to do, be placed on an equal budget with those employed on the projects in construction, thereby giving employment to more people and a wider distribution of government money."

We believe that this should be very seriously and favorably considered. The object should be to extend the money as far as possible, and at the same time, afford relief. There were single women stenographers in the CWA receiving several times the amount of money that men who were heads of families received, and they were getting their money regularly.

If this were budgeted, and a division of labor to a larger extent, paying each approximately the same amount per hour, the money would either serve more people, or the amount would extend for a longer period.

Of course the directing heads will have to be on the job all the time, but under them there could be this larger spread. This resolution has considerable merit, and certainly inasfar as it can be done, consistent with carrying on the work, justice should demand that it be done.

THAT WHITE LINE ON THE ROAD

For many months the National Safety Council has sought the name of the man or woman who first devised the white line in the middle of the road which has done more to safeguard automobile travel than any other device that has been employed since the automobile was invented.

At the summer conference of the California Federation held in San Francisco it was announced that Mrs. June McCarroll a member of the Woman's club of Indio was the originator of the white line. Mrs. McCarroll whom organizations and individuals all over the country have been anticipating honoring, worked diligently, using her own time and money to get the idea started.

Up to this time the name of the one who conceived the idea of the white line has eluded much effort directed toward discovery. The origin of the white line and its sponsor seemed to have been wrapt up in the same mystery as the name of the man who first employed fire to cook his food or the man who first used implements which have now come to be the commonplaces of everyday life. Various reports have come from different parts of the country as to the original use of the line, only to be refused by reports of an earlier use in some other part of the country.

No greater discovery in the interest of human safety has ever been made. A simple device in itself, it has nevertheless been of incalculable worth. Measured by the lives it has saved and the confidence it inspired in all automobile drivers, that white line deserves to rank with the discoveries which have ruled diphtheria, yellow fever, and small pox from the list of human diseases which in times past decimated the human race. Keeping to the right of that line, we round curves and climb hills, which obscure the sight of the road beyond, without fear or thought of approaching autos at a speed approximated only by the swiftest moving trains.

It is to the credit of mankind that with here and there an exception all automobile drivers observe these lines. The road has been safe for us all because of the simple device.

SECRETARY ICKES CALLS THEM DOWN

Secretary Ickes of the Department of the Interior called the employees of his department together a short time ago and gave them a lecture as to what was expected of them. It appears that they had been loafing on the job, and that at the close of the day some of them made such an unseemly rush to get away from their jobs that they actually trampled down a woman who chanced to be in their way.

We have all heard of the man who established a factory to polish up worn-out brains. A patient came to him one day and left his brains to be cleaned. Weeks passed, and he never called for them. The brain cleaner ran upon him one day upon the street and informed him that his brains were all ready for him when he wanted to call. He was told that he no longer had need of his brains; he had gotten a government job.

Uncle Sam has been an indulgent boss. Consideration for employees is a commendable trait. But some people do not appreciate such consideration. They take advantage of it. In a kindly but firm way, Secretary Ickes has informed the employees of his department that the government is entitled to faithful service. His investigator found six men with twelve feet upon the desk having a gorgeous time at government expense. He informed them that he had 66,000 applicants for jobs in the department and warned the drones what generally happens to such creatures in a beehive when the real workers have exhausted their patience.

Saving the Floral Species

Palo Alto Times

We heartily endorse the views of the visiting plant biologists at Stanford this week that more should be done for the preservation of the native flora of our country, especially in California where the variety of specimens is so great, and the popular appreciation of this natural heritage is so poorly developed. Dr. J. C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, summarized the case well in saying: "We should preserve the forests for their botanical specimens as well as for their lumber. In Europe they are intent even on preserving what remnants of the primeval still exist, while we in America are lax about preserving what we have in abundance."

It is an ironic fact that the more we do to make the wild, scenic retreats accessible for the pleasure of the people, the less we ultimately are going to have left for their enjoyment. The all-year highway to Yosemite, for instance, has brought the scenic marvels of that wonderland within reach of countless more thousands of people than ever before, many of whom express their appreciation of the boon by denuding the contiguous areas of the beautiful Mariposa lilies that once were so numerous, but now are getting scarcer year by year.

The scientists propose that there be more state and national floral reserves established for the preservation of the menaced flora. But the people need not wait for those steps to be taken before getting the protective program under way. A decision by the people themselves not to molest the wild flowers would be sufficient if enough would make themselves parties to the resolution.

More Islands Wanted?

Detroit News

General Charles Sherrill, former American Minister to Turkey, has revived the idea that Great Britain and France could pay part of their debts to the United States by handing us some of the Caribbean islands.

The British islands in the Caribbean are Barbados, Jamaica, the Leeward Islands, Trinidad, Tobago and the Windward group. Jamaica and Trinidad are the largest of these islands; three-quarters of the population is of African descent. Concerning Antigua, one of the Leeward group, the interesting information is furnished that in 1931 the birth rate was 30.48 per 1000, the death rate 36.02, and 75.52 per cent of the births illegitimate. Nearly all the islands are overpopulated, and offer no advantage, either to American labor or American capital. If we took them over, we could probably ruin them in no time by extending our coastal shipping laws to them, and then they would be subjects of our charity, like Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The French islands in that part of the world are Guadeloupe and its dependencies, and Martinique; they have a total area of about 1600 square miles. How much are they worth to us? Probably less than nothing. Certainly if we paid only $25,000,000 for the Virgin Islands—which, according to the argument at the time, were worth considerable to us as protection for the Panama Canal—we would not set the value of the French territories as much more; and $25,000,000 would not be enough to cover a single year's installment under the treaty.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

BE WARNED BY ME

A motor car which uses alcohol for fuel will shortly be on the market.

I had a little motor car
Which, in the good old days,
Because it travelled fast and far
I fondly used to praise.
I drove it here, I drove it there,
Through many, many lands,
Delighted that it everywhere
Observed my least commands.

And then one day, along last fall—
A luckless day, indeed—
I chanced to hear that alcohol
Would much enhance its speed.
And, having just about enough
Dinero in the bank,
I bought a gallon of the stuff
And poured it in the tank.

That car of mine, so docile once,
With neither spur nor goad
Began to do amazing stunts
Along the public road.
It balked, it hopped, it leaped aside,
It jumped across a fen,
Fell in a gutter three feet wide,
And then leaped out again.

Completely out of my control,
It did a step of jazz;
It really seemed to have a soul—
The kind a demon has.
At last it practically flew
Across a pair of bars,
And fell asleep, so I am through
With alcoholic cars.

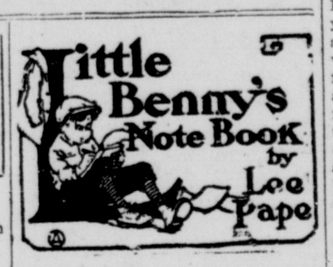
Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape



I was sitting on my front steps Sattiday afternoon waiting for something to happen, and Puds Simkins and Leroy Shooster came up. Puds saying, We're going around to the Little Grand to see the new Kut Up Komedy, go on in and find out if you can go, why dont you?

Nobody's home except my father and he's asleep taking a nap and if I wake him up he'll be sure to say no on account of me waking him up, I said, and Leroy said, Maybe he aint really asleep for real.

Sure he is, he's snoring, I said. If he was snoring loud he'd wake up by himself to find out what was making all the noise, hut he's snoring easy like a bee and that means he's nowhere neer waking up. If he woke up natural he mite give me money to go, I said, and Puds said, Well how about if we catch a lot of flies and throw them in the room, there's nothing like flies for making people wake up.

Nothing doing, that's his least favorite way of being woke up, I said, and Leroy Shooster said, Then how about if you go in and we ring the bell for you, and we keep on ringing it till he wakes up.

G, that mite work, I said. And I went in the house and the doorbell started to ring without stopping as if somebody had stuck a pin in it, and I kept guard at the living room door to see when pop would wake up, wich he did so sudden I didn't have time to duck out of site, and he yelled, Isn't anybody ever going to anser that bell? Yee gods, what is this, a nitemare? What's the ideer of standing there gawking in here when the doorbell is ringing like a thousand delirium trimmings? he said.

Yes sir, I meen I was just going, pop, I said. And I quick ran down and made Puds take his finger off the button, saying, He didn't wake up very natural, you 2 better go on and go ahead.

Wich they did, me taking a little wawk.

In the Long Ago

J. A. Beek of Balboa Island, Orange county harbor master, filed application with the State Railroad commission, to establish an automobile ferry between Balboa and Balboa Island under direction of the Balboa Island Transportation and Development company. There was one passenger ferry with a second and larger boat under construction, but no accommodations for automobiles.

Announcement was made that all high school text books and supplies were to be furnished free to pupils when schools opened again in the fall. This was in compliance with a law just passed by the state legislature. It would effect a saving of approximately $7000 to parents of Santa Ana High school students during the school year.

The United States Weather Bureau sent notice to the Orange County Harbor commission, of its intention to erect a 50-foot steel weather tower on the bluffs

Thoughts On Modern Life

THE DOCILE MAJORITY

Along with millions of Americans I was shocked by the news of the last few days out of Germany.

The agents of a ruling Chancellor shoot down a retired Chancellor.

It was as if the federal agents of a Roosevelt should execute a Hoover and arrest men who had served in his Cabinet.

And yet the news dispatches have said that the German rank and file were going about their business as if nothing had happened.

"Think of such a thing happening in the United States," said a man to me in the club car of a train between Chicago and Washington.

Of course such a thing is not going to happen literally in the United States, but the basic factors that make such a thing possible in Germany are present in our American situation.

The majority is docile.

Given the requisite vigor and rhetorical expertness leadership can get away with almost anything in America as in Germany.

I am convinced that, given a little astuteness in setting the stage, the Roosevelt administration could declare martial law throughout the United States, on the grounds that it was necessary in order to meet the menace of depression, and get away with it.

The docile millions would accept it and go on with a business-as-usual air just as they have in Germany.

As a schoolman I am a little discouraged that this should be so. I should like to think that universal schooling had made us different. I am afraid it has not.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

THE OFFENDER

This is a plea for the child who offends parents and teachers. Please believe me when I tell you that the child who habitually annoys or offends does not really want to do so. He would be different if he could. All children are naughty once in a while. They feel like making mischief and they get a certain joy out of the daring deeds but they do not make a habit of it. They forget about being troublesome and lose themselves in their work and play. The truly troublesome offender that gives teachers gray hair and mothers sleepless nights is a different order of child. He needs help, not punishment.

Take the child who wiggles and squirms, loses his place, speaks out of turn, fails in lesson after lesson. His teacher tries all her remedies in vain. She appeals to the parents and they begin a series of rewards and punishments. "If you don't bring home a better report you will get a sound whipping." "If you bring home a report card with an A you will get a new bicycle." For an hour, a day, maybe a couple of days the spell holds. Then the old story over again.

That child wants to be good. He wants to get a good mark, win the A and the bicycle. Above all he covets the applause of his classmates and teacher. Then why doesn't he try to win them? Because, for some reason or other he is limited in his effort and cannot succeed. He has not the power to succeed. Punishment only serves to increase the difficulty. The cause must be discovered and removed and then the offending child will succeed. He wanted to all along.

We found one offender who was suffering from hunger. He ate his meals but they were not nourishing him and the doctor fixed him up speedily. A girl who became fear stricken every time she was called on to read and fell gasping into her seat every time she was called upon was discovered to have about thirty per cent normal hearing. She had never heard words clearly enough to recognize them. Special instruction fixed her up and her troublesome symptoms departed. A child stole anything and everything with appalling persistency. Police and probation officers, parents and teacher worked in vain until it was discovered that this child was unloved and unwanted in the home that sheltered him. When he was placed in a good home and shown that he was wanted and loved, the stealing stopped. The habitual truant, idler, mischief maker, needs examination, sympathetic understanding examination followed by sympathetic and understanding care. After that he does well.

He does well unless he is a feeble minded child who is being forced to reach a standard beyond his powers. He must be given a chance in his own field, on his own level of achievement. Then he will do well. Some of the worst disciplinary cases in the schools have turned out to be kindly, industrious workers under proper conditions. Don't hate the offender. Study to cure him.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)
